NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston, June, 1912.

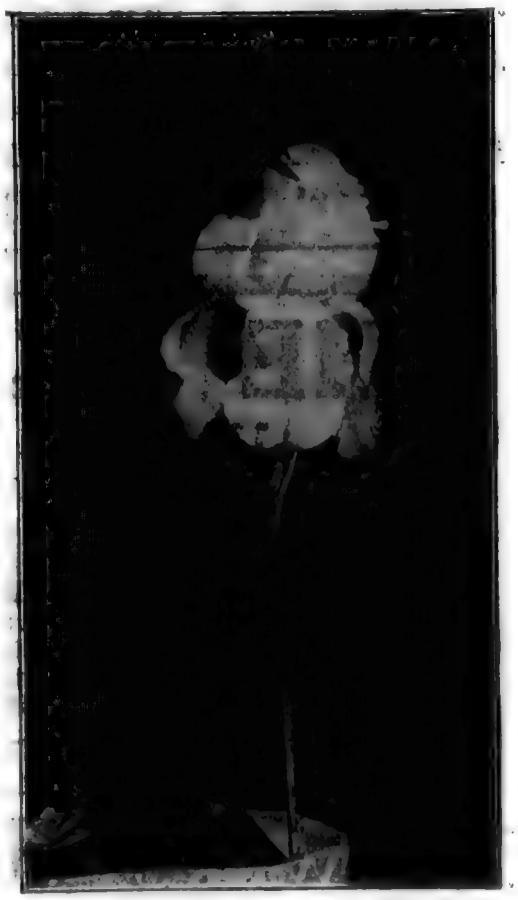
At Dayton, O., Mr. Berry runs a nursery, specializing on small fruits.

R. C. Berckmans, the nurseryman of Augusta, Ga., is president of the Richmond County Agricultural Society.

W. W. Stokes has purchased the nursery stock of J. S. Griffin & Sons, of the Sac City Nurseries, Sac City, Ia., and expects to continue the business on a larger scale than before.

The 1,600-acre nursery which is operated by the Oregon Nursery Co. at Orenco, Ore., was recently visited by 100 members of the Portland Realty Board. The visitors were taken over the grounds in automobiles and were much impressed, it is said, by the flourishing condition of the five millions or so of fruit trees.

TO KILL OUT POPLAR SHOOTS.



Can you tell us how to kill poplar roots in the ground, where they cannot be dug out? We have dug out the stumps and all the roots we could get at, but they keep sprouting up all over the lawn. A. G. S. C.

The most effectual method would, of course, be to dig out the roots. As you do not wish to disturb the lawn, the next best plan will be to keep the shoots cut down closely as they appear above the ground. One season may not entirely kill them, but it will greatly weaken them, and any growths appearing a second season will be much more feeble. Persistent cutting down is the surest way eventually to kill out these or any sprout growths from trees or shrubs. C. W.

CONNECTICUT NURSERYMEN.

The Connecticut Nurserymen's Association met again this year on the grounds of the Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn., July 26, for the annual summer outing. The day was perfect in every respect. The recent rains made verdure everywhere fresh and attractive. A special feature at the nursery, which was a source of universal interest among the members, is a collection of rare Japanese plants which were personally selected by Mr. Coe last winter in Japan. After journeying through the nursery's fields and comparing notes of mutual interest, the members took autos to the west shore, where they feasted. Later, after a short business session, the members gave themselves over generally to the attractions of the shore.

PACIFIC COAST.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Charles E. Morton, of the Los Angeles Flower Market, has returned home after a trip to the south and east. He spent some time in New York city and also visited his brother at Fort McCoy, Fla.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The continued warm weather has a tendency to keep business at a low ebb, with an occasional day that exceeds running expenses.

All flowers show the ravages of the season, but carnations are holding up remarkably well. Sweet peas are a drug on the market. Gladioli are coming in nicely, but asters are slow to show quality. Rubrums, auratums and longiflorums are plentiful.

Rose Mrs. Aaron Ward is being tried extensively for the coming season and bids fair to be a good yellow for commercial use. Killarney and Double Killarney will be given a more thorough trial, although they have not been a success in this section previously.

Various Notes.

A. L. Aabling, of the Aabling Seed Co., of Seattle, Wash., is in town.

The seed houses on Front street are practically deserted. Inventory is the only thing that keeps them busy.

The florists are busy securing their coal and wood supplies while the prices are right and the roads are good.

Max M. Smith has returned from vacation at the beach and is ready for the coming season.

E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The weather is even cooler than it has been and, from appearances, will continue so. Business has shown no improvement in the last few weeks and everything is as quiet as it is possible to imagine it. Flowers of nearly all kinds are overplentiful and underpriced, and only a small portion of the daily stock is used. Good roses are a scarce article, however, and any really fancy stock brings good prices. With carnations it is quite the reverse; although many of the growers are changing their houses at this time, there is such an abundance of stock that it is useless to pretend to give quotations. Outside flowers are a perfect glut and only a small number of the thousands of bunches sent into town daily find any sale. This will not continue long, as the excess of flowers is now at its height and the reaction will follow in a short time.

Various Notes.

Miss L. Wollenburg, of New York, is on a month's visit to her old home in Berkeley. She was formerly in the decorating trade here and for several years has been in the same line in the east.

W. W. Saunders, of Cloverdale, is in town on a short visit. Mr. Saunders was formerly in the green goods business here.

Arthur Zirkman, representing M. Rice & Co., is visiting the local trade. He reports a highly successful trip this season.

The picnic of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, at San Anselmo, July 23, was the most successful outing ever planned by the association. All the florists' shops were closed and everyone connected with the trade, to the number of about 400, with their wives, families and friends, attended.

C. E. Lilley, of Santa Cruz, who has been supplying the trade for many years with green goods, will enter extensively into the growing of bulbs for the flowers for the retail florists.

Most of the stores are short-handed at present, on account of vacation time, which is being taken advantage of in quite a general manner. But still there seems to be quite enough help to handle all the trade that is offered at this time.

I. A. Nyquist, superintendent of the East Lawn Nurseries, of Sacramento, is in town.

Frank Pelicano writes from Paris that he is having a splendid trip and will stay in Europe for about two months, visiting the principal places of interest on the continent. G.

and was attended by 250 florists, gardeners, nurserymen and amateurs. At the end of the Stephenson avenue car line, automobiles were waiting, and in these the members and their invited guests were conveyed to the meeting place, where addresses were made, after which a luncheon was served in the big plant house.

The scene of the picnic, the establishment of Dieterich & Turner, is notable for its high grade of equipment and cultivation and was inspected with great interest and appreciation. The grounds consist of eighteen acres. More than two acres are under glass and five acres are under a system of overhead irrigation.

The principal address of the day was delivered by Herbert J. Goudge, vice-president of the association. His subject was "Evolution in the Plant World." A short talk was also given by George C. Roeding, president of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, who spoke of the advantages of California for the horticultural industry. Besides his interests in this county, Mr. Roeding owns over 3,000 acres of nursery in the San Joaquin valley. He announced his intention of enlarging his local interests.

Others on the program were Dr. A. D. Houghton, P. D. Blanchard, Jacob Dieterich, H. W. Turner, and President Theodore Payne, who presided.

COLUMBUS.

The Market.

Trade has been extremely quiet here for the last week or so. On some days there has been no business in any line, while on other days everybody has been on the jump with funeral work for a few hours, perhaps, at a time. If it were not for funeral work, local florists might all close their places for a few weeks. There is some encouragement in sight, however, as it will not be many weeks until we are all back in the harness again for another season's work.

Stock has been of poor quality generally. Carnations are done for, as the growers are throwing out the balance of the old stock and are replanting. The new stock in some cases is coming along nicely and in two or three weeks there will be some new stock on the market. Roses are of poor quality and generally short-stemmed, as most of the stock is from young plants. Some fine Killarneys, however, are shipped in and these find ready sale. The demand for Beauties is light, with few on the market. Some good gladioli are coming in and have helped a great deal during the shortage of other stock. The aster crop is light and of poor quality, with short stems. The aster proposition here is not especially bright, as some of our best growers say they are going again in the same way as in previous seasons.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club outing at Buckeye Lake was attended by about the usual number, occupying two cars. No prizes were offered this year, but the club chartered a launch for the day and many of those who did not go fishing took several rides on the lake. A heavy rain about supper time put a damper on things for about an hour. Many took part in the dancing in the evening, before the cars started back.

William Metzmaier has been enjoying a fishing trip in Michigan and has sent some pictures of a big catch.

Allen Gerling, of the store force of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., is visiting his parents in Chicago.

Guy Woodrow and his son, Lloyd, have been seeing the sights of New York. Mr. Woodrow was chosen a delegate by the Jefferson Club of Columbus to call on his cousin, Woodrow Wilson—the next Democratic nominee for the presidency?—to invite him to Columbus during the club's banquet.

Jake Reichert, of the Franklin Park Floral Co., spent a week at Buckeye Lake with his wife and mother.

Ben Flynn is putting in some busy days on his motorcycle. J. M.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

With the exception of the last few warm days, we have enjoyed beautiful fall weather. The rain cooled the air and did a world of good to the stock outdoors. Carnations in the field improved wonderfully and greatly brightened the prospects for good bench stock. Asters took a jump for the better and showed marked improvement in length of stem. Stock is still scarce, however, and there is not nearly enough to go around. The present class of stock moves in larger quantities and is soon cleaned up. Gladioli seem to remain a little scarce and bring a good price. Peas are spasmodic, but have improved in quality during the last few days.

Various Notes.

The members of the club are now arranging for the annual picnic, which will be held sometime in August. Particulars will be stated later.

John Kramer, who was married a few weeks ago, has returned from the wilds of Canada, where he and his wife spent a pleasant honeymoon.

It is not known, as yet, just how many will attend the convention, but a good representation is expected.

William Weber, of the William Scott Co., has been seriously ill for the last eight weeks. There has not been much sign of improvement to date, but the doctors look for a change for the better soon.

George McClure & Son report a good season for landscape work, and it is now necessary for them to carry a force of men through the summer.

William Ehman, of Corfu, was in town to visit the trade last week.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

C. Pearl Bethard, of the Ferncliff Floral Co., has purchased from Charles W. Unglaub the greenhouses until recently operated by the latter on West Mulberry street in growing for the local retail trade.

The houses opposite the entrance to Ferncliff cemetery will necessarily have to be abandoned, owing to the fact that the land will be required for the park extension project, and other suitable land is not now available near the cemetery.

The houses purchased aggregate 14,000 square feet of glass and are equipped with a Kroeschell boiler and hot water system. Mr. Bethard will embark in a line of growing in a measure new to the Springfield market in that he will make a specialty of propagating carnation and chrysanthemum cuttings, which he will dispose of in a wholesale way both locally and in the out-of-town markets. Mr. Bethard has had an ample experience in this and other lines of floral work and will doubtless make good in this chosen line of endeavor.

Mr. Unglaub will hereafter devote his entire attention to his large range of glass on Hillside avenue, where he has fourteen acres of land and abundant latitude to expand. His product at these houses consists of carnations, chrysanthemums, greens and a general line of stock for the local retail trade.

Ge Dale.

Woodbine, Ia.—The Woodbine Floral Co. had the decorations for the Chautauqua here, and carried out a porch box effect on the front and sides of the stage. Notwithstanding that they were badly frozen out in January, the spring business was good. Mums and carnations are all benched, and they are ready for another winter's run.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Now that the daily supply of asters and gladioli is on the increase, conditions for the buyers are a little more satisfactory. Roses are coming in more freely and, with a good supply of lilies, all orders can again be filled. Business continues to be good; consequently there is nothing left worth mentioning.

Various Notes.

Gust Rusch, of Holton & Hunkel Co., is spending this week at Fox Lake. Then, on the advice of his physician, he will spend about three weeks on the farm.

John Arnold, on the Port Washington road, has the foundation completed for his new house, which will be large enough to accommodate another family besides his own. This necessitates the removal of the greenhouse which stood farthest north.

Roy Currie, of Currie Bros. Co., took to his cottage on Army Lake this week, to spend his vacation.

Nic Zweifel, who seldom misses an S. A. F. convention, planned his trip this year in the opposite direction. In company with Mrs. Zweifel, he left last week for a trip to Alaska, to be gone about six weeks.

With a good daily supply of roses from their own plant, the C. C. Pollworth Co. reports business as keeping up first-rate.

A neat sign in the window of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. reads: "During July and August, closed on Sundays." This is a step in the right direction.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Edlefsen and Richard Eilman returned July 28 from their western trip.

Visitors: H. E. Philpott, Chicago and Winnipeg; Miss Anna Meyer, manager of the Capital City Greenhouses store, Madison; J. F. Harrell, Manistee, Mich., and Mrs. Maetzold, Red Wing, Minn.

E. O.

Canandaigua, N. Y.—Edward Sick is doing finely. He recently purchased a square of ground adjoining his snug plant and is figuring on more glass to accommodate his nursery business.

Tyler, Tex.—Jas. Whitten reports that trade has been good this year, although June was hotter than for many years previous. It has rained nearly every day since July 5, however, and prospects for a good fall trade are excellent.

Clematis Paniculata, strong from 4-in. pots, $10.00 per 100; 3-in. pots, $5.00 per 100.

Nephrolepis Whitmani, Scholzeli and Exaltata, 4-in. pots, $2.00 per dozen; 5-in. pots, $3.00 per dozen.

Asparagus Sprengeri, 2½-in. pots, $3.00 per 100; 3-in. pots, $4.00 per 100.

Asparagus Plumosus, 2-in. pots, $2.00 per 100.

Smilax, 2-in. pots, $2.00 per 100.

Asparagus Sprengeri, 2-in. pots, $2.00 per 100.

REMEMBER

Araucarias Are Our Specialty

We have them by the thousands—front, sides, back, everywhere.

Araucarias! Araucarias!! Araucarias!!!

Fresh and Green.

No one can beat us in this line.

WARNING.

DON'T BE DECEIVED! Now, as well as for the last 25 years, we hold the ground as leaders in the importing, growing and shipping of our specialty, the Araucaria.

The Home of Araucarias.

ARAUCARIAS. 6000 just received per Steamer Marquette from Antwerp, Belgium, more coming by next steamer. Araucaria Excelsa, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, palms, etc. Florists, you know we are leaders for the last 25 years in importing, growing and shipping this so well known evergreen decorative plant. The Araucaria, more in favor now than ever. Almost every florist knows our Araucarias, therefore no argument is needed for our goods. We know what our customers want and need, and have provided for them and set aside special specimen plants of the Spring Importation 1910. These specimen plants will stand the climate everywhere and are especially adapted for decorating lawns, porches, verandas, bungalows, private summer residences, hotels and boarding-houses at the seashore or elsewhere. Our prices are very low for fine stock.

Our so well-known Christmas Begonia Erfordii, a constant bloomer for the fall holidays, and during the whole winter is never without a flower; in light pink, pink, dark pink and turning gradually into a bright red (big trusses of flowers), 2½-in. pots, $5.00; 3-in., 8c; 4-in., 12c.

Just look! Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings, 6 to 7-in. pots, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 6 to 7 tiers, 25, 28, 30, 35 to 40 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50 each.

Araucaria Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6 to 7-in. pots, fine bushy plants, $1.25, $1.50 to $1.75.

Araucaria Excelsa, new importation, 5, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 2 to 3-year-old, 3, 4 to 5 tiers, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 to 20 inches high, 40c, 50c, 75c to $1.00.

Araucaria, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 5½ to 6-in. pots, $1.00 to $1.25.

Kentia Belmoreana, 4-in., 25c, 30c to 35c.

Kentia Belmoreana, 4-year-old, 26 to 28 inches high, $1.00 to $1.25; 4-year-old, 30 to 35 inches high, $1.50. Kentia Belmoreana, combination or made up of 3 plants, 3-year-old, 24 to 26 inches high, 75c to $1.00; 4-year-old, 26 to 28 inches high, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50.

Kentia Forsteriana, 4-year-old, 24 to 26 inches high, 75c to $1.00; 30 to 35 inches high, $1.50.

Cocos Weddelliana, made up of 3 plants, 4 to 5-in. pots, 30c, 40c to 50c; 3-in., 15c.

Areca Lutescens, 4-in., 25c.

Cycas Revoluta, Sago palm, genuine large leaf variety imported direct from Japan, 6 to 7-in. pots, from 5 to 15 leaves to a plant, 12c per leaf.

Ficus Elastica (Rubber Plant), 5½ to 6-in. pots, 35c, 40c and 50c each.

Asparagus Plumosus Nanus, 2-in., $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000; 3-in., $5.00 per 100; 4-in., 10c each.

3 HOUSES IN FERNS

Well grown in pots, not on benches.

Nephrolepis, Scottii, Scholzeli and Whitmani, 5½-in. pots, 30c, 40c and 50c. A good assortment.

Dish Ferns, good assortment, 2½-in. pots, $4.00 per 100.

Fern Balls, of our own importation from Japan, already started, 50c each.

Solanum Multiflorum, or Jerusalem Cherry, improved variety, 2½-in. pots, $3.00 per 100.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, 25c and 30c.

We have a late propagation of about 1000 Coleus Golden Bedder, and 500 each of Verschaffeltii and Queen Victoria, 2½-in. pots, at only, look, $1.50 per 100. Hurry up if you want them.

MITE ON CYCLAMEN LEAVES.

We are forwarding under separate cover three cyclamen leaves. They seem to be diseased. We have never grown any before. We ordered 100 to try them and they were in this condition when received. Will you kindly tell us what to do, or whether there is any hope of bringing them through?
A. W. F. & S.

The leaves are badly affected with mite, for which there is no certain cure. About every imaginable remedy has been tried for cyclamen mite, with but partial success. Constant sprayings with nicotine may relieve the trouble a little, or you might dip the whole plant, pot and all, in tobacco water, but when once the plants are badly attacked the best plan is to throw the whole batch away, as not only are the leaves deformed but the flowers also, and the plants will be unsalable.
C. W.

MEALY BUG ON BEGONIAS.

Will you kindly advise me as to keeping Lorraine begonias free from mealy bug? Are watering and light spraying overhead injurious? G. P.

Spraying will not injure the Lorraines. In fact, it is the only way in which you can clean out the bug. A spray nozzle, properly directed, should exterminate them. At this season it is rather dangerous to fumigate with hydrocyanic acid gas. This would kill the mealy bug, but unless a really cool night were selected the plants also would be likely to suffer. C. Greenhouse Heating.

CONTRARY to expectations, the price of Pocahontas coal has gone up instead of down. It is now quite a little higher than it was two weeks ago. Even higher prices are to be expected.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each article advertised in this department of The Review is good, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

GAS OR COAL AS FUEL?

Is gas for fuel a success in growing plants? Would gas at 25 cents per thousand feet be cheaper than three-quarter Goshen coal at $2.60 per ton? We burn three cars of this coal during the firing period each year in this Ohio climate. What is a fair price to pay for gas? H. & C.

While gas is fatal to plants if allowed to get into the houses, it can be used to good advantage if care is taken to prevent the gas from coming in contact with the plants. At the prices named, coal would be cheaper than gas so far as their heating value is concerned, but if the cost of stoking is considered the gas will be less expensive. Gas can seldom be obtained for less than 25 cents per thousand feet.

STEAM FOR FIVE HOUSES.

Please inform us how many 2-inch flows and 1-inch returns will be required to heat a house 17x65 feet and eleven feet to the ridge, with a double board wall on one side and house No. 2 on the other side, to 60 degrees in zero weather. How many 2-inch flows and 1-inch returns will heat No. 2, 17x65, eleven feet to the ridge and protected on both sides by Nos. 1 and 3, to 55 degrees in zero weather? How many 2-inch flows and 2-inch returns will heat No. 3, 17x50 and eleven feet to the ridge, with a board wall on one side, to 48 degrees in zero weather? How many 2-inch flows and 2-inch returns will heat house No. 4, 22x98 and eleven feet to the ridge, with twenty-two inches of glass in the side wall and house No. 5 on the other side, to 52 degrees in zero weather? How many 2-inch flows and 2-inch returns will heat No. 5, 22x65 and twelve feet to the ridge, with a double board wall are all satisfied with the results it has given, and many duplicate orders is the proof. This Valve will maintain a steady pressure on the low side, no matter how the initial pressure fluctuates. By carrying 40 or 50 pounds pressure on the boiler and setting the valve to carry 5 or 10 pounds on the line, you always have a reserve to fall back on in case of a sudden drop in temperature. Our new catalogue is just out and if you contemplate making any changes you had better get one—it is yours for the asking.

on one side and house No. 4 on the other side, to 60 degrees in zero weather? All these houses have glass in one end to within three feet of the ground. We shall use low pressure steam for heating. Our location is southern Indiana. M. A. B.

For house No. 1 use two 2-inch flows and six 1-inch returns. In house No. 2 use two 2-inch flows and five or six 1-inch returns. Using 2-inch pipe for returns as well as flows in house No. 3, two flows and three returns will be required. Two 2-inch flows and four 2-inch returns will be required in house No. 4. There should be two 2-inch flows and five 2-inch returns in house No. 5. It will not be necessary to use anything larger than 2½-inch flow pipes for any of the houses.

RETURNING THE CONDENSATION.

We have an old-style heating system, with a wet return and with no checks on the lines, and should like to know about installing a trap. It is a gravity system, with the boiler in a pit. Would a check on the main return to the boiler work? We have 20,000 feet of glass and should like to know what size of trap would be needed. L. B.

If there is any difficulty about returning the water to the boiler by the gravity system, a steam trap should be installed. It is always well to have a check valve on the main return when several houses are heated from one boiler. As to the size of trap you would need, the various forms of traps differ in their capacities. It will be well to consult the manufacturers who are advertising in The Review. In writing to them, state your amount of radiating surface and the steam pressure carried.

PIPING AN OHIO RANGE.

I am building a greenhouse, seventy-five feet long and twenty-nine feet two inches wide. I wish you would kindly inform me how to heat it, using hot water. About one-half of the stock will be benched, the rest on the ground. I have a boiler 10x4x8, containing thirty-six 3½-inch flues. Would it be advisable to cut some of the flues out, closing them from the inside with hard-wood plugs, slightly tapered? This house will need a temperature of 50 degrees at night.

I have also three other houses, already built, but the piping in them does not give satisfactory results. One of them, 20x75, is piped with two 3-inch flows and ten 2-inch returns. Another is a small house, ten feet by thirty-eight feet nine inches, and seven feet high. For it a 2-inch flow is taken from one of the 3-inch pipes in the house 20x75; it contains five 1¼-inch flows and three 1½-inch returns. The temperature in this house went as low as 40 degrees last winter. The third house is thirty-three feet ten inches by thirty-four feet six inches, and ten feet high. It is piped as follows: Twenty-eight 1-inch pipes, connected with a 2-inch manifold and a 2-inch pipe to the boiler. This house requires a temperature of 50 degrees at night. The small house should have a temperature of 60 degrees at night.

E. S.

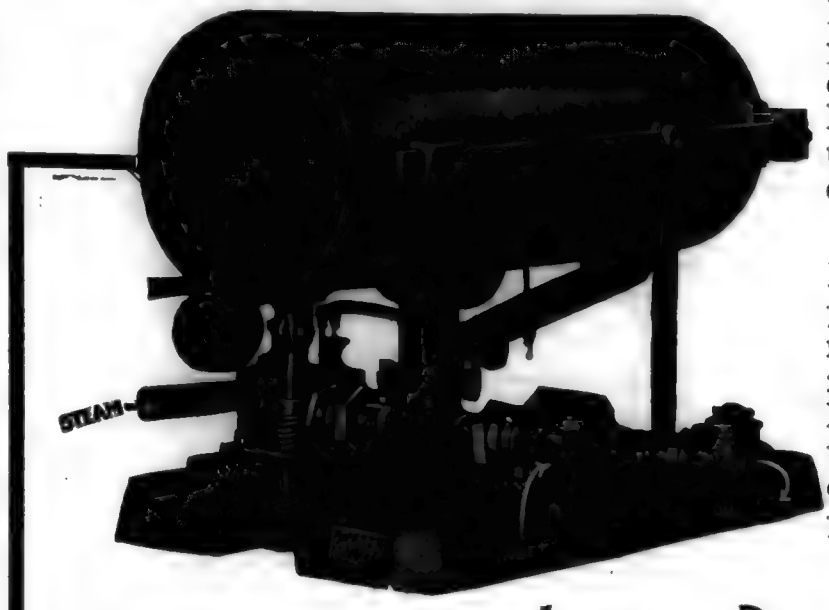
For the new house, twenty-nine feet two inches wide, use two 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns. The boiler should heat all of the houses easily. Not only should all of the flues be kept open, but it would be better if the steam space were filled with flues also. The plan suggested would be dangerous.

The amount of radiation in the other houses is about right, but in the house thirty-eight feet nine inches long it would be better to use two 2-inch flows, with three 1½-inch and three 1¼-inch returns. In the house thirty-three feet ten inches by thirty-four feet six inches, use two 2½-inch flows and either eighteen 1½-inch or fifteen 2-inch returns.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Two or three good, soft rains, lasting for several hours each, have resulted in material improvement in vegetation throughout this state and everthing is showing to better advantage than a fortnight ago, but the growth had been seriously retarded and the various crops will be two or more weeks late.



Carnations are practically out of the local market and the few that are seen are poor. Asters are coming in slowly and are in fair supply, whites being rather short. They bring 1 to 2 cents at wholesale. Gladioli are becoming more popular every year, principally in the light shades. A fine strain of deep red was offered the last fortnight, but practically went begging. Roses have sold better this summer than in many years, ranging from 1 to 8 cents at wholesale. Whites have been scarce, but an improvement is noted.

Various Notes.

A horticultural society has been formed at Greystone and plans are already under way for a flower show Saturday, September 9, with liberal premiums. It is also expected that the executive committee will arrange a series of lectures on gardening during the coming winter. The officers of the new association are as follows: President, Edward Hodgson; vice-president, Samuel Wood; treasurer, John Briggs; secretary, Thomas Brook; executive

Use Kroeschell Boilers and Kroeschell Generators and Piping System; Satisfaction Guaranteed

Received your inquiry of the 9th inst. in regard to Kroeschell Generator purchased from you. We can safely say that without your Generator it would be almost impossible to heat our houses with any degree of safety, as our expansion tank is but 18 inches above the highest pipe line, and we had no trouble whatever in keeping the required temperature during the recent cold spell, with the thermometer at 12° below zero. We are glad of the opportunity to recommend your Generator, Boiler and Piping Plans to our fellow florists, knowing that when placed as directed, they will give perfect satisfaction. We did our own piping, and none of us had ever had any experience in that line before. Which Result will YOU Show Next Easter?

Use Our GIBLIN "STANDARD" GREENHOUSE BOILER

Will It Cost You $260 or $1200?

¶ Study our illustrations—see how a certain greenhouse man paid $260.00 for his boiler and fuel during the winter—while his neighbor tried to save money by buying a "cheap" (?) boiler and sank $1200.00.

The man who spent $260.00 used our GIBLIN "Standard" Greenhouse Boiler.

It is the biggest saver you can put into your greenhouse.

You save money every year you use our GIBLIN "Standard" Greenhouse Boiler, by reducing your fuel consumption, repairs and labor cost to the minimum.

Not a "Cheap" Outfit

Although we offer an extra discount of 25 per cent (in addition to our liberal regular discount), for the purpose of introducing our boiler in your neighborhood, this is not a "cheap" outfit. The price is right for the grade and quality of workmanship we put into it—the very best.

You want a boiler that requires very little attention and leaves you free to devote your valuable time to more important things. Neither you nor your men relish getting up at midnight, 3 a. m. and sunrise to feed a hungry heater.

The GIBLIN "Standard" requires attention only once in twelve hours in ordinary weather.

It economizes on repairs because of its unusually sturdy construction. All of the castings are tested at pressure of 65 pounds to the square inch—far more than they will ever undergo in actual use. Our boiler will last a lifetime, and once you've bought it your heating worries are off your mind for once and all. Can you say the same about your present boiler?

¶ Wouldn't it pay you to "scrap" the outfit you now have and start saving by using a GIBLIN "Standard"?

The Three Main Burnham Economy Points

THE CROSS FIRE TRAVEL between each section leads the burning gases to the side flue openings between each section on each side of the boiler. This travel, because of its greatly increased surfaces, is a large factor in the Burnham's economy.

THE SIDE FLUE OPENINGS lead the burning gases up between each section on each side of the boiler, making each section equally efficient. We know of no other greenhouse boiler made this way. Boilers with the flue openings at the back cause the burning gases to draw to the rear of boiler, leaving the front section very much less efficient. It's the direct heat coming directly in contact with the direct fire surfaces that counts. That's the Burnham's way.

THE BACK AND FORTH FIRE TRAVEL in the Burnham is three times back and forth the boiler's length. Think of it—three times its length! And still the draft is quick and the boiler is a free burner. This feature alone gives the Burnham a large number more square feet of surface than the next best boiler in the field. It's the long fire travel that counts. The longer the fire travel, the shorter the coal bill. No cast iron greenhouse boiler has as long a fire travel as the Burnham.

CAUTION Do not be led astray by any concern who claim their boiler has a three times back and forth fire travel like the Burnham. It's not so! Their three times travel is in all the boiler, while the Burnham's is three times on each side—really six times in all, figuring their way.

A BIT OF ADVICE You know just as well now as a month from now that you need a new boiler. Then why don't you order it now? What's the use of waiting till the last minute and then expecting us to turn over heaven and earth to deliver it P. D. Q.? Order it now and we will test it up now—pack the parts now, mark up the sections now and set it aside now—all ready for delivery by the very day you want it.

That's the common-sense way.

Do it that way!

AN OPPORTUNITY will be yours at the Baltimore Convention to see this very boiler. Go and do it. Throw all the stones you want to at it. After you are through, listen to what the man in charge will have to say in a quiet, "true-as-preaching" way. Anything he says is so, and the boiler will back up his say-so. We stand behind the boiler with over a half a century of backing.

The Market.

There has been no change in trade conditions since last week. Stock may have been a little more plentiful, but good flowers are still scarce.

Various Notes.

Quite a number of people are away on vacations.

George Marshall, of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., is on a farm in Butler county.

James Higgins, of Mrs. E. A. Williams' force, with his wife and a number of friends, is taking the lake trip to Duluth.

Vacation notes of Randolph & McClements' force: Miss McKinley is visiting friends at Niles, O.; Murray McGrew and wife are in New York state; John Madden goes to Canada; Ed Weaver will visit Cleveland, Buffalo and the Thousand Islands; Miss Foster, the cashier, will take an auto tour to Conneaut, Buffalo and Niagara, and will spend the balance of her time at Georgian Bay.

A. W. Smith, Jr., spends his week ends with his family at the Assembly grounds, Chautauqua.

W. B. Hall, of A. W. Smith Co., takes his vacation at Delmar Farms. Billy Arnold, of the same firm, is spending his at the Pittsburg baseball park.

W. A. Clarke and family are at Chautauqua Lake.

Ed McCallum has been taking week-end trips wherever there is water.

Harry Langhans, of H. L. Blind & Bros., is spending his time on the lakes.

The Florists' Club picnic committee has announced the date as Tuesday, August 8, at Keystone park, on the B. & O. railroad. The committee is making such arrangements as will guarantee all a good time, and as more than the usual amount of interest is being taken, no one should miss it.

The florists' baseball clubs have been busy. The A. W. Smith team defeated the Cut Flower Co. team July 25, 20 to 3. The McCallum Co. team defeated the A. W. Smiths July 27, 6 to 4. The Randolph & McClements store team defeated the greenhouse team, 13 to 2. The team of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co. defeated the Randolph & McClements team July 28, 10 to 6. The clubs all have games arranged for next week and then look out for the big games at the picnic.

Candidates for the convention are slow in showing up. The B. & O. railroad rate is $13.05 for the round trip, which includes the charge for validating the ticket at Baltimore. Tickets will be on sale from August 11 to 16, good until August 22, with stop-over privileges at Harpers Ferry and Washington. Trains leave Pittsburg at 8:10 a. m., 1:15 p. m., 6 p. m. and 10 p. m. Those going will please notify the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., as it is desired to have the party travel together and a special car can be secured if twenty-five or more are going.

"HAMILTON-MADE" GREENHOUSE HOSE

What our mark on hose means

"Hamilton-Made" means superior quality in general and one thing in particular. The "one thing in particular" is this:

On every length of "Hamilton-Made" hose you will notice a mark not found on any other hose—"Guaranteed 750 pounds pressure," or 700 or 500, etc., according to the grade. On our "Hamilton" brand every length has been tested under pressure of 750 pounds to the square inch. Any piece showing defect is rejected. 750 pounds is five times the usual pressure in steam boilers. Think of it! Do you wonder that this hose is strong; that it is stiff and will not kink?

"Hamilton" brand, our highest grade hose, selling at 25 cents a foot, will last three to five years under ordinary greenhouse use; it will stand three or four times as much wear as common hose. As often happens, the high grade is the cheapest.

Under the same brands and of the same excellent qualities, we make Hose for Suction, for Steam Service and for Spraying.

All made especially for the service to be done and satisfaction guaranteed.

Here are some of the leading grades of "Hamilton-Made" Greenhouse Hose. Note that every label bears the words "HAMILTON-MADE"

How to get the best hose that is made

SOME jobbers in Florists' Supplies do not sell the highest-grade Greenhouse hose. They argue that everybody wants low-priced hose. We know better, for we know that our stiff, strong, tough "HAMILTON" brand hose is really the cheapest of all, and that many wise buyers will be glad to get it. We therefore make this offer to all who cannot buy it of a dealer:

If your dealer does not keep it, we will deliver to you anywhere in the United States, PREPAID, 50-foot lengths of ¾-inch "HAMILTON" brand, our highest grade Greenhouse hose, complete with standard brass couplings, for the regular price, $12.50 EACH LENGTH.

This splendid hose stands a pressure of 750 pounds to the square inch, and while it is our highest-priced Greenhouse hose, it lasts so long that it is really the cheapest hose made.

If hose of such extremely high resistance is not required, we will send ¾-inch KENMORE (guaranteed 650 pounds) at $10.50, or ¾-inch CYGNET (500 pounds) at $8.00 for 50-foot lengths. Shipped same day order is received.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

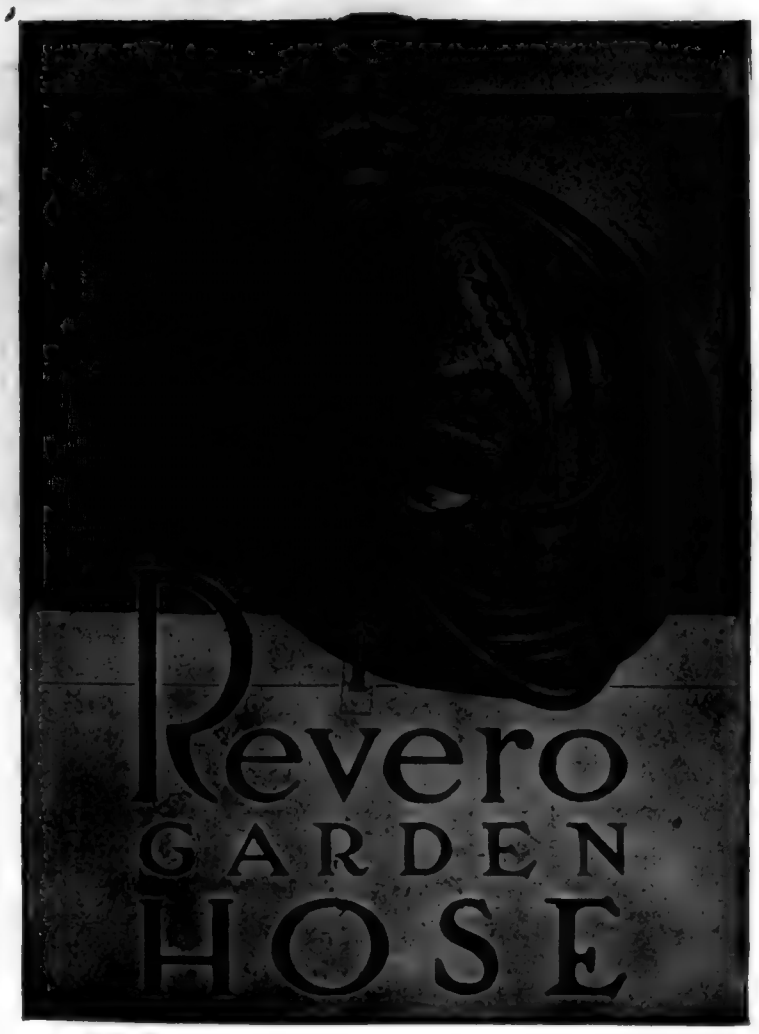
CUCUMBERS IN FRAMES.

Please give cultural directions for growing cucumbers in hotbeds and coldframes, when started in the greenhouse April 1. C. A. P.



Get them into 4-inch pots before placing them in the frames. Add plenty of well rotted manure to the soil in the frames, as cucumbers are gross feeders. A couple of plants are sufficient for each sash. Keep abundantly watered and close up early in the afternoon, with plenty of moisture. After June 1 the sashes can be removed, or as early as you get warm, settled weather. You can hardly overwater the plants, and liquid manure in addition is helpful. Pinch the plants once or twice while the shoots are yet young, to make them branch. For green or black fly, spray with tobacco water or scatter tobacco dust freely among them. The foregoing instructions refer to the White Spine variety of cucumber. The long English sorts must have sashes kept over them all the time and be well shaded. They will also need looking over once a week, so as to have shoots stopped and surplus growths removed. C. W.

NEW ORLEANS.

Claude L. Ory, the new president of the New Orleans Horticultural Society, is a native of this city, a stepson of the late H. Menard, who was one of the local pioneers among florists. At present he is manager of the estate, a wide-awake, hustling business man, well liked by his colleagues and by all who come in contact with him.

Miss Katie Rehm, one of our best floral artists, accompanied by her nieces, the Misses Maitre, Florella and Nola Virgin, left recently for a month's stay at Asheville, N. C.

C. W. Eichling left the city July 20 for a month's stay in one of the mountain resorts near Asheville, N. C.

Richard Steckler and family, accompanied by Miss Edna Steckler, eldest daughter of Joseph Steckler, have returned from an extensive business and pleasure trip to Milwaukee, Chicago, New York and Philadelphia.

A visit by the writer to the immense grounds of the Metairie Ridge Nursery proved to be a highly interesting one. Under the personal guidance of the president of the company, Harry Papworth, the newly planted rose houses were first visited. The large stock, comprising the best standard varieties, is in a perfect condition. Several hundred novelties are planted for trial. Harry Dressel, the grower, deserves much credit for his skill and arduous work. Next came several houses of chrysanthemums, among which was a new collection from E. D. Smith, of Adrian, Mich. Finer stock would be hard to find in this section. A large lot of poinsettia cuttings was newly potted, and several thousand cuttings of various shrubs were rooting. Palms, ferns, crotons and other foliage plants are in a fine condition. The same can be said of the entire outdoor stock, such as roses, shrubbery, trees, etc. Several thousand oranges, grafted lately on Citrus trifoliata, are doing finely. Several large beds were planted with Lilium Harrisii and L. giganteum for outdoor cultivation, and there is no doubt that good results will follow, because it has been proven of late that both varieties acclimatize here without failure.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.

The first annual outing of the Westchester and Fairfield Society took place at the Bonnie Brae Inn, July 26. Under a perfectly clear sky, conducted by a most efficient committee and feasted on the best of everything, the lucky participants passed a day that will be long and pleasantly remembered.

The football match, won by Westchester with a score of 5 to 1, was a most exciting event. The tug of war went to Fairfield, rope and all.

The participants in the other events were:

100-yard dash—W. Whitton, T. Aitchison, A. Possehl.
Running high jump—Whitton, T. Hobbs, A. Patterson.
Hammer-throw—A. Geddes (92 ft.), Whitton, Hobbs.
Potato race—A. Geddes, A. Wynne, A. Nichol.
Running long jump—Whitton, Possehl, Hobbs.
Putting the shot—Whitton, Aitchison, Hobbs.
Mile race—Whitton, Possehl, W. Goodall.
Three-legged race—Whitton-Edmundson, Nichol-Goodall, Peterson-Aitchison.
Fat men's race—T. Wade, J. Stuart, McArdle.
Commercial men's race—G. Edmundson, G. Baldwin.
Tug-of-war, commercial men vs. gardeners—Won by gardeners.

A most elaborate dinner was served, doing credit to Manager T. Wade. Lack of time prevented many visitors being heard from; namely, the jovial Rickard; McTaggart, as happy as ever; Shaw, in all his glory, minus his mustache; Ebel, Marshall, Boddington and many more.

Thanks to the great work of President J. Stuart and the committee, Messrs. A. Geddes, R. Williamson, T. Burns, McArdle and T. Aitchison, as well as the caterer, T. Wade, this first turn-out of the society was a great success. O. E. A.

NORTHERN INDIANA FLORISTS.

At the annual meeting of the Northern Indiana Florists' Association, held July 20 at Winona Lake, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—J. D. Conner, Jr., Wabash.
Vice-president—Harry White, North Manchester.
Secretary and Treasurer—A. J. Wagoner, Columbia City.

It was decided that the fall meeting and flower show would be held in Fort Wayne.

Marquette, Mich. — An additional house, 21x115, has been completed at the Negaunee Greenhouses. The new building is the same both in size and design as the other houses in the range. The work of construction was done by Andrew Lindquist, a local contractor.

This is but one of the examples of the way the Skinner System of Irrigation gets maximum efficiency out of your soil

Another Instance—John R. Davis, Bartow, Fla., says: "On every plot that has been installed, the first crop has paid more than twice the cost of the entire system.

Again — (From the U. S. Department of Agricultural Bulletins, No. 167.) Henry A. Dreer, of Philadelphia, showed a gain of $750.00 from 1 and 1-10 acres of flowers and strawberries after he installed irrigation.

Can you afford to be without the Skinner System?

Send Postal for These books

Investigate this wonderful new irrigation today. It will mean double the crops with one-third the labor—with no risk from drought.

The spray from the Skinner System descends in a mist form—cannot cake the ground, or bruise the tenderest foliage. It is a perfect rainfall—under your absolute control at all times.

Write today for these six, free books. They contain complete information on modern irrigation methods—both greenhouse and outdoor, and letters of praise from Growers and Florists all over the country. Write today to

THE WEEKLY FLORISTS' REVIEW

CAXTON BUILDING

508 South Dearborn Street

CHICAGO

Advertising forms close

TUESDAY

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

New Orleans, La.—H. C. Doescher is successor to Doescher & Jones, M. M. Jones having retired.

Charleston, W. Va.—J. M. Alexander lost most of his office equipment by fire July 8.

Ionia, Mich.—Harvey E. Kidder, president of the Ionia Pottery Co., says the business of the last season considerably exceeded its predecessors and that trade is opening well for the next season.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

YOU'LL AGREE.

You'll agree, says a man who visits retail florists, that competition has always been the mainspring and backbone of progress in most lines of business. Not so with the florists—not at all—for the simple reason that florists take great pride in their well kept surroundings, which is an indication of progressiveness.

It is and always has been a noticeable fact throughout the country that through the present and recent summer months advantage has been taken of the opportunity of renovating and brightening the stores and greenhouses, not only in the cities but in the smaller towns, and in a majority of cases you will find the flower stores the prettiest, not only on the outside but in the interior, of all the stores in the town.

THE WREATH.

The wreath on the easel is a popular form of design in the south, and the piece shown in the illustration was made in the store of Hugh Seales, City Hall building, Birmingham, Ala., by H. A. Slawsen, a graduate of retail stores at Utica, N. Y.

A FEW SUMMER WINDOWS.

A Column Decked with Ageratums.

Set together, as one, four columns such as may have been used for the dahlia window described in a previous article on this same subject, or use one large, round column. Such a column may be easily manufactured, with a circular piece of wood for the top and bottom and possibly one for the middle. Around the edges nail laths or strips lengthwise. Cover the skeleton column with several layers of cheesecloth, stretched tight.

On the top of the column place a round basket of blue ageratums and long, light smilax sprays. From the same point suspend a group of smaller ageratum baskets with hangers of No. 5 or No. 7 ribbon, to match the color of the flowers. Let the group be irregularly arranged, some of the baskets hanging low, some high and others at different points between and well around the column, but more toward the top. Set the column in a field of marguerites, either potted plants or cut blooms.

A Pond Bordered by Gladioli.

That gladioli seldom receive the appreciation which they deserve is due to the poor arrangement so often given them. How many times they are to be seen crowded into jars where not even one complete stalk can be seen, all colors together, no respect paid to the differences between scarlet and crimson or salmon and violet pink! No wonder these royal beauties refuse to look pleasant. The next insult heaped upon them is that of cluttering them with any kind of finely cut foliage, altogether at variance with their own sword-like leaves.

What, then, will be a creditable showing for this queenly flower? Whatever else is done or not done, give it space. One of its ideal settings is water with a few stones. Lay out the window so that gladioli will appear to be growing near the edge of a pond. One extra fine specimen can be seen first, beside a great rock, and afterward a troop of them, with carefully blended colors, the group broadening as the space will allow. This arrangement is one of the ways which can easily be fixed up with a cement underfloor. If the pond can not be provided, use a mirror instead. Cover the edges with moss and gravel and allow a few stalks of the gladioli to lean over and reflect themselves. This will relieve any stilted look which may have crept in. Have a few cat-tails, rushes or coarse grass blades among the gladioli, on the edge of the pond.

side of the stump. Over toward a far side of the window make a long panel border of the zinnias in free attitudes. One of those mantel pans suggested some time ago will be just the thing for this panel. For the groundwork lay on a layer of bark of the same kind as is found in the basket or stump.

A Hillside of Phlox.

Your window may be a hillside of phlox for a week or so. According to the size and shape of the window, raise a knoll by packing moss around a large jar of phlox and several other jars set around conveniently, either to the rear or on the opposite side from the mirror, so that the rise will be reflected. Plant the rise and the space below with similar jars of phlox, having the stalks well separated, and cover the moss with green to look like grass. Introduce some tall grasses here and there. Here, again, occurs the advantage of a double floored window, for all these schemes can be set below the line of the glass and there the pots and jars will be safely out of view. Leave a half concealed path through from the rear, so that one may reach any part of the window without walking over the decoration or pulling it out. Quite an assortment of colors can be introduced, so long as they continue harmonious, but let the colors be carefully graded and unequally proportioned. Break the uniformity of the stretch by a fine specimen fern or Sprengeri.

BASEBALL FOR PUBLICITY.

One of the unusual ways of advertising a flower store is that adopted by Kingsley & Seeger, at St. Louis, who are proprietors of the business known as the Mullanphy Florist. They uniform a baseball team to carry the store name. It is quite a common practice in the larger cities for business concerns that cater to the trade of young men to back teams to carry the firm's name on the baseball diamonds of the city and surrounding towns. Frequently a big bank or other business house will supply uniforms to a baseball nine composed ostensibly of employees, but really including outsiders, but so far as known this is the first time a florist has sought this kind of publicity. Kingsley & Seeger invested $150 in the attractive suits for their team, decorating the shirt fronts with the trademark style of name used on all their business stationery. The manager, of course, is close to the firm and the players are required to store its uniform with the team's backers, who keep them clean and neat, so that they can be protected from loss and also can see to it that the team is a creditable representative.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

French Bulbs.

Roman hyacinths and Paper White narcissi are among the bulbs due shortly to arrive. These are useful, especially when the chrysanthemum season is on the wane. It is easy to flower Paper Whites for Thanksgiving if they are placed in flats as soon as received, and Roman hyacinths, while they do not flower quite so early, can be bloomed without trouble for Christmas. Flats containing four to five inches of soil should be used for these French bulbs. It is commonly said that any old soil is good enough for bulbs. Do not believe any such nonsense. If you want good bulbs of any kind, you must have new compost, with sufficient food in it to supply the roots with what they need. Two parts of loam, one part of old, well-decayed cow or horse manure and some sharp sand make a good compost. Where mushrooms are grown, the old material can take the place of the other manures named.

Mignonette.

Early in August the early sowing of mignonette can be made; either solid beds or raised benches will answer. If the latter are used, be sure there are no heating pipes below, for mignonette loves a cool, moist bottom. A compost such as is used for carnations or mums will grow excellent mignonette. If the soil has been in the benches for some time and has been scratched over two or three times to kill out weak seedlings, so much the better. It is important to have a first-class strain of seed, such as is offered by a number of the leading seedsmen. Do not sow ordinary seed, or the spikes will not be what you would like to see. Sow the seed several together in little batches, fourteen or fifteen inches apart each way. It is easy to thin them out later, leaving the strongest.

The first spikes thrown up by mignonette do not amount to much and they come too early to be of any commercial value. Pinch them back when the flowers start to open. This causes the plants to branch out from near the ground, and these shoots will give strong spikes through the early part of the winter. The finest mignonette spikes are always produced in the coldest months, and February sees this plant at its best. Mignonette must have a cool house; 40 degrees at night should be the winter minimum, and it wants all possible light and plenty of water at the roots.

Rambler Roses.

Pot-grown ramblers will now have long, strong canes. These are the plants par excellence for early forcing. The pots should be plunged, the shoots staked up and the plants located where the hose can be freely used among them. Where stock is being grown planted out, it will also pay to give it a little care. The pink ramblers have a prostrate habit under natural conditions. In order to ripen up the wood well, therefore, a stout stake should be driven into the ground for each plant and the best shoots loosely tied up to it. Many plants make far too many shoots, and as four to five are all that is necessary, it is better to cut out all the weaker ones. The ideal way to grow these ramblers is alongside a lightly constructed fence, so that the shoots can be tied up and get the full benefit of sunshine, air and light, to insure hard, well-ripened wood.

Transplanting Seedlings.

August is an excellent month for the transplanting of many seedlings. We usually are favored with showers at intervals and every advantage should be taken of such occasions to prick out seedlings of such plants as digitalis, hollyhocks, Canterbury bells, larkspur, aquilegias, lupines, rockets, coreopsis, gaillardias, sweet williams and any other hardy perennials or biennials, which should go out in beds or nursery rows, and which, when kept constantly cultivated, will make a really surprising growth before the end of October. Place the strong growing varieties, which include hollyhocks, rockets, coreopsis and gaillardias, a foot part; six to eight inches will suffice for the majority of the other varieties. No florist will go far wrong in stocking up heavily on this class of plants, as the demand for them is ever on the increase.

COLD STORAGE LILIES.

What treatment shall I give cold storage bulbs of giganteum and other lilies? N. N.

After potting, place the pots in a dark position, such as a cellar floor, where no sun will reach them. If no cellar is at disposal, a shed or cold-frame will answer well. If a frame is used, cover the pots with board shutters. Water well after potting, then more sparingly until the pots are nicely filled with roots. When the growths are three to four inches long, the plants may be put on a bench in a house with a winter minimum temperature of 65 degrees. Giganteums do not succeed well under cool treatment, but Formosas and speciosums can be grown well 10 degrees cooler. C. W.

STOCK FOR PARK BEDDING.

In an interesting paper read before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, August 1, Xavier E. Schmitt gave some surprising figures as to the quantity of bedding stock used in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia. His subject was "Park Gardening," and, among other things, he said:

"We grow for the bedding in Fairmount park the following plants:

Geraniums in eight varieties, John Doyle, J. S. Clippard, S. A. Nutt, Gass Pink, Chicago Seedling, La Favorite, Mrs. Landry and Mme. Salleroi for edging	22,700
Coleus in four varieties, Verschaffeltii, Golden Verschaffeltii, Queen Victoria and Golden Bedder	9,995
Ageratum Douglas	1,414
Alternanthera brilliantissima Prospect Park and aurea nana	47,030
Echeveria atrosanguinea, imbricata, bracteosa, metallica, rosacea and globosa extensa	11,647
Sedum aureum	6,800
Eranthemum atropurpureum	3,661
Abutilon	1,590
Acalypha tricolor	3,850
Stevia serrata variegata	3,053
Salvia Mrs. Page	3,419
Crotons	923
Centaurea delicatissima	4,987
Cannas Mme. Crozy, Souv. de Antoine Crozy, King Humbert, Richard Wallace, Duke of Marlborough and Florence Vaughan	6,100
Pansies	9,129
Bellis perennis	1,185
Chrysanthemums	4,000
Tulips, planted at Horticultural Hall	79,550
Miscellaneous bulbs for forcing	4,300
Tulips planted in other parts	56,370
The list of other stock is too long to state here, so I will only give the total	324,729

"It has been our aim to have as much variety as possible and we find that oftentimes a small group gives a great deal of pleasure to the public, things that are not met with in the ordinary lines of the trade."

ANNUAL LUPINES FOR WINTER.

What soil, temperature and general treatment do the annual lupines need for winter blooming? W. M. R.

The annual pink lupines, sown now, will be in flower for Christmas. The varieties of mutabilis take longer and would be better in January and February. If you sow the latter in October, they will give a fine crop in March, the spikes then being much stronger than in winter. A night temperature of 45 to 48 degrees and a compost of two parts loam and one part well rotted cow manure are to their liking. Never grow them at all close, or they will damp off. Grow cool and airy for best results. C. W.

ANTIRRHINUMS.

Can you give me any information about the culture of snapdragons, or antirrhinums? Where can I get some plants? J. E. B.

Antirrhinums, or snapdragons, as they are commonly called, are becoming increasingly popular each year for forcing purposes. They have for many years been recognized as valuable for bedding-out purposes, and anyone who has seen them growing at Bar Harbor or any of the other popular Maine watering places, or along the Massachusetts north shore, must admit that they are among the most effective of bedding-out plants for massing effects, and when kept supplied with water they bloom practically the whole summer. Most of these plants are raised from seed, but, to be absolutely sure of the color, specially fine sorts are propagated from cuttings.

If you wish to grow snapdragons under glass for winter or spring flowering, you will find them an excellent and profitable crop to follow chrysanthemums, or to fill any empty benches any time between October and April. For early flowering, through November and December, it is necessary to bench the plants about the end of August. For this purpose you should purchase plants from some one of the specialists who advertise these plants in The Review. Secure plants, if possible, in 3-inch or 3½-inch pots. For later planting strong seedlings or rooted cuttings will do well. If you do not want to plant out before the end of the mum season, you can purchase seeds and get strong plants in 3-inch pots before that time. Buy only the tall-growing varieties and not in mixtures. You will find pink, pure white, yellow and scarlet the best sellers, probably in the order named.

For soil any compost, such as you would use for mums, roses, carnations or violets, will suit snapdragons. They will grow in a temperature anywhere from 40 to 50 degrees at night. I find thev do best with a minimum of 48 to 50 degrees in winter. Plant a foot apart each way if the stock was raised from cuttings. For plants from seed, which are a trifle more vigorous, 12x15 inches will answer. Pinch back the shoot as it pushes up to flower and allow four to five shoots to start from near the ground. Rub out all weak, useless growths. Three or four good spikes to a plant will pay you better than three times that number of inferior ones. Stake the plants to keep them erect and rub off the side growths on the flowering stems. Feed liberally when in active growth and spray or fumigate for green aphis, which is rather partial to these plants. Never, however, fumigate with hydrocyanic acid gas, as snapdragons are hurt by even a weak dose of it.

Antirrhinums make an excellent Memorial day crop and are a splendid crop to follow carnations with. By benching from 3½-inch pots at the end of March, you are sure of a splendid cut at the end of May. Always grow your plants in pots, rather than flats, as they and ten weeks' stocks are hard to lift with a ball of earth. C. W.

ORCHIDS

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Odontoglossum Grande.

While most of the odontoglossums, owing to our torrid summers, are difficult subjects to handle with any degree of satisfaction, the well known baby orchid, O. grande, succeeds quite well in an ordinary greenhouse. In summer it does particularly well hung near the glass below the ventilators. It seems to love an abundance of fresh air, but should not be exposed to the direct rays of the sun. The new bulbs are now being formed, and the plants, which grow especially well in small, well drained pans, must be liberally supplied with water. A suitable compost is one consisting of rather soft osmunda fiber, mixed with a little fresh chopped sphagnum. It is hardly safe to top-dress with growing sphagnum, as this makes an ideal lurking place for small shell snails and these will create havoc among the flower spikes when they appear, which will be in a few weeks' time.

Lycaste Skinneri.

Lycaste Skinneri is an old orchid and not often seen in good condition. It is of easy culture and, when reasonably well grown, is far superior to many of the newer and more costly varieties of orchids which are being constantly placed on the market. With cymbidiums and cypripediums, Lycaste Skinneri is the most lasting of orchids, as the flowers in winter will keep in good condition on the plants for from eight to twelve weeks. It is a terrestrial orchid and grows better in an equal mixture of fibrous loam and fern fiber than in one of pure fern fiber. Pots are the best receptacles to grow it in and a winter minimum temperature of 50 to 55 degrees will be found about right.

The plants are fine for room decorations and the flowers will not go to sleep, as is the wont of cattleyas and dendrobes in warm, dry rooms. While the old L. Skinneri is handsome, the pure white L. Skinneri alba is one of the most chaste of white orchids. I saw a recent photograph of a plant of the pure white form, carrying twelve and nineteen flowers, respectively, from two new bulbs. What a treasure such plants as these would be in winter where orchid flowers are in demand! This, however, is an old orchid. Nine growers out of ten do not know it, but, flowering as it does in February and March, it is worthy of a little more attention.

Miltonia Vexillaria.

Any necessary repotting for Miltonia vexillaria should have been completed before now. Keep the plants in a cool house, where they can be shaded by means of blinds or lath shadings from direct sunshine. Plenty of ventilation can be given night and day; only on cool nights need the ventilators be lowered at all. After repotting, watering must be done with extreme caution; otherwise the new roots, just starting, as well as the tender growths, may rot. Thrips are partial to miltonias; hence, in order to keep the plants absolutely clean, it is necessary to dip, sponge or spray them with a nicotine solution, fir tree oil or Aphine once a week. Do not spray them unless sure that the plants will be quite dry before night.

Trapping Cockroaches.

While fire heat is at its minimum, these gentry are less in evidence than in winter. They are in their element crawling near the steam and hot water pipes and I have never seen a house, cellar or pit too hot for them. Some new places do not know cockroaches, but will eventually make their acquaintance, as many of us have done years ago. They work at night, are extremely nimble-footed and not easy to catch. They are not easy to poison, but can be readily trapped by pouring a little molasses into wide mouthed jars and sinking the jars to the brim around their haunts. Stale bacon also acts as a powerful magnet for them. Once in the jars, they cannot escape and twenty or more may be caught in a jar in a single night.

I read not long ago an article by an orchid specialist who had been in the habit of staying up nights to try to kill cockroaches. He stated that he had only seen a single specimen dead from eating poison, but if he will try the jar method of capture he will be able to sleep nights and count cockroach corpses by scores. Summer is the time to destroy these roaches, for just as soon as we begin to apply fire heat their work of destruction begins.

STOCKS FOR WINTER BLOOM.

Will you inform me whether it is too late now to plant stock seed for winter blooming? C. G. J. & S.

Sow seed of giant ten weeks', White Column, Pink Column, Beauty of Nice, or any of the special varieties used for forcing purposes, about the end of August. Pot off singly when of sufficient size, and bench before the pots become too much matted with roots. Stocks are not a particularly profitable midwinter crop. The call for them is not robust and the plants themselves do not flower as they do in late winter or early spring. For Memorial day they are a splendid crop and they pay better then than at any other season. C. W.

REAPPRAISEMENTS.

The customs authorities have made the following reappraisements of interest to the trade:

Carnations

COAL ASHES IN BENCH SOIL.

Are finely sifted coal ashes, mixed in the soil, deleterious to plant life? I have a rather stiff soil to contend with and one much inclined to cake after watering. I have used the ashes in the same soil in the garden and noticed no ill effects, while as an agent for pulverizing the soil they have proved a success. Can I use them on the benches for the same purpose, without injury to the plants? I am using all the wood and tobacco stem ashes I can get, but the supply is limited. The carnations were planted about two months ago in the benches and I expect to have the house built and the glass over them in August. The soil, even in the open, shows a tendency to form green mold. Would you recommend the use of a certain amount of air-slaked lime, and, if so, how much?

W. S. C.

You will find the coal ashes not at all injurious to your plants, and, as you state in your letter, you will find them valuable in making your soil porous. Your experience with them in your garden should be a safe guide in this matter. I am inclined to think that if you get your soil more porous by adding the ashes, you will have no trouble with the green mold which is troubling you now. If, however, it does not disappear, you can safely use air-slaked lime. Sprinkle a handful halfway across a 5-foot bed, scratch it into the surface and then water it in well. A. F. J. B.

DEAD LEAVES AFTER BENCHING.

Enclosed you will find some leaves of newly set White Perfection carnation plants. The leaves begin drying at the tip and dry right back to the base. If you can give us any help on this we shall be obliged. M. & J.

The specimens forwarded showed no signs of disease, but appeared to have been badly stung by insects, such as thrips or aphis. The transferring to the houses might cause the leaves to dry more than they would if the plants were left undisturbed, but White Perfection is usually so clean a grower and is so easily reëstablished that we are surprised to see any such trouble unless the plants were badly mishandled. Two weeks ago we planted a bed of about 2,000 plants of this variety, and there are practically no dead leaves on them—at least not enough to make it necessary to clean them before putting on the supports.

I would advise you to pick off the dead leaves, as they would decay later and possibly cause leaf-spot. Then give the plants a heavy application of Bordeaux mixture. After a week or so start spraying them regularly with one of the tobacco extracts, applying it once or twice each week, as the case seems to warrant. If the plants are in bad condition you would perhaps do well to throw them out and replant with new, healthy plants. You could, of course, nurse them along and perhaps restore them to normal health, but by the time you got them into good shape it would be late in the season and a good part of the season's cut would be lost. A. F. J. B.

CHEMICALS IN COMPOST HEAP.

I should like to get your opinion of my compost heap, which is intended for flowers in general, but for carnations in particular. The compost consists of thirteen two-horse loads of cow manure, with lots of sand in it; four loads of leaf-mold, 600 pounds of phosphate and 200 pounds of high-grade potash. It has been turned over twice during the two months in which it has been piled up. The land on which I intend to grow the flowers is a sandy loam, on which good horse manure was used two months ago. There is a crop of cowpeas on it now. Some mums now growing on the land seem to do well.

L. A. D.

Without knowing anything about your soil, or the quantity of soil you put this fertilizer into, I can give you no opinion as to what results you may expect from it. We usually confine ourselves to cattle or stable manures when preparing our soil for the benches, adding other fertilizers as they are needed later in the season. This is a much safer method than to mix with the soil a lot of chemical manures in a haphazard way. A chemist might advise you correctly on this subject, if you will submit to him a sample of the soil. A. F. J. B.

TWENTIETH CENTURY.

The accompanying illustration shows one of the early planted carnation houses of the St. Clair Floral Co., Belleville, Ill., with the proprietor and assistants also appearing in the picture. The variety here planted is Twentieth Century. This is a seedling raised on the place, which has been grown for five years. It is the result of a cross of Lawson and Nelson Fisher, having the Lawson color, long, strong stems and good calyx. It is an early and continuous bloomer and an easy rooter. For the next season 4,000 plants have been benched, to be grown exclusively for cut blooms for local retail trade. There is no present intention of disseminating the variety.

PROPAGATING SNAPDRAGONS.

Would it be too late now to take cuttings of snapdragons and what sort of soil and temperature should they have when planted? W. M. R.

Snapdragons, rooted now and potted along, will make strong plants for benching in from eight to ten weeks. You can take cuttings any time during the fall, winter or early spring. When the weather is cooler they root better and grow far more satisfactorily than in hot weather, such as we get in August. You can also raise these plants easily from seed, and by purchasing separate colors of the tall section from a reliable seed house you will find few rogues among them. Soil for antirrhinums needs no special preparation. Use the same compost as you have prepared for carnations, violets or mums. A minimum winter temperature of 45 to 50 degrees suits them. Do not exceed the latter figure, however. The finest spikes I ever saw were grown at 40 to 45 degrees at night. C. W.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

POLLY ROSE IN FRAMES.

Will you tell me how I should handle Polly Rose chrysanthemums in frames? Should I put glass on them now and air freely, or when should I put glass on them? J. T. L.

If the Polly Rose mums are growing freely, it is not necessary to put the glass on for a month yet, but if they are getting hard and stunted in any way, or showing rust or leaf-spot, I would put the sashes on at once. August, with its muggy heat and moisture, often brings rust on outdoor plants when plants under glass are perfectly clean. Pushing the sashes off and on means extra work, but sometimes it is work that pays. If J. T. L. watches his plants, he is the best judge as to when the sashes ought to be on the frames. Chas. H. Totty.

LEAF-DISEASE OF MUMS.

We have some mums which seem to be affected by some sort of disease. They were planted in the first part of June, in solid beds, five feet wide. The depth of the soil was eight to fourteen inches, and at the time of planting a light sprinkling of bone meal was given. The soil was kept in a moist condition and a spraying was given once a day. A few weeks ago we also applied a dressing of rotted cow manure, with a light sprinkling of air-slaked lime. The disease seems to affect the two varieties, White Cloud and Clem. Touset. They are planted 8x10 inches apart. The ventilators are kept open day and night. Enclosed you will find some specimen leaves of the plants affected. Please state the cause of the trouble and the remedy. F. B.

This leaf-disease is septoria, which is common enough on mums, particularly if they are planted closely. It will be noticed that this disease almost always starts in the center of the bench, where the plants do not dry out so well as at the sides. Unless the disease gets too bad, it does no particular harm, as it cleans off the lower leaves and allows the sun to get to the soil. If the disease is serious, spray the plants with sulphide of potassium, at the rate of half an ounce to a gallon of water. This is the liver of sulphur and may be procured at almost any drug store. Look after the watering carefully and keep the atmosphere on the dry side, and this leaf-spot should not cause much worry.

Chas. H. Totty.

POLLWORTH'S NEW PLACE.

The C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, has just leased a new building for the selling end of the business. The new quarters will be much larger than those previously occupied and are shown in one of the accompanying illustrations. The location is ideal, directly opposite the City hall and on Milwaukee's market square. For the present the lower floors and basement only will be used, the upper floors being sublet until such time as the steady development of the business makes their use necessary. Two of the stores will be devoted to the cut flower department, which is in charge of W. F. Halliday. A large ice-box is being installed and the rooms are being fitted up with all the modern conveniences for handling cut flowers and greens. A conservatory is being built in the rear of the building, to be used as a show house for samples of the plants grown at the greenhouses, presided over by W. A. Kennedy, vice-president of the company. In addition to roses, carnations, chrysanthemums and other cut flowers, the greenhouses contain large blocks of palms, ferns and other decorative plants, with blooming plants and bedding stock in season. The remaining space on the street floors and in the basements will be devoted to the supply department and the offices, where C. C. Pollworth personally is to be found. Mr. Pollworth is enthusiastic over the possibilities opened to the company through the acquisition of the new headquarters. He says the force is at present busy on orders for the Common Sense carnation support, which he believes soon will be generally adopted by the growers.

PLUMOSUS TIPS SCORCHED.

Will you kindly answer the following inquiry on how to ventilate and shade a house of Asparagus plumosus? During the last six weeks the thermometers in this section of Missouri have several times registered over 100 degrees, which caused the young tips to wither, destroying about fifty per cent of the crop. We have benches of plumosus and Sprengeri where a house has been torn down, and these, though exposed to the full sun, are growing finely. We also have 3,000 young plants in frames, with shaded sashes three feet above, which are thriving well in the same weather that is injuring the greenhouse stock.

The house is 29x94, three-quarter span to the south, fifteen feet high to the ridge and about six feet to the gutter. It has had two coats of white lead shading—seemingly enough. The south side is open, as another house is being built there. A dozen lights of 16-inch glass are out on the north side, and there are nine ventilators, seven feet by forty-two inches, hinged at the ridge; also two doors at each end. There seems to be plenty of air and there is less than 10 degrees of difference between the inside and outside temperatures. Would it give better results to put more ventilators in the roof or hinge them at the header? I thought of putting several ventilators in the north wall. R. S.

Too hot and dry an atmosphere is the most likely cause of the scorching of the tips of the asparagus in question. A three-quarter span house, facing the south, is naturally a hot one in bright weather, unless the prevailing wind is also from the south. Such a house would work better with continuous ventilation from end to end, instead of about two-thirds of its length, as in the house described. Some ventilators on the north would also be a help in keeping down the temperature in extremely warm weather. During such weather a light syringing twice a day would be beneficial. W. H. T.

CANTERBURY BELLS FOR SPRING.

Is it too late to plant Canterbury bell seeds for Easter and Decoration day blooming? C. G. J. & S.

It is getting too late now to sow Canterbury bells for spring flowering. Of course, you could still get plants of fair size, but the chances are against more than a small percentage of them flowering. Your best plan would be to purchase, if possible, plants which have been transplanted. Failing this, wait and get some strong field-grown plants later in the fall. Another season sow your Canterbury bells in May or June and you are then sure to have strong plants which will flower. C. W.

BEGONIAS NOT FLOWERING.

Will you tell me why my tuberous begonias do not bloom? They are green and apparently healthy. After the buds reach a certain size, they blight, and some never bloom at all. I. G. M.

The most probable reason for your begonias not blooming is that they have been attacked by thrips. These in the spring and summer months are destructive on tuberous begonias, streptocarpus, gloxinias, achimenes and gesneras. The upper surface of the foliage will look all right, but you will find it discolored underneath, and the buds, after attaining a certain size, fail to open. You will find they are brown in color and practically eaten up with thrips. These are difficult pests to exterminate. Hard syringing through a spray nozzle would be too much for begonias, but you should spray them moderately once or twice a day, and also syringe with one of the nicotine solutions, of which a number are now on the market. If you have not many plants, you could mix up a small tub or large pail of the nicotine and dip the plants in it every second day for ten days. C. W.

SWEET PEAS NOT FLOWERING.

Can you tell me why my sweet peas all run up to growth, but few or none bloom? I do not think it is due to the cultivation altogether, as some are on deeply dug, rich ground and some on comparatively poor soil, with no excess of manure. Yet they are all alike. Can anything be done for them? J. F.

Your experience is not by any means exceptional. Not infrequently sweet peas run up to growth in the way yours have done and the early flowers blight before opening. The cause of this is, I think, some peculiar climatic condition, rather than improper soil. The plants will flower satisfactorily a little later; do not despair of them, but keep weeds away and the ground well cultivated. When flowering really commences, give them a mulch of strawy manure, old hay or grass, and in dry weather water freely. C. W.

SHEEP MANURE FOR SWEET PEAS.

Can I use pulverized sheep manure, instead of cow manure, for my sweet pea beds? If so, please advise quantity of manure to use for 1,000 square feet of beds. The soil is twelve inches deep and is fresh soil in ground beds. E. C.

If unable to secure cow manure, well rotted horse manure would do well if you can secure it. Give a liberal coating, spreading it on two to three inches thick over the surface and working it in well with a spade. If you cannot get the horse manure, use the pulverized sheep manure at the rate of one pound per square foot of bench space and incorporate it thoroughly when digging. You can apply top-dressings of the sheep manure or fine bone later on, when the plants require some stimulant, lightly pointing over the surface after applying it. C. W.

Ferns

CATERPILLARS ON FERNS.

There are green caterpillars on our Whitmani ferns. They look the same as those that attack mignonette. Can you suggest a remedy? G. F.

Try dusting the plants with Slug Shot or with powdered hellebore. If this does not give results, a weak solution of Paris green or arsenate of lead will do the work, but there is some danger of injury to the young foliage if the arsenic preparations are used too strong. W. H. T.

SOIL FOR BOSTON FERNS.

We are thinking of growing some specimen ferns for decorative purposes and should like to get some information on the subject. What kind of soil and what kind of fertilizers are best and how should they be used? Is it advisable to pinch off the runners or should they be potted as roots? I am speaking of the Boston fern and its sports. S. & S.

Almost any good top soil will answer for Boston ferns, with the addition of a moderate quantity of well rotted stable manure. A good soil for the purpose is composed of rotted sod to which is added one-fourth of manure.

Pot firmly and keep the runners clipped off. A slight shade on the glass is beneficial during midsummer, but is not needed after September 15. When the plants get heavily rooted, an occasional feeding with manure water is helpful in keeping up the color of the foliage. W. H. T.

APHIS ON FERNS.

What can I do to get rid of small black insects on sword ferns? They are the most troublesome on the new fronds. I do not find them in the greenhouse, but my customers are troubled with them occasionally.

E. A. C.

From the description it seems most probable that the insects in question are aphis, and in that case spraying with a weak solution of nicotine extract would be the best remedy. A solution consisting of one part of the extract to 300 parts of water would answer for this purpose, provided the plants are not exposed to the sun while wet with the solution. W. H. T.

PLATE GLASS CONSERVATORY.

Alfred B. Burk, of Philadelphia, has built a conservatory that is unique. The accompanying illustration serves to show the exterior appearance of the structure. It is built like an enclosed pergola, with plate glass walls and roof. The architects were Simon & Bassett and they describe the architecture of the conservatory as "in the order of the Italian Renaissance; a style suited to the intended purpose, affording a design at once picturesque and dignified. This design has for its notable feature a row of white granite monolithic columns, extending along the entire facade, giving the place a really noble perspective. The simplicity of construction may be understood from the fact that each space between these columns is filled with a single plate of glass. The introduction of plate glass as the main material in the construction of this modern plant house was a bold departure from established standards recognized by builders, and it was accordingly viewed with general disfavor. It required a departure from the old style of structural work in a great many respects, the plans for which were carefully worked out by the designers, in conjunction with the builders."

The structure is 30x100 and stands at the top of a succession of terraces, beautifully laid out. The house is practically everlasting, being made exclusively of stone, plate glass and steel, but it is of interest more because of its unique than for its practical features.

The illustrations are supplied by Patton's Monthly, published by the Pittsburg Plate Glass Co.

WESTERN GROWERS ORGANIZE.

A call for a meeting of western growers of gladioli and dahlias recently was sent out over the signatures of E. T. Barnes, Spencer, Ind.; W. K. Fletcher, Des Moines, Ia.; H. W. Koerner, Milwaukee, Wis.; N. L. Crawford, La Grange, O.; E. S. Thompson, Benton Harbor, Mich., and W. W. Woollen, Indianapolis, Ind. Pursuant to this call, a number of the growers of these flowers met at the Sherman house, Chicago, August 5, and organized under the name of the Western Dahlia and Gladiolus Association. The resolutions under which the association was organized state the objects as follows: To disseminate knowledge of the varieties and culture of the dahlia and gladiolus among the people, and for the pleasure and profit of the growers. There are two classes of membership, active and associate. The associate members enjoy all the privileges, ex-

President—E. T. Barnes, Spencer, Ind.

Vice-president—H. W. Koerner, Milwaukee, Wis.

Secretary—E. S. Thompson, Benton Harbor, Mich.

Treasurer—W. K. Fletcher, Des Moines, Ia.

Directors—E. E. Stewart, Rives Junction, Mich.; A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.; Charles E. Parker, East Pullman, Ill.

Membership committee—N. L. Crawford, La Grange, O., chairman.

Publicity committee—Hon. William Watson Woollen, Indianapolis, Ind., chairman.

Secretary Thompson states that the charter list will be held open until after the annual exhibition, to be held as soon as the date can be determined, sentiment being in favor of holding the show and next meeting at Indianapolis.

Baraboo, Wis.—Ernest Ross, who for seven years was manager at the greenhouses of William Peck, has purchased two vacant lots at the corner of Eighth and East streets and will begin the erection of a greenhouse and boiler room at once. He will also have a store at 409 Oak street.

CANADIANS IN SESSION.

The Canadian Horticultural Association, that vigorous organization of the florists of the Dominion, is in session this week at St. John's hall, at Ottawa, Ont. There is a nice trades' display in connection with the meeting, and a good attendance. The program is as follows:

Address of welcome, by Mayor Hopewell.
President's address, by John Connon.
Report of secretary, by W. C. Hall.
Report of treasurer, by C. H. Janzen.
"What Can the Private Gardeners Do to Advance Horticulture and Benefit Their Own Position?" by Mr. McVittie, gardener to Sir Henry Pellat, Toronto, Ont.
"What Inducement Does the Future of Horticulture Hold Out for Young Men?" by A. W. Ewing, Woodstock, Ont.
"The Use of Accessories in the Retail Florist's Store," by William C. Hall, Montreal, Quebec.
"A Retailer's Opinion of Recent Introductions in Flowers and Plants," by A. C. Wilshire, Montreal, Quebec.
Discussion—"Fifteen Years' Progress in Horticulture and Its Future Possibilities."
Choice of 1912 meeting place.
Election of officers.
Banquet

Arrangements provide for visits to the government experiment farm and the greenhouse establishments of the neighborhood.

Portsmouth, N. H.—R. E. Hannaford has opened a store at his greenhouses, on Richards avenue, and has vacated the store which he conducted for many years in the Kearsarge House.

TEN WEEKS' STOCKS.

I forgot to sow ten weeks' stocks until too late to have them in bloom for Memorial day. I have them now planted outdoors. Can I make use of them next spring by potting them next fall and taking them into the house, or will it be better to throw them away and sow new seed? How shall I treat them to have them in bloom for Memorial day? J. M.

The stocks in question will undoubtedly flower for you outdoors. It never pays to lift stocks; they are hard subjects to move, anyway, and they would flower much too early for Memorial day. To have plants in flower at this date, start seed of the early Giant ten weeks' variety at the end of February. Pot off singly when of sufficient size, using for compost loam, leaf-mold and a little old manure, and bench them before the roots become too much matted in the pots. A night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees suits them.

GERANIUM SPORTS.

We have a Mme. Salleroi geranium which has just bloomed. It has salmon flowers, shaped like those of Happy Thought; the leaves on the blooming branch are large and dark green, with streaks of lighter green in the center. Is this a freak?

In our conservatory we have geraniums of all colors and kinds, massed on benches, with brackets above. From seed taken off Prince Bismarck we have grown a beautiful geranium, naming it Enchantress, for all visitors are enchanted with its beauty. Its color is a dainty salmon pink, a little lighter than the parent, and it has large trusses of perfectly formed flowers, on long stems. It is a good bloomer and a vigorous grower and we consider it the finest thing in our collection. Is there anything like it on the market? I am sending you some flowers of parent and seedling. Although dry weather has injured all, you can see the superiority of the seedling. A. J. K.

The Mme. Salleroi sport is quite an interesting one and is worth propagating and perpetuating. Mme. Salleroi rarely flowers and if you can secure one which will bloom at all, it would be interesting and may be profitable to you.

The geranium flowers enclosed came in good condition. There are several single varieties similar to or identical with your seedling. The name Enchantress is quite appropriate. An old variety, Lady Ramsay, is of exactly the same color and form. Your seedling certainly is a vast improvement over its parents. C. W.

FIXING THE RESPONSIBILITY.

Kennicott Bros. Co., the well known firm of wholesale commission florists at Chicago, is in court with a suit against the Adams Express Co. over a loss which occurred through delay in notifying the shipper in the case of the failure of a consignee to accept a shipment. The sum of money involved is small and does not enter into the consideration at all; what the wholesalers are seeking to determine is a method of taking from the express company all chance for its agents to exercise their own judgment in such cases; like other wholesalers, these shippers wish to be the ones to direct what shall be done in the event of any failure to deliver or accept shipments.

Kennicott Bros. Co. uses the well known cut flower label, with the official rose leaf in red as adopted by the Society of American Florists. On the label is printed the following: "Notice to express companies: Should consignee refuse to accept shipment or pay C. O. D., notify us at once by wire, at our expense, stating reason why undelivered, or if amount is less than $4 sell to best advantage."

In the course of time several cases have arisen in which consignee either failed to accept shipment or to pay C. O. D. and in which the agent of the express company did not wire until the close of the business day, using a night message, which, of course, reached the shipper the day following, so that the flowers were twenty-four hours older than they should have been before the shipper had the chance to instruct as to their disposal. The general agents of the express companies at Chicago all take the stand that they have complied with their legal obligations when their agent sends a message within the business day on which delivery should have been made. They assert that the "notice to express companies," as printed above, calls for nothing more. The suit is a friendly one to determine whether or not the express companies have fulfilled the requirements of them.

Officials of the express companies, desiring to work in harmony with the cut flower shippers at Chicago and other points, have suggested a slight change in the phraseology of the "notice to express companies," as used by Kennicott Bros. Co. and many others: They suggest that the notice be made to read as follows: "Should consignee refuse to accept shipment or pay C. O. D. promptly on arrival, notify us at once by wire, day message, at our expense, stating reason why undelivered, or if amount is less than $4 sell to best advantage for our account."

SPIRÆAS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Will you tell me how to grow spiræas, and what kind, for Memorial day trade? E. G. W.

The old Spiræa Japonica is still grown in considerable quantities for cutting at Memorial day, but the more dense flowering varieties, carrying stronger flower stalks, such as Gladstone, compacta multiflora and astilboides, are superior in every way and are no more expensive than the old sort. Then there are two beautiful peach-pink sorts, Queen Alexandra and Peach Blossom, which cost a little more than the white sorts, but command double the price. You would do well to try some of these.

Spiræas can be grown in pots, or in boxes six inches deep. Probably you will find pots the most suitable. They like a rich soil. The pink sorts should be started nine to ten weeks before Memorial day and allowed to open in a shaded house, to keep their color well. White varieties will flower in eight weeks easily, or in ten days less if forced hard. Spiræas want an abundant water supply, need spacing apart as they grow, require liquid manure twice a week and must not be subjected to any heavy fumigation. They are of the easiest possible culture and can be forced hard if necessary, but the flowers have more substance if allowed to open moderately cool. C. W.

New Haven, Conn.—The Doolittle Floral Co., has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $25,000. The incorporators are A. L. Doolittle, William H. Long and H. H. Kelsey.

PEONIES DID NOT BLOOM.

We have some peonies and it will soon be time to plant them. We wish to know how to plant and divide large clumps. We divided some about five or six years ago and they never amounted to anything. A number of small, sickly looking stalks came up every year, but did not grow more than a foot high; they stayed green all summer and never bloomed. Some new stock planted at the same time did splendidly and gave good blooms every year. We wish to transplant those we have and get more with them, and should like to get correct information. W. M.

Among the causes which make peonies sulky are:

1. Planting them too deeply, which makes them multiply stems without producing blooms. The eyes should not be set more than one to two inches below the surface of the ground.
2. Leaving too many eyes on a division. If the size and strength of the tuber left with these eyes is not in proportion to the number of eyes, the growth will be weakened.
3. If the ground is soggy and not well drained it will act in this manner.
4. If plants are set very late in the fall or any time in the spring, they are likely to be sulky for a year or two.

Whenever a plant has been sulky for a series of years it is generally cheaper to throw it away and get new, healthy stock, so as not to waste time.

OBITUARY.

August Sunderbruch.

August Sunderbruch, for many years a florist in Cincinnati, O., died August 1 at his home, 107 West Charlton street, at the age of 82 years. He yas formerly professor of botany in the old Wesleyan Female College. He was in the florists' business in Cincinnati from 1860 to 1900. He is survived by two sons, William and Albert Sunderbruch, and a daughter, Mrs. Louis Helwig, of Chicago.

Edward McNally.

The funeral of Edward McNally, 64 years old, a resident of Anchorage, Ky., and a native of Dublin, Ireland, who died at his home following an illness of several months, was held from St. John's Roman Catholic church in Louisville, Ky., August 3. Mr. McNally came to this country forty-five years ago and started in business at Anchorage as a florist. He was one of the best-known residents of Jefferson county. Besides his wife, he is survived by four children, S. W. and Edward McNally, Mrs. F. W. Taylor and Mrs. J. W. Coleman.

C. L. Sieber.

Charles Louis Sieber, a former resident of New Orleans, died at Ponchatoula, La., August 1, and was buried in New Orleans the following day. Although the funeral was private, the New Orleans Horticultural Society, of which body he was an active member, was notified and a delegation was present. Several members sent pretty funeral offerings.

Mr. Sieber came to this country from Germany many years ago and was known as a man of great intelligence. At one time he was head clerk for the late Richard Frotcher. He spent a few years in Florida and on his return to New Orleans held several responsible positions with leading florists. On account of ill health he moved to Ponchatoula, La., still following the florists' trade. Mr. Sieber had hosts of friends and his somewhat sudden death was on all sides deeply deplored.

Rudolph Forst.

Rudolph Forst, of the firm of Wollerman & Forst, wholesale growers at Gibsonia, Pa., died of typhoid fever August 3, at his home in Millvale, Pa. Among his many friends in the trade he was noted for his genial disposition and his upright business dealings.

M. L. Bonham.

M. L. Bonham, a well-known nurseryman and florist at Clinton, Mo., died recently from heart trouble. He was highly esteemed by all who knew or ever had business relations with him.

James H. O'Malley.

James H. O'Malley, a florist and gardener of Scranton, Pa., died suddenly on Thursday afternoon, July 27, at the age of 56 years. On the day of his death he had attended to business as usual. After visiting several flower gardens, he returned to his home, ate a hearty meal, took a book and lay down to read. Half an hour later he was found dead, with the book in his hands. He was born in County Mayo, Ireland, and came to Scranton at the age of 16. He is survived by his wife, his daughters, Catherine and Helen, and his sons, Arthur, James and Joseph.

BOSTON.

The Market.

While no large business was transacted, growers and retailers were well satisfied with the volume of July trade and, though little is expected of August, there are encouraging reports of "something doing all the time." Outdoor flowers now dominate the market and will do so for another six weeks. Asters are the leading flowers and are seen in increasing abundance. While some are short and poor in quality, others have grand stems. In addition to Queen of the Market, quite a few Comets are also now seen. Prices on the best flowers hold up well, but seconds are getting druggy. Gladioli, next to asters, are most in evidence. There is a good assortment of these, America leading in popularity, followed by Mrs. F. King, Shakespeare and Augusta. Sweet peas are not as abundant as in former years, nor is their quality up to the mark.

Carnations are now little seen and such as arrive are far inferior to asters in quality. Rose supplies are not heavy. The bulk of the flowers are small, with short stems. Carnot, Maryland, Prince de Bulgarie and Beauties fill the bill. There is an ample supply of longiflorum lilies and smaller lots of speciosum album and Melpomene. Tuberoses are seen, but no one wants them. Signs of approaching fall are seen in small lots of cosmos and dahlias. There is now a fair supply of cattleyas and small lots of gardenias are arriving regularly. Of miscellaneous outdoor flowers quite a few are coming in. Gypsophila is one of the best sellers. Demand for adiantum and asparagus is quiet.

Various Notes.

W. A. Hastings reports a steady growth of interest in the S. A. F. convention and each day he is enrolling at least one new name. On account of the Boston party journeying via Fall River line, one or two New Englanders will join the party in New York. One or two will be unable to leave until August 14. The Boston delegation will be smaller than had been anticipated. A number are abroad or on their vacations at the shores and mountains and prefer this quietude to the bustle of a convention.

Penn, on Bromfield street, had a beautiful and varied assortment of orchids in one of the show windows August 5. It included several varieties of cattleyas and numerous cypripediums, as well as dendrobiums, miltonias, vandas, phalænopsis, etc. In another window a small fountain was playing. Around the edges of the tank were numerous nymphæas, while at the rear a background of ferns was broken here and there by vases of gladioli.

The Boston Coöperative Market is making preparations for the annual auction sale of stalls, which will take place September 2.

The greenhouses, together with all the contents, and the outdoor plants, including 12,000 carnations, at the establishment of Lemoine Bros., at Framingham Junction, were sold at public auction August 9.

H. T. Meade, of Manchester, N. H., and C. H. Barrett, of Concord, N. H., will attend the Baltimore convention with the Boston party.

H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, has the finest asters seen at the Boston Flower Exchange. The stems are of remarkable length for the season.

Ernest Stickel, salesman for the Montrose Greenhouses, has returned from a three weeks' vacation. Eber Holmes acted as salesman during his absence.

William Patterson, of Wollaston, is strong on gladioli at present. His varieties include the popular America, May, Augusta and Mrs. King.

Henry R. Comley had some fine nymphæas, gladioli, salpiglossis and roses in his windows August 5. Passiflora shoots, carrying flowers, hung from the upper part of the window. Mr. Comley is still limping from the results of the blood poisoning in one of his feet.

Paine Bros., of Randolph, are in the market with a grand lot of gladioli in all the leading varieties; also asters of first-class quality.

Noted in J. Newman & Sons' windows last week was a pretty effect produced by standing vases of fully bloomed Killarney roses in a bed of green moss, the vases being arranged thinly. In one window vases of Cattleya Harrisoniæ and lily of the valley produced a pleasing effect.

John K. Alexander, of East Bridgewater, one of the leading dahlia specialists in Massachusetts, has his fields in fine shape, with many plants already flowering freely. The plants have improved wonderfully since recent heavy rains.

The garden committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society visited the estate of Oliver Ames, North Easton, August 3, to inspect the fine and well cropped vegetable garden. Edward Parker, who has charge of this estate, had everything in fine shape. An auto ride was taken over some of the other estates in town.

Edward MacMulkin had the extensive decorations at Symphony hall for the banquet of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, August 4. H. R. Comley decorated for the ladies' banquet at the Hotel Thorndike, using sweet peas exclusively, many being cut with the haulm.

Harland H. Rogers, of South Sudbury, a noted aster and carnation grower, is again in the market with a grand assortment of asters, which make remarkable stems in the Sudbury soil.

J. M. Cohen is spending his vacation in a cottage at Winthrop. He has been receiving fine consignments of carnations for so late in the season from V. Fenvia, of South Sudbury. Queen is their special variety.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Bartsch, of Waverley, are among those planning to attend the Baltimore convention.

Peter M. Miller, of the T. J. Grey Co., and D. F. Roy, of Marion, winner of the fat men's race at the late picnic, leave August 15 for a vacation at Bar Harbor, Me.

David Welch, of Welch Bros., is back from his European trip, greatly improved in health by the change.

W. N. Craig.

Franklin, Mass.—A greenhouse is being erected for Harry T. Hayward, on his grounds on Main street.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

There will be a meeting of the board of directors of the American Carnation Society at the convention hall in Baltimore at 9:00 a. m., Thursday, August 17. All members of the A. C. S. who happen to be in attendance at the S. A. F. convention are invited to attend this meeting. There will be business of vital importance to come before this meeting, and a large attendance is desired.

The secretary will be in attendance at the S. A. F. convention, arriving in Baltimore August 16, ready to receive dues which have not been paid for the current year; also contributions to the Dorner memorial fund. Considerably more funds are needed for this memorial, and every member who has not already contributed is urged to do so at once. A. F. J. Baur, Sec'y.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

To gladiolus exhibitors at the Baltimore show: The judging on competitive exhibits will begin at 9 a. m., Wednesday, August 16, and all exhibits must be staged by that time. Please address all communications after August 11 to Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, Md. L. Merton Gage, Sec'y.

The following is the program of the second annual meeting of the American Gladiolus Society, to be held in the Fifth Regiment armory, Baltimore, Md., August 16 and 17, 1911:

FIRST SESSION, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 16, AT 3:30 P. M.

Address of Welcome, George Asmus, president S. A. F.
Reading minutes of last meeting.
President's address.
Financial secretary's report.
Treasurer's report.
Nominating committee's report.
Report of committee on "What Constitutes a First Size of Salable Bulb."

SECOND SESSION, THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, AT 9 A. M.

Report of judges.
Election of officers.
Report of miscellaneous committees, bulletin, exhibition, etc.
Report of committee on nomenclature.
New business.
Lecture, "Gladiolus Diseases," by Prof. Whetzel or assistant from Cornell University, followed by discussion and reports from state committeemen on diseases.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

There was a meeting of the executive committee at the office of Traendly & Schenck, New York, last week, with President Adolph Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa., in the chair. The particular matter in question was the settlement of the payment of prizes awarded at the National Flower Show in Boston. There had been a variance of opinion in regard to the construction of the resolution passed at Rochester, N. Y., relative to the amount of money that was to be paid to the National Flower Show committee, and until this had been settled the prizes were held in abeyance. Vice-President Philip Breitmeyer advised: "I am in favor of a settlement, rather than have any ill-feeling, especially with the lot of men who have worked so hard to make the recent show a success. I would say pay up and forget. Let us go ahead with unity and kindliness and do all the better in the future." The members of the executive committee who were unable to attend sent proxies and the sense of all was the same as was so admirably expressed by Mr. Breitmeyer.

A formal motion was put and carried, as follows: "That the treasurer of the American Rose Society pay to the order of the National Flower Show committee the sum of $537, being the amount called for by the National Flower Show committee in full settlement of all premiums due for awards made at the spring exhibition in Boston, March, 1911." Treasurer May, upon receiving the action of the meeting, drew the check for $537 and forwarded it to Allan Peirce, treasurer of the National Flower Show, and after this is paid, it leaves net in the treasury of the American Rose Society a larger sum than has been there before at this time of year.

At the coming convention in Baltimore, it is planned to have a meeting of the American Rose Society, to be as largely attended as possible, on Thursday, August 17, and at that time the question of the next annual exhibition, to be held in Detroit, as to date thereof, and the holding of the show jointly with the Carnation Society, will be brought up. Benj. Hammond, Sec'y.

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Auburn, N. Y.—Dobbs & Son report a business that cleaned up everything salable. They are heading for the convention.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Freyling & Mendels, proprietors of the Wealthy Avenue Floral Co., are building another greenhouse, with concrete walls.

Fulton, Ill.—John Aggen is erecting two additional greenhouses, each 21x100. He has been in business here about nine years and has met with marked success. He grows both flowers and vegetables.

Oneonta, N. Y.—C. W. Peck, of the Oneonta greenhouses, on Grove street, has torn down two old greenhouses and erected in their place two iron-frame houses, furnished by the King Construction Co.

Skaneateles, N. Y.—J. G. White has a novel method of keeping his chrysanthemum stock true, by drawing a plan and planting each variety by number, the numbers on the plants corresponding with the numbers on the map.

Elmira, N. Y.—H. N. Hoffman says the report that he intended to give up the nursery branch of his business is not correct, but rather he intends to devote more time to it. Of the many varieties of conifers, he finds the blue spruce to be the hardiest and the best drought resister.

Geneva, N. Y.—W. & T. Cass gave up the idea of a downtown store and invested, instead, in an auto delivery, which they think is a splendid ad and the most profitable investment they have made for some time. They expect to make up a party, together with a crowd from the experimental station, to attend the convention at Baltimore.

Albert Lea, Minn.—When A. Miller, traveling representative of the new Chicago firm of A. Henderson & Co., arrived here, a little surprise party had been arranged for him by G. A. Clausen, of this city. Mr. Clausen and a few Elk friends met the Chicago man and took him out in an automobile to a lake fifteen miles from town, where a day and night were spent in fishing. A good catch was reported.

Des Moines, Ia.—Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wilson left Friday, July 28, for Boston, Mass., on the Iowa Admen's special train to the National Admen's Convention, in session August 1 to 4. Mr. Wilson is one of the officers of this association and also chairman of the House committee, and went as one of the five elected delegates. It is his intention to visit New York and Philadelphia and then stop at the S. A. F. convention at Baltimore on his homeward journey.

Manistee, Mich.—J. F. Harrell, of the Manistee Floral Co., has been visiting the trade at Milwaukee, keeping up to date.

Shenandoah, Ia.—The dry weather has hurt the gladiolus crop. The Henry Field Seed Co., which usually has a large crop of flowers, will have few marketable blooms this year.

Middletown, N. Y.—F. X. Dienst is considering an offer of a fine farm and greenhouse property, as his own extensive plant is inadequate to supply his increasing business.

Litchfield, Ill.—Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McPheron have returned from a vacation trip to Atlantic City, Philadelphia and other eastern points. They spent a day at Riverton and report everything in the usual first-class shape at Dreer's.

Wellesley Hills, Mass.—A. G. Lake, on Woodlawn avenue, was thrown from his carriage a few weeks ago and received injuries which disabled him for a time. Trade has been heavy, especially in the shipment of ferns, and he has had great difficulty in filling his orders promptly.

Princeton, Ill.—The Trimble Greenhouse Co. is building two more houses and an office on its property in the east part of town. A store will also be opened in connection with the new office, and on this account the downtown store on South Main street will be closed. There is a steady increase of business, especially in the wholesale department.

Austin, Minn.—A. N. Kinsman, in company with his wife, left recently on an automobile trip to Colorado Springs, where they will visit his brother. The trip covers 900 miles, and if he enjoys it he will venture on a trip to Florida next winter; no telling where he will go next. When the bicycle was in its prime, Mr. Kinsman made a trip to Milwaukee, over 300 miles. His firm is now completing a new house, 30x120, for carnations.

Miles City, Mont.—As reported in The Review at the time, a branch store was opened here some months ago by T. D. Smedley, proprietor of the Fargo Floral Co., of Fargo, N. D. A corporation has now been formed, under the name of Smedley & Co., to develop and conduct the business here. The capital stock is $25,000. The directors are T. D. Smedley, H. B. Wiley and Mary E. Macy. The company will also build greenhouses here. For that purpose twenty lots of ground have been secured on the Tongue river, just south of the city, and work will be started at once in the erection of two houses, each 34x100.

Dover, N. H.—C. L. Howe has purchased an automobile, so constructed that it will be a most convenient vehicle for use both in business and recreation.

Ipswich, Mass.—W. M. Davey, of Locust street, who has been carrying on a successful business here as a landscape gardener, has decided to erect some greenhouses and grow flowers for the local trade.

Olean, N. Y.—Dana R. Herron made a hit when he added a soda fountain. It is a handsome addition to the store and keeps his clerks busy during the summer season. The stock at his greenhouses looks fine.

Fishkill, N. Y.—Wood Bros. have most of the new introductions in roses planted for stock and blooms, giving an excellent opportunity to study the merits of each. Double Pink Killarney is highly thought of; so, also, are Prince de Bulgarie and Lady Hillingdon. The demand for pot stock of all kinds has been good.

La Park, Pa.—A bundle of 150 letters, addressed to George W. Park, the florist and seedsman of this place, was recently found floating in Conestoga creek. The letters had all been opened and each one of them still contained postage stamps or postoffice orders for different sums. The belief is that a pouch of mail matter for Mr. Park, who has his own postoffice, had been stolen from one of the mail trains. The thief had opened the letters and removed all the cash in them; he was unable to have the money orders cashed and did not want the stamps. This is the second time that Mr. Park has suffered loss in this manner.

Madison, Wis.—The Capital City Greenhouse Co. is now incorporated. The members of the company are: Fred Rentschler, George Rentschler, Albert Meyer and Jacob Kolb. The name before the incorporation was the Capital City Greenhouse, with Fred Rentschler as proprietor. They are now completing the construction of eight houses, each 21x150, which will be used for growing roses and carnations. The Moninger Co. furnished the material. They have installed a Kroeschell boiler, No. 15, with capacity to heat 56,000 square feet of glass. The store in town is also being remodeled. Formerly the second floor of the store was rented for office rooms, but the firm has now leased the second floor and is using the space as a storeroom. The building will be increased in length, so as to make room for a conservatory, which will be an excellent place for handling plants. The place on Williamson street, comprising six houses, will be used for plant culture.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

OUT AUGUST 17

Even larger and finer than in other years. It marks the opening of the new season. Reserve your space now.

"Every one in the Trade reads The Review; the replies to my small advertisement prove it."—W. Bay.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1911: President, George Asmus, Chicago; vice-president, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18 1911.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

There is some complaint of slow collections, but that's always the case in midsummer.

It is easier to sell goods than to get the money for them. Some salesmen overlook the fact.

It is reported that Louisville will send a delegation of twenty boosters to the Baltimore convention.

No; this is not The Review's Special Number, though it contains 100 pages. The Special comes out next week.

Ralph M. Ward, New York bulb importer, is sending retail florists a card to hang in their stores: "A Lily to a Live Friend is Better than Ten to a Corpse—25 cents each."

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

Mr. Murray will shortly publish "Gravetye Manor; or, Twenty Years' Work round an Old Manor House." It tells the story of much work done in garden, field and woodland for many years past, during which the owner, W. Robinson, the author of "The English Flower Garden," has been at work. It is likely to prove a treasure to all who are interested in landscape gardening.

READER AND ADVERTISER.

The prime effort in every successful newspaper office is to interest the readers—that's what makes a good advertising medium. No matter how many copies are circulated, if they are not read they are wasted—they do the advertiser no good. Consequently, it is a pleasure to get such letters as the following:

We just want to let you know that we are sold out of stock after two insertions of our small advertisement in The Review. We returned orders for 8,000 plants after we were sold out. The Review is the paper that brings results to advertisers as well as furnishing much valuable and interesting reading.—A. Spath & Son, Embla Park, Md., July 26, 1911.

LADIES' S. A. F.

The members of the Ladies' Society of American Florists will receive at Hotel Belvedere, Thursday evening, August 17, from 8:30 to 11. Tickets will be issued from the secretary's desk in the exhibition hall, Tuesday, August 15. The president, Mrs. Phillips, requests all members to call there, and please wear your badge pins.

The annual business meeting of the Ladies S. A. F. will be held at Hotel Belvedere Wednesday morning, August 16, at 10:30. Business of importance will come up at this time and every member is urged to be present.

Mrs. Charles H. Maynard, Sec'y.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that S. A. Anderson, of 440 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y., offers for registration the begonia described below. Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed name is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date. Description: An improvement on Begonia Gloire de Lorraine; the yellow center is twice the size of that of the regular Lorraine; it is self-branching; has five petals in the flower instead of four; it throws twice as many flowers as the Lorraine. Name: Betty Anderson.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

There has been a decided slump since last report. Business began to fall off in the last days of July and the week ending August 5 was easily the dullest the Chicago wholesale market has experienced thus far this season. Supplies of stock were so much ahead of the demand that prices were reduced all along the line. There are those who say the market situation is due solely to the increase in supply, but it is certain that hundreds of buyers who called on Chicago for stock during the July days when supplies were light are among those who now have outdoor flowers of their own, and hence need not order from this center. As soon as the asters and the gladioli get a knock, from whatever cause, the market is likely to recover over night, so that the future is uncertain.

The aster is the dominating flower. Since August 1 supplies have increased immensely and values, which were ranging above normal, have fallen so that they do not compare favorably with the prices received in other years, except what is now being realized for the few high grade flowers that are coming in. Most of the asters are extremely poor and when a buyer wants strictly first-class stock he sometimes has to work to find it.

The receipts of gladioli have increased only slightly less than has been the case with asters. The quality of the stock is fully as good as at any previous date this season, but the prices have been cut in two, and more, for it is impossible to effect a clearance at any price.

WE HAVE SPLENDID

Killarneys

PINK OR WHITE — LARGE SUPPLY.

We feel that we can not make it too strong when we urge buyers who have not tried our Killarneys to do so at once, for the quality of our Killarneys this summer is the marvel of the market—Chicago never has seen anything like so large a supply or such fine quality. We are furnishing buyers all the Killarneys they need, in any length up to 18 to 24 inches. The color of the pink is something wonderful—better than it is in winter. These roses are business-builders. Once tried, you will use no others.

BEAUTIES

Plenty of the popular medium lengths

Our present cut of Beauties is largely from young plants and runs largely to medium stems, the lengths that are in greatest demand. This is excellent stock, grown by the grower whose summer crop has given such perfect satisfaction to our customers in other years. Those who are not ordering their Beauties of us should try this stock without delay.

GLADIOLI

Can supply in thousand lots.

The quality never was better. Mrs. Francis King (red), America (light pink), and Augusta (white). These are the three buyers want in quantity, and we have them. Note reduction in prices. You can use large lots at these figures.

ASTERS

Asters now are in very large supply; we can furnish any color, any length, in any quantity. The quality is much improved and you can count on getting, for the rest of the season, if your orders are sent to us, all the Asters you may need for any kind of sale that comes your way.

Lilies

We can furnish Easter Lilies, Rubrums or Auratums, best quality, in any quantity.

Valley

Order Valley of us and you will draw on a never-failing source of supply.

HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL GREENS

Here you get the best Fancy Ferns, all the Smilax and Asparagus strings you want, Sprengeri and Plumosus bunches, Mexican Ivy and Galax. No order too large for our facilities and no order too small to receive our careful attention.

FANCY GIGANTEUMS

EASTER LILIES Never finer. While we always have been well situated to supply Lilies, this summer we are in better shape than ever before. These Lilies are grown in a cool climate, giving keeping and shipping qualities exceeding anything we ever have had in Lilies. Cut half developed, so as to reach you in perfect condition.

GLADIOLI in All Colors

We are prepared to furnish Augusta (white), Mrs. King (red) or America (light pink), separate colors in any quantity, or mixed unnamed varieties if wanted. This is fine stock—much better than the Glads that brought much more money earlier in the season. Send along your orders—you can use this stock in quantity.

Beauties were a glut last week; not that the supply was so large, but the demand was extremely light. This week conditions are slightly better. There is so great an abundance of the Killarneys and Maryland of good quality that prices even for the best have fallen. The majority of the roses coming in are short stock from young plants and funeral flowers are now to be had at the buyer's own price.

Easter lilies are again in large supply and prices have returned to the lower levels. Auratums continue plentiful. There is an abundance of valley. Few sweet peas are seen and daisies are on the wane. Not many orchids are coming in, but an abundance for all orders. Rudbeckia is everywhere and a few mums are seen.

The call for greens is decidedly light, so that prices are easier. There is plenty of everything in the greens department, except asparagus strings and smilax, which are some days plentiful and some days scarce.

Club Meeting.

The attendance at the club meetings is increasing steadily this summer, instead of going in the opposite direction, as in most other summers. August 3 there was a big crowd, though there was no special order of business. C. C. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, and C. De Wever, of St. Louis, were present. Mr. Pollworth made application for membership and was elected on the spot, amid much hilarity and good humored joshing, for it was the first time the rules ever had been suspended for such a purpose.

A. Zech reported on the annual picnic, which, thanks to the good work of the committee, was a financial success in spite of bad weather. Mr. Zech also reported for the bowling contingent, stating that the team to represent the club at Baltimore will consist of George Asmus, P. Olsem, W. Wolf, C. W. McKellar and John Zech. The club appropriated $50 toward the expenses of the bowling team.

A. C. Kohlbrand moved that the Detroit Florists' Club and the Milwaukee Florists' Club, which had indicated a desire to visit the Chicago Club, be given a formal invitation to meet with us October 5, on which evening Elmer D. Smith is to read a paper on chrysanthemums. It was voted to hold a chrysanthemum show in the club rooms at the November meeting, invitation being extended to chrysanthemum growers to exhibit their novelties for the club's certificate, and to invite the Chrysanthemum Society of America to appoint the judges for the evening. A motion to offer some cash prizes was defeated. This led to an inquiry of Treasurer Winterson as to the standing of the club's finances and developed that the organization is in affluent circumstances.

Growers, Attention!

Why not sell your own stock? We have the finest location in the Chicago market and space enough to accommodate several growers selling their own stock.

There was considerable discussion regarding the railroad rates to Baltimore. President Philpott stated that he had the names of twenty who have signified their intention of going, and there were many yet to be heard from.

Walter Scott, of La Grange, exhibited a fine vase of Gladiolus Kunderdi Glory. The usual refreshments were served.

Various Notes.

One of the events of the week was the marriage of Miss Violet Nelson and Walter F. Peters, of Evanston. The wedding took place August 6 at Morton Grove. Emil Nelson, the bride's father, is the well known rose grower who makes his Chicago headquarters with John Kruchten.

It develops that the N. C. Moore Co., Morton Grove, had a bad fire last month, the plant being practically destroyed.

H. Van Gelder is suffering with neuralgia, but is attending to business.

While A. Kowalkowski was chopping wood at his greenhouses on Thomas street a splinter flew up with such force that it penetrated the eyeball and destroyed the sight of that eye.

Frank Ayers writes Mrs. C. W. McKellar from Paris, Tex., that their mother is convalescing from her serious illness.

Hoerber Bros. are all planted up and are beginning to cut from young stock.

John Michelson, of the E. C. Amling Co., was at Fairbury and other downstate towns last week.

Tim Matchen, sales manager for Peter Reinberg, has returned from a pleasant outing in Wisconsin. Miss Corbett now is away.

Phil Schupp, of J. A. Budlong's, says he looks for a quick change in the market when a storm hits the outdoor stock.

Hans Rowaltz, who has charge of the books for Kyle & Foerster, is vacationing at Hayden, Mo.

John Poehlmann has this week received delivery of a new Winton 6-cylinder, 7-passenger touring car. Adolph Poehlmann has an order in for a similar machine.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association has completed its store this week by putting in the office partitions and fixtures. It makes an extremely neat and well arranged establishment.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., went to northern Michigan August 7.

L. H. Winterson, of the seed store, has returned from his vacation.

The committee of the Florists' Club to which was referred the matter of inviting the S. A. F. to meet in Chicago next year held a meeting at the Union restaurant August 8. The sentiment was that inasmuch as Chicago will have a big spring show and wants everyone to come in March, 1912, it would be impolitic to urge that the trade come here in a body twice within six months.

N. J. Rupp, of the John C. Moninger Co., leaves Sunday, August 13, on the Pennsylvania Limited to have Monday to set up the company's exhibit in Baltimore.

Mrs. W. E. Horton, who is right-hand man at Bassett & Washburn's, is vacationing in Wisconsin. Miss Ella Shaffer has returned.

A. Y. Longren has returned from a month's trip among E. H. Hunt's customers in Ohio and Michigan.

A. L. Vaughan, of Vaughan & Sperry, spent several days of last week with Indiana florists. Max Ringier has returned from his vacation.

W. W. Randall, of the A. L. Randall Co., accompanied by Mrs. Randall, will go to Washington on the Pennsylvania's Manhattan Limited Sunday for a couple of days' visit before the S. A. F. convention, after which they will go to Philadelphia and New York.

John Zech and Matt Mann not only do business in partnership, but they do their traveling in company. Last winter they visited the Mardi Gras together and next week they will go to the convention, thence to New York by boat and home by way of Niagara Falls.

Weiland & Risch report having had their establishment at Evanston completely replanted August 5.

CHINCH BUGS.

Will you kindly give me a remedy for destroying that little pest commonly known as the chinch bug? I have a patch of asters that are growing nicely and about half the crop coming on has been stung by this troublesome pest. I have sprayed with kerosene emulsion and with nicotine solution, but neither one had any effect on the bug. F. E. V.

I regret inability to give any remedy for the tarnished plant bug, or chinch bug, as it is commonly called. This is destructive on chrysanthemums, asters, marguerites and that popular fall perennial, Pyrethrum uliginosum, as well as the annual chrysanthemums. Spraying with soapy, oil and nicotine solutions have all proved futile. Possibly by spraying with something bitter, such as water in which quassia chips have been soaked, its ravages might be minimized. Not having tried this personally, I can not state what its value is. It would certainly be a great boon to growers if some remedy were discovered for this destructive pest, but at present none is known. C. W.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The scarcity of high grade asters is the feature of the market. There is a strong demand for fine asters that is hard to satisfy. Good flowers command $3 per hundred, selling promptly on arrival in the city. All other flowers are in ample supply. Easter lilies are selling well; good flowers bring $1.50 per dozen; poor ones go slowly. The volume has changed little during the last six weeks. Some shipping orders and a few local orders consume most of the good stock, while funeral work takes much of the lower grade blooms. The remainder realizes little or nothing. Gladioli and short roses are plentiful. There are a few good sweet peas and some new crop carnations. Business is fully up to previous years at this season.

The Visit to Roelofs.

Joseph Heacock invited some of his friends to go up with him to Roelofs Station, near Trenton, on Thursday, August 3, to see the new plant that his company has established there. The party gathered at Jenkintown early in the afternoon and took a local train through the steadily developing country lying between Jenkintown and Roelofs. Mr. Heacock's guests were D. T. Connor, Robert Craig, George Craig, Fred Hahman, Thomas W. Logan, David Rust, G. C. Watson and John Westcott.

A level, splendidly made road lies between Roelofs Station and the plant of the Joseph Heacock Co., situated on an 85-acre farm about three-quarters of a mile from the railroad. Robert Jamison, manager of the place, joined the party there, aiding Mr. Heacock in explaining the many interesting arrangements.

The greenhouse water and heating system is probably twenty years ahead of the times. It contains the most advanced ideas that have been proved practically sound. The deep-well artesian pump is so arranged that it starts mechanically the moment a water spigot is opened anywhere on the place; this is made possible by the maintenance of thirty pounds of pressure on the steam boiler that runs this pump and the suction pump which brings condensation from the steam heating pipes in the house back to the boilers.

The steam heating plans, with the different sizes of pipes, the grades and the distribution, are the result of years of experience multiplied by common sense. The air-well that carries off dust from the machinery is one of the carefully planned and executed details that add to the smoothness with which the plant is run.

The immense house, 55x600, with its top and side ventilation, its lofty roof and concrete beds, gives an idea of stability suggestive of enduring prosperity. From this house have been sent to Philadelphia, during the season just ending, Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond blooms that have been equal —nay, often better than the finest flowers in the market. The house is laid out in nine beds, divided in the middle by a broad walk. Three of these beds have been cut back for their entire length; they are now starting nicely. The next three appear ready for cutting back, while the remaining three have apparently had little drying yet. Flowers are still being cut that grade well.

The farm is in excellent order. Cows, pigs and poultry are thriving; orchard, grain and potatoes promise an abundant harvest, while grazing fields and woodland lend variety to the landscape.

The thoroughness with which everything has been done may be best understood by mentioning the fact that all the water from the north side of the greenhouse, from the blow-off of the

Great News for 1912

INTRODUCTORY

The Baltimoreans promise to give the members of the S. A. F. one of the most successful conventions ever held. Those attending cannot but realize the wonderful value these conventions are, with their splendid lectures, interesting talks, discussions and trade exhibits. Aside from these, the value of the personal talks with the big men of our profession is often worth the trip—always something to learn—their opinions on this subject or that, the merits of some of the new introductions in carnations, roses or other flowers and how best to handle them. A novelty, whether it is in the flower line or in some other branch of the business, always proves interesting to everyone.

OUR EXHIBIT

Our exhibit at Baltimore will be one of the finest ever staged, containing many things new in ribbons, supplies and florists' accessories.

NEW ROSES for 1912

In addition to these, we will have a splendid display of cut flowers, fresh each day, of the new roses Double White Killarney and Killarney Queen, originated by the Budlong Rose Company, and which are to be disseminated jointly by the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Company and A. N. Pierson, Inc., in the spring of 1912.

Double White Killarney with its stronger, more vigorous growth, larger and heavier flowers, double the petalage and purer white, is a tremendous improvement over White Killarney, and is sure to be a money-maker to all who buy, not only for winter forcing but for summer growing. We recommend it as being the best and grandest commercial white rose today. As a summer rose, it is such an improvement over Kaiserin that there is no question about its replacing Kaiserin in that connection. At this writing, it is three or four times as large as White Killarney.

Killarney Queen is about three shades darker than Pink Killarney, and during dark and cloudy weather the color does not fade, but remains a bright, deep, rich pink. It is of very much more vigorous growth than Killarney, even a stronger grower than Double White Killarney. Flowers are about twice as large as Pink Killarney, about the same petalage and borne on tremendously heavy, long stems, larger and heavier foliage. Many consider this rose in the American Beauty class, its habit, growth and size are so vigorous and far ahead of Pink Killarney.

WELCOME TO VISITORS We will be glad to have visitors make our exhibit their headquarters at any or all times during the convention, where they will find Mr. Fancourt and his assistants glad to welcome them.

boilers and other drainage, is carried by a pipe, through gravity, to a distant stream in the woods. The general arrangement of the power plant and of the men's quarters is admirable; everything, from the circular brick stack to the concrete floors, suggests durability.

After enjoying Mr. Heacock's hospitality, the party returned to the city, greatly pleased with the trip.

Forty-ninth and Market Streets.

Duncan Macaw, courteous, cheerful and alert, was ready to point out the good things at Forty-ninth and Market streets plant of the Robert Craig Co. The houses and frames are full, not overcrowded, with choice plants. Prominent among them are the ferns of Boston parentage—half a dozen of the old N. B.'s best youngsters nicely grown in all the sizes. Of Dracæna Massangeana there were some stunning specimens in 12-inch tubs, six feet high. Ficus pandurata is better than ever before. The stems are heavier, the foliage broader. They had several houses of them, some single and some branched. The cyclamens are a fine sight—first the frames, then house after house, each a size larger than the last, until the house of 7-inch plants was reached, the crowning glory of the cyclamens, beautiful stock, shapely and clean.

Cincinnati has taken the leading place among the begonias, with Lorraine, Lonsdale and Norwood; it is a great bloomer and keeper. Mr. Macaw showed all the varieties with proper pride, pleasant to see. There is a pretty house of Adiantum hybridum and another of Pandanus Veitchii. One of the most interesting sights on the whole place is the Euphorbia Poinsettiana. Single and double alike are propagated with ease. It is no trouble at all. Hardly a cutting has failed to root. It really seems as though there would at last be enough of these showy scarlet bracts to satisfy the Christmas plant buyers.

Henry A. Dreer has a fine display of choice varieties of hardy phloxes in bloom at the Riverview nurseries.

John Berger enjoyed three days' fishing at Beach Haven, N. J., last week.

Three lovely ladies, daughters of John R. Hellenthal, of Columbus, O., were here this week.

William K. Harris defeated Henry F. Michell 14 to 9 in a baseball game at Darby, August 5.

Robert A. Craig spent Sunday at Wildwood, N. J., with his family.

Convention preparations are active. Nearly everyone of note will be in Baltimore next week.

Henry F. Michell will give a field day to all his employees at Andalusia, Saturday afternoon, August 12. There will be games for the girls and games for the boys and a baseball game as a grand finale to the day's sports.

John Burton is rebuilding two houses, 21x87 feet each.

William Henry Maule has invited his employees and those of the Henry F. Michell Co. to visit his country place at Villa Nova, Saturday afternoon, August 26. There will be a baseball game between teams representing the two houses, and a general good time.

Miss Aitken sends a cheery word of greeting to her friends from Paisley, Scotland, where she has arrived after a pleasant, though rather rough, voyage.

Rodman M. Eisenhart, the violet king, is building one house 28x100 feet, Lord & Burnham construction, at Torresdale, Pa.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

Business here, as it might be stated in German, is "sehr schlecht"; in street English this means "rotten." With the retailers a little goes a long way. With the wholesalers much goes to the dump.

The quality of stock of all kinds, except Easter lilies and America gladioli, was exceptionally poor last week. A few good roses being shipped in by the local growers are eagerly bought up, but the short and minor grades go begging. Asters are plentiful, but little or no fancy stock has reached this market. The call for gladioli is slow; America is the only variety in good demand. Small consignments of Lilium rubrum and roseum are seen at the wholesale houses. Good Beauties are hard to find.

Various Notes.

The following have reported their intention to join the Pittsburg party for the convention: Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ludwig, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Reineman,

H. & D. FLORISTS' BOX

Universally used for shipping cut flowers and designs. The dead-air cells form a perfect non-conductor of heat and cold, thus preserving contents much longer than ordinary wood box.

H. & D. Florists' Box can be used several times. Is much lighter than the ordinary box, thus saving in express charges.

J. F. Zimmerman, Ed. McCallum, Howard Carney, and a number of others who will tour from this city to the convention in their automobiles.

The much needed rain has come at last. On Thursday, August 3, there was almost a deluge in the section north of this city. At the Bakerstown plant of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., lightning struck one of the water towers, but the damage was slight. At Allison Park, John Wyland escaped with little damage.

Fred Burki, president of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., is a busy man these days. The new connecting range of 100,000 feet of glass, to be planted in carnations, is about completed; the glazing is under way and the planters are following. The King Construction Co. supplied the material for this new addition. A contract for two new orchid houses has been let to the Lord & Burnham Co. Bids are being received for a new water tower and tank, with a capacity of about 1,500 barrels. With this new addition, this company has nearly half a million square feet of glass, and not an inch of idle space at any part of the season can be found.

The P. S. Randolph site for the city's new tuberculosis hospital has been recommended by the subcommittee of the city council. Mr. Randolph bought these twenty-one acres on Morningside road, adjoining the Randolph and McClements greenhouses, only a few years ago. The approximate price on which condemnation proceedings are based is $50,000.

FOR RHUBARB AND MUSHROOMS.

We have a rhubarb forcing house under construction, 16x225 feet. It is forty-two inches high at the sides and seven feet in the center. Please advise us how many 1¼-inch return pipes will be required to heat this house to the right temperature for best results. We have a steam system and usually carry three to six pounds of steam. The house is well built with ship lap and covered with heavy tar paper. In this part of Washington state we have zero weather nearly every winter. Would this house be suitable for growing mushrooms, and where can the best mushroom spawn be procured? W. W. F. C.

If your house is built warmly, I think eight pipes will be all you will want. You might put in six or seven lines and then leave plugs in the openings instead of putting in the other two. If you find early in the winter that you could use more pipes, it would then be only a few hours' work to screw them in. The house would make a good mushroom house, but do not forget that some ventilation is needed for both crops. Several reliable dealers in spawn are advertising in The Review.

...NEWS NOTES...

Minneapolis, Minn.—Herman Buckman is building a greenhouse at 4934 Lyndale avenue, at a cost of about $5,000.

Kingston, N. Y.—William Williams is fixing up his office, repainting and getting into shape after a busy season. He will join the crowd from Albany for Baltimore.

Fremont, Neb.—C. H. Green has installed a larger boiler, which necessitates the erection of a larger smokestack. He expects to build an addition to his greenhouses in the fall.

Kingston, N. Y.—Valentin Burgevin's Sons have nearly finished planting and everything is in tiptop shape. Both boys expect to attend the convention and see what is new, both for greenhouse and store.

Beloit, Wis.—John Rindfleisch is building two more greenhouses, each 20x100. A new steam boiler will also be installed, with sufficient capacity to heat the entire range. The location is a favorable one, plainly within the view of interurban passengers.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—The Hyde Park Rose Co. has purchased the tract of ground, 240x355 feet, on which its business is located, and is planning to enlarge its greenhouses and otherwise increase its facilities. The property is on the north side of Wasson road, near Marburg avenue, Hyde Park.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

The local market was in good condition all of last week. Stock of all kinds was plentiful and showed the good effects of the recent showers and cool nights. The retail business, however, was dull in all lines and the wholesalers had a hard time in disposing of all the stock that came in. It was only in large lots at cheap prices that they could move any of the glut in asters and gladioli. Asters were offered as low as $10 per thousand for fairly good stock, the fancy bringing from $2 to $3 per hundred. The price on glads has also dropped to $3 and $4 per hundred; extra fancy, $5 per hundred.

Carnations continue scarce. Only a few good ones are coming in. Roses are plentiful now, but there is little demand for any of the lower grades. Lilies, valley, daisies, cornflowers and snapdragons make up the daily market. Good smilax is again to be had. All other greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Jr., are traveling through Colorado for two weeks and, judging from the postals re-

Frank Gorly, of the firm of Grimm & Gorly, says he will attend the S. A. F. convention, and the supply men should keep a sharp lookout for him, as he says he will take a $1,000 bill with him, to spend it for anything new.

A visit to Beyer's, Schray's and Fillmore's places last week found them all busy with preparations for the fall and winter season. At Beyer's they were preparing for the arrival of the fall bulbs. At Schray's all hands were busy putting the houses in shape for housing plants. At Fillmore's, Frank and Frank, Jr., were planting carnations; a fine house of Pink Delight was seen. They all say that the last season was a busy one in all lines.

first stop at the Sanders place, where they found him busy putting up a new house. His carnations in the field are fine; also a fine lot of cyclamen and poinsettia plants was seen. Werner & Bro. came next. Their new houses, 32x165, are filled with fine young plants of Killarney and Richmond roses. The carnation houses are also in fine shape for the coming season. Paul Scheider, who is known as the green goods man, supplying the market with Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri last season, has fine houses of carnations, mums and Boston ferns this year. The Alexander Floral Co. will grow roses this year. They have a fine lot of young plants of Killarney and other roses. At Jablonsky's place all hands were busy packing and shipping carnation plants. Several houses have already been planted and are looking their best. John Steidle's place came next. He is building a new residence and his rose and carnation houses are all in excellent shape for a big crop this season. Anton Bros.', Charles Hecht's and Joe Dietchmann's places are all looking well. They were busy glazing and housing their carnation plants. Phil Goebel's and George Goebel's places came next. They were busy planting carnations. Mums and violets are grown here. They expect a good crop this season. The visitors report that while out on this trip they found the violet plants in poor shape and the prospect for this season is a scarcity of violets, but, on the other hand, they say there will be a big crop of carnations and chrysanthemums for this market. Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; First Vice-Pres., M. H. Duryea, New York City; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

A. C. Croft Seed Co., Moulton, Iowa, is a new concern in the seed corn line.

Clifton Curtis is starting into seed growing at Hollister, Cal., with thirty acres. He will specialize on radish, lettuce and carrots.

The John H. Allan Seed Co., Sheboygan, Wis., began pea picking July 31, with a force of ninety-three girls the first day. To a reporter Mr. Parmelee declined to commit himself on the crop, which is undeniably short.

Howard M. Earl, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., visited the seed growers of the San Juan valley, California, August 2. He left Philadelphia July 20, taking in northern New York, northern Michigan, Utah and Idaho on the way to the coast, and after calling at the Burpee farm at Lompoc will visit Colorado and Oklahoma growers on the way home, being due to arrive in Philadelphia August 14.

The seed growers of the Santa Clara and San Juan districts agree that the crop about to be harvested will be a good average one, with the single exception of sweet peas, and the last will be better than half a crop. The early spring conditions were such as to warrant rather gloomy predictions, but, fortunately, late spring and summer conditions were favorable and enabled everything but sweet peas to recover the lost ground.

Seed houses now offer Freesia Purity, California grown, greenhouse grown or Bermuda grown.

The fall bulb catalogues are more numerous, more elaborate, larger and most of them were out earlier this season than usual.

The Coulter-Adams Seed Co., of Ogden, Utah, reports the crop of garden peas as fully as good as that of last year and states that it will be able to fill orders 100 per cent.

The interest of W. Rozzelle in the Grand Junction Seed Co., at Grand Junction, Colo., has been purchased by W. L. Burgess, formerly of Forkston, Pa. The owners of the stock company now are Mr. Burgess, J. P. Phipps and J. D. Conley. Plans are being made for increasing the facilities and greatly enlarging the business, especially the wholesale department.

The Holland bulb men are well satisfied with the season to date. They have had a good business and the stock they are shipping they think will prove of quality to give excellent satisfaction.

FLORADALE FARM.

The accompanying illustration, showing a bird's-eye view of the operations at the Floradale farm of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., is reproduced from a photograph made at Lompoc, Cal., July 25, scarcely more than two weeks ago. The crops in the foreground are sweet peas, the taller growing plants being sunflowers, which are used to break the different plots. The season is late, but conditions since the early part of the year have been much improved.

IT IS interesting to note that the vicinity of Santa Clara, formerly the most important of the California seed growing districts, has been largely abandoned by the growers. The principal movement has been some fifty to 100 miles south, several of the largest seed farms being now located in the San Juan valley section, of which Hollister is the business center. This valley averages somewhat cooler in summer than the Santa Clara valley, on account of the cool sea breezes that enter through the Pajaro gap in the coast range. The soil is mainly silt and quite similar to that of the celebrated orchard land of the Pajaro valley. It seems to be excellently adapted to seed crops.

THE new crop of most of the German natural grass seeds is being harvested under favorable conditions, says Julius Loewith, the New York agent for Conrad Appel, of Darmstadt. The seed is of heavy weight and bright color, and prices will be much lower than last season. Only the crop of Agrostis stalonifera and canina, marsh bent or florin grass, S. German and Rhode Island bent grass, which will be harvested in August and September, are injured by the hot weather during June and July, and the quantity obtainable of these will be small and prices high.

They are perfect mixtures and sound in grain and a pleasure to handle."

DUTCH BULBS.

The shipments of bulbs, seeds, etc., from Holland are not yet heavy. The boat from Rotterdam, which arrived at New York July 31, had the following consignments:

Thorburn, J. M., & Co., 5 bags seed.
Berger, H. H., & Co., 6 cases flower roots, etc.
Kuyper, P. C., & Co., 2 hampers shrubs, etc.
Vaughan's Seed Store, 8 cases bulbs.
Emden, H. O., 43 cases bulbs, etc.
Maltus & Ware, 1 case trees and 12 cases bulbs.
Pierson Co., F. R., 2 cases bulbs.
Darrow, H. F., 20 bags seed.

IMPORTS.

The imports of seed through the port of New York for the week ending July 29 were as follows:

NEW YORK.

The Market.

This is the resting spell of the cut flower market, with nothing happening to break the monotony, unless it be the arrival of Admiral Togo, on which occasion the Knickerbocker hotel outdid itself in floral decoration. The flood of gladioli and asters completely overwhelms the market. Summer prices for these are now at their lowest ebb. The usual price of gladioli is 50 cents per hundred, and as for asters $5 would buy 100 bunches of quite fair quality. There are a few of the long-stemmed varieties, however, that sell readily and at near their value. Valley has lost prestige also and its sale was slow August 5, with 2 cents as top. Lilies fell to 4 cents and under. There was no fault to be found with the quality and the shipments now are not overabundant. Plenty of rudbeckia and hydrangeas add to the inevitable August surplus. There is no decrease in sweet pea shipments, and the long-stemmed ones do not have to beg for recognition. There are none too many orchids and prices remain steady, with 60 cents as top for the selected gigas. Carnations, with the possible exception of a few specialties, do not bring over $1. Roses are largely short-stemmed and only a few bring a price worth mentioning; 20 cents was top for American Beauty August 5.

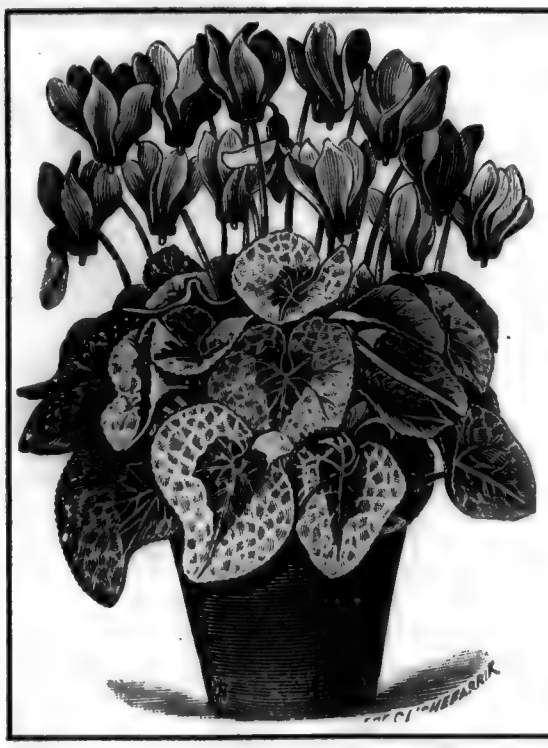
Various Notes.

There are some handsome retail windows of water lilies. Peter Henderson & Co., on Cortlandt street, have made an especially good showing.

The convention is the chief topic in floricultural New York. Chairman Traendly desires that every one intending to take the special train via the B. & O., August 13, send him his name not later than Saturday, August 12. This is a necessity in view of the large number who must be entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wilson, of Des Moines, Ia., are in the city on their way home from the advertising men's convention at Boston.

Mr. Velie, of the Boston office of Lord & Burnham Co., is away following an operation for appendicitis, his place being taken by Mr. De Forest. The concern is busy on the $11,000 addition to the greenhouses of the New Jersey experiment station at New Brunswick.



Percy B. Rigby, of the Pennock-Meehan Co., and Mrs. Rigby, are away this week on their annual vacation.

Andrew Cova, manager of the supply department of George Cotsonas & Co., is back from Europe and says the importations of this house will be heavy this fall. The firm is sending out a new catalogue. The stork visited Mr. Cotsonas last month and left a son and heir.

Miss Jeanette McManey, bookkeeper for Charles Millang, will enjoy her holiday at Lake George.

Mrs. Millang, the venerable mother of the Millang florist quartet, Charles, Frank, Joe and August, now in her eightieth year, is convalescing after an operation.

weeks' vacation at the seashore. Mr. Moltz and Mr. Glass find Averne and Rockaway sufficiently interesting for their holidays.

Leo Rosen, of Russin & Hanfling's, is at Pine Hill, N. Y.

Frank Traendly and family have been at Atlantic City, the ex-president, in a gorgeous bathing suit, exciting the envy of the board-walkers.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, was a recent visitor.

H. Bayersdorfer arrived here last week from his European trip.

W. A. Sperling, of the Stumpp & Walter Co., will have charge of the firm's exhibit at Baltimore.

A. L. Young has turned the entire building, which he has leased, at 54 West Twenty-eighth street, into offices and is about ready for business. Mr. Young turns his hand successfully to everything he undertakes.

Meyer, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, is back much rejuvenated by his vacation.

Reed & Keller are shipping their exhibit to Baltimore this week. Mr. Reed will be in charge.

Arthur Hunt, of H. H. Langjahr's, has fully recovered from the operation of a month ago.

Mr. Nash, of Moore, Hentz & Nash, is away with his family on their annual outing.

The report that B. S. Slinn, Jr., was in Europe should have read Long Island.

Jos. J. Levy and family return August 12 from the Catskills.

Mr. Stumpp, of the Stumpp & Walter Co., returned August 7 from his trip to Europe, and Mr. Walter and family left for their regular summer outing at the Maine resorts.

George Lenker, son of Charles Lenker, of Freeport, has returned from Germany.

Miss L. Meyers, of W. Elliott & Sons, has gone to White Lake for three weeks.

John Wilk, the seedsman on East Eighty-fourth street, has returned from a month's holiday in the Catskills.

P. J. Smith handled over 10,000 lilies last week.

Bowling.

F. R. Pierson was unable to be present at the distribution of his bowling trophies August 4, but the happy receivers of his gifts were loud in appreciation of his encouragement. The Astorias, who were expected to play a match with the New Yorks August 4, must have missed their trolley or failed of a quorum, so the match was postponed.

Captain Chadwick will have a strong team to represent New York at Baltimore. It seems to be the general opinion that Astoria, Flatbush, Madison and Jersey City all have the right to be represented by teams of their own selection at the convention.

The scores August 4 were:

WASHINGTON.

Gudes Are Hosts.

The Washington Florists' Club, with Secretary of Argiculture Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. R. Vincent, Jr., of Baltimore, as special guests, was entertained Tuesday evening, August 1, by Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gude. A lecture by Mr. Vincent and a general program of music and recitation formed the evening's entertainment for the 250 guests. The beautifully decorated and illuminated lawn of the Gude residence, at 3900 New Hampshire avenue, and the menu served, completed one of the most enjoyable social gatherings in the history of the club.

Holland's bulb propagating industry was the subject of a stereopticon lecture by Mr. Vincent. He showed by his views and explained in his talk all the processes from the planting of the parent bulb to the harvesting of the hundreds of shipping bulbs that it produces.

The Gude lawn was trimmed with festoons of Japanese lanterns that radiated from the Japanese pagoda in the center.

From 8 o'clock until midnight the time was filled with social features. The business session will be held later.

No Washington Day.

It is practically settled that Washington will not extend any general hospitalities to the florists while they are in convention in Baltimore. This question has been discussed here a good deal, and the local florists have been considerably embarrassed by published reports that they intended to invite the delegates to visit Washington and that there would be a program of such elaborate proportions as to impress the

We think we can make it to your advantage to do so, as regards both quality and price.

The stock that we offer is not gathered indiscriminately from all kinds of sources, but is grown for us by a few selected growers whose stocks have been worked up from the true, original stock. In order to insure the health of the product, the bulbs are not grown on the same field oftener than one season, other crops being grown on the field the preceding year. The ground is thoroughly manured when the previous crop is grown, leaving it in a high state of cultivation, and when the lily bulbs are planted no fresh manure is used; this prevents disease and insures a crop of strong, healthy bulbs.

In addition to this, we do not dig our bulbs as early as they are usually dug, but leave them in the ground until they are thoroughly ripened and matured. When Harrisii is good it leaves little to be desired. There is very little, if any, stock obtainable as good as the stock that we are offering. We are supplying only this one grade of selected stock and when this is disposed of we shall have no more to offer.

While the quality of the stock that we offer is of the highest, our prices are as low as, or lower than, the prices of those who offer the ordinary stock gathered from indiscriminate sources. We are sure buyers will find our stock very satisfactory, and much more so than the Japan-grown Longiflorum, which has badly deteriorated in recent years.

Bear in mind that we were the original introducers of Harrisii in Bermuda, and that we have exceptional facilities for obtaining our present supplies. Also take note that the smallest bulbs that we offer are 6-7 inch bulbs, not 5-7 inch, as usually offered.

6- 7 inch bulbs, 350 to the case,	$15.00 per case;	full thousand lots,	$ 40.00 per 1000
7- 9 inch bulbs, 200 to the case,	16.00 per case;	full thousand lots,	75.00 per 1000
9-11 inch bulbs, 100 to the case,	18.00 per case;	full thousand lots,	175.00 per 1000

FERNS

We have an exceptionally nice lot of ferns in the following varieties—good, bushy, well-grown plants that will please the most critical buyers. Plants have been grown in pots and are thoroughly well established and nicely finished.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and Piersoni, 6-inch pots	$0.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Piersoni, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 8-inch plants	$1.00 to 1.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 10-inch plants	2.50 each strangers with a lasting realization of the hospitality and public spirit of the business men of the capital. Nothing of the kind is contemplated. If any of the visitors to the convention feel a desire to visit Washington, gaze on the dome of the capitol, ride to the top of the Washington monument, and make the patriotic pilgrimage to the mausoleum of Washington, they are welcome to do so and the right hand of fellowship will be extended to all who give the high sign and murmur the password. "It would not be in good taste for us to do more," said a prominent florist who attended the business meeting August 1. "The program at Baltimore will be so full that it would be impolite for us to break into it." In fact, little is said about the business meeting in question. The social features were a success. Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gude turned their home over to the guests and there was plenty of sociability and amusement. There was another business meeting August 8. Nothing of great interest came up.

The Market.

Trade is good for this time of year, although tinged rather strongly with seasonal dullness. The presence of Congress helps to prevent a total slump. Weddings and funerals give many orders. Not a little business comes from out of town, some of it from points as far distant as New York, Norfolk and Richmond.

The first cuttings of new Beauties were made about a week ago. The blooms were good and the demand active. Stock in general is improving in quality, except carnations and a few other things. Asters are better and plentiful at 50 cents and upward. Among roses, Kaiserin is showing up well. Gardenias and stephanotis continue to be equal to the demand. The Togo festivities here helped local trade but little, most of the functions being government affairs. D.

All bulbs of quality must bear a price in proportion to the skill, time, expense and risk attending their cultivation and distribution. Those bulbs termed dear are usually, when justly estimated, the cheapest; they are cultivated with much less profit than those usually termed cheap. The business of supplying bulbs cheaply and not attending to that excellence of quality necessary to eventual success is the most frequent and certain cause of business decadence among bulb houses throughout the world. It costs more to produce ten Giganteum of superior quality than it does twenty of common caliber. Really good Giganteum must be planted very deep in the soil and well fertilized and cultivated. It takes much longer and costs much more, but the bulbs are worth all it costs to those who know bulb values. Horseshoe Brand Giganteum are today the best we know of, and we can recommend them to the most exacting growers of lily bulbs in the world. The cost to you is exactly in proportion to what you pay for—they are a-la-carte Giganteum. Write for prices—they are the kind your business requires.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston, June, 1912.

THE importations of plants, trees, etc., in May, 1911, were valued at $122,942, against $84,540 in May, 1910.

WM. A. PETERSON, at the recent San Francisco convention of the International Sunday School Association, was elected treasurer for a term of three years. Mr. Peterson is proprietor of the Peterson Nursery, Chicago.

SOUTHERNERS WILL MEET.

The thirteenth annual session of the Southern Nurserymen's Association, embracing the states south of the Mason and Dixon line, will be held at Greensboro, N. C., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 23, 24 and 25. The opening session invocation will be made by Rev. E. K. McLarty, and addresses of welcome will be delivered by Mayor T. J. Murphy and President R. C. Hood of the Chamber of Commerce.

The association was organized thirteen years ago in Chattanooga, Tenn., by a few energetic nurserymen and since that time has held sessions annually. It has met in several different places. Two of the most prominent members of the association are J. Van Lindley, president of the Van Lindley nurseries at Pomona, a suburb of Greensboro, and John A. Young, proprietor of the Greensboro nurseries. Both have held the office of president of the association. The present officers are: W. A. Easterly, of Cleveland, Tenn., president; Aubrey Fink, of Winchester, Tenn., vice-president; A. L. Smith, of Knoxville, secretary-treasurer.

NURSERYMAN AND ENTOMOLOGIST.

[A paper by S. J. Hunter, state entomologist, University of Kansas, read at the convention of the American Association of Nurserymen in St. Louis, June 14 to 16, 1911.]

In the fall of 1896 the Kansas nurserymen asked the entomologist of the University of Kansas to assume responsibility for the inspection of Kansas nurseries. For eleven years without legal requirement these nurserymen, of their own volition, asked for inspection annually. And then they caused the enactment of our present law. So what I have to say might be classed under "Fifteen Years Among Nurserymen."

Hiram T. Jones
Union County Nurseries, Elizabeth, N. J.

The nurseryman and his business are not always clearly understood. The individuals who travel about the country buying stock where they may and selling where they can, regardless of consequences, are not nurserymen. A nurseryman in the proper sense of the term is a biologist, a student of that invisible stream of life which courses through twig and leaf. To be successful, therefore, he must have a high and proper conception of his vocation and its responsibilities.

The Modern Nurseryman.

In my annual visits among our Kansas nurserymen I have been not only interested but deeply impressed with the spirit of experimentation manifested in the earnest desire to improve present varieties and to develop new ones. As a result the nurseryman is now a competent authority on varieties adapted to given regions and the culture such require. In my own state, the first planted orchards were in the main non-productive. Their planters had no opportunity to profit by the experiences of the present-day nurseryman.

It was my good fortune once to be a country school teacher and janitor ex-officio. There is the place to deal with the country life problems. If the teacher places proper emphasis on the marvelous possibilities of the farmer and fruit grower, rather than idealizing those vocations which have their centers in cities, then our young people will look more toward rural life for the realization of their ambitions.

What Is an Entomologist?

And now it may properly be asked, what is an entomologist? The public frequently associates him with the butterfly net. In reality he has little or nothing to do with the capture of insects, but his time and energy are largely devoted to those fundamental questions which deal with the relation of plants and insects and the development of both. He, too, is a student of biology and, as such, should be fellow investigator in a common interest with the nurseryman.

The nurseryman and the entomologist are now likewise associated through legal enactment, and it is this phase of the subject that doubtless concerns this association most. In this relation it goes without saying that both should be men of integrity. The entomologist should be a man of good sense and possessed of a reasonable amount of fair judgment. He should be a man to whom you will always want to tell your troubles. If he is not, there is something wrong either with him or with you. He should keep you advised at all times regarding the nature and condition of your stock and treat your business as strictly confidential.

Manner and Purpose of Inspection.

It has been my uniform experience that nurserymen want rigid inspection and that they have little patience or respect for things that do not mean what they say. The certificate of inspection is not a commodity to facilitate business, but the outward expression of a standard which every true nurseryman endeavors to maintain. If this be not so, then it should be evident that each state in its own interest must assume the responsibility for this standard.

I believe that we will all agree that just at this time it is unusually easy to find fault, but constructive criticism is what we want. The nurseryman and the entomologist can be of mutual helpfulness. Such, however, can be only through mutual confidence and earnest coöperation.

It goes without saying that we need greater uniformity in state requirements, but there will always be questions which each state must settle for itself. The nurserymen of each state, therefore, should have a part in determining the policy of its inspection regulations. It should not and can not be properly done independently of them. If present arrangements can not give you a voice, you should ask for it. A state entomologist some time ago asked me what he could do to improve the efficiency of his nursery department. I told him to select from among his nurserymen an advisory committee of representative nurserymen and to counsel with them fully regarding all of his plans of operation.

Problems of the Entomologist.

The entomologist can be made one of your most valuable assets. You need never question his intentions. His judgment may not always appeal to you. The entomologist has his problems in the administration of his part of the nursery business. The certificate carries with it his standing. If the certificate is misused it reflects directly upon him. He finds it difficult at times to classify as a nurseryman an applicant for a certificate who has but a few plants on a vacant lot.

Nurserymen are coming to establish fellowships whereby the entomologists coöperate with them in solving some of the problems which are now costing them thousands of dollars annually. Some nurserymen are sending their sons to universities for special training in entomology. Others are placing an entomologist on their working staff. This is the proper attitude and one certain of results.

Good Out of Evil.

"It is an ill wind that blows nobody good." To petty thieves we owe the discovery of the wonderful fungicidal power of the Bordeaux mixture, first placed on grapes as a protection against pilferers. Injurious insects have proven an incentive to proper culture.

When we consider that more than one-half of our injurious insects are foreigners imported into our country, that foreign imports of nursery stock increase with each year and that with these we are in great danger of introducing enemies of horticulture capable of creating great losses and becoming heavy handicaps to the business represented here, we should be fully awake to the necessity of most hearty coöperation between the nurseryman and the entomologist in securing national legislation of the right sort.

This is a time of getting together, the day of coöperation, of government by commission. The entomologist and the nurseryman, then, working as a commission, are in harmony with the times. In no other way can either obtain so good results.

The Market.

There is but little to report in the way of business. Things have settled down to the regular midsummer state and, outside of an occasional funeral, there is little doing. All the growers are busy replanting their houses and getting ready for the next season. Roses are all in and carnations are being housed as rapidly as possible. Everybody seems to be planting earlier than usual this year.

Various Notes.

The Smith & Young Co. expects to get its new downtown distributing house in operation in the near future, so as to have things in smooth running condition when the new season opens.

At Baur & Steinkamp's all hands have been busy housing carnations, having finished the work August 3. The stock here looks exceptionally good this season. Poinsettias are being shipped in large quantities, and a finer lot of young plants would be hard to find. Their early asters were of fine quality. A house of about 6,000 plants will be in fine crop in about a week. Semple's and Carlson's are grown for midseason, the Comet varieties being poor sellers in this market.

At the Pahud Floral Co. carnations are all benched. We notice that this firm is this season trying beds built according to the recommendations of The Review's carnation expert. Their mums are in fine shape.

The Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co. is beginning to cut roses from the young stock. The stems are as yet short, but the flowers are good.

An inquiry has been started into the conditions at the city market, of which the flower market is a part. There seems to be too much middleman in the produce section, causing excessive prices. There are not many middlemen in the flower market, nearly all the stands being conducted by growers, so the florists are not likely to be molested. An interesting fact brought out by the investigation is that instead of the market having been conducted as a place where the public could buy produce fresh and at reasonable figures, the city has for many years past run it as a revenue producer. A clear profit of some $25,000 per year has been levied on the stand holders, which, of course, had to come out of the ultimate consumer.

Attention is called to the state fair, which is to be held September 4 to 8. Entries will close August 19, and no entries will be received after that date. The State Florists' Association of Indiana practically has charge of the floricultural department and during the last three years has worked great improvement in that department. Prospects this year are good for the best show ever put up, as several new exhibitors are preparing to enter the competition. If you intend to exhibit, be sure to send in your entries by August 19. Premium lists can be had from Secretary A. F. J. Baur, of this city.

Vacations are in order. H. L. Wiegand seems lost somewhere up in Michigan.

C. E. Green, of Wiegand's, has returned from a three weeks' sojourn in the southern part of the state.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW, Chicago, Ill.

KENDALLVILLE, IND., January 21, 1911.

GENTLEMEN:—In looking over our advertising records for the last few years, we find that your publication has made a remarkable record Since we began to advertise with you in 1907, for every dollar we have spent we have received $8.74 in direct sales. This leaves out, of course all the indirect influences which our advertising has had, which, no doubt, amounts to a great deal.

We think it only due you to let you know these facts, and we will be glad at any time to testify to the value of your publication as a medium for reaching high-grade florists. Thanking you for your many favors, we are

Yours very truly,

McCRAY REFRIGERATOR CO., T. T. REDINGTON, Advertising Manager.

PACIFIC COAST.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—The Leedham Bulb Co. is completing a greenhouse, 22x100, which will be used to bring in early crops of daffodil blooms and for propagating. The company has lately been making large shipments of gladiolus spikes, for which there has been a very good market. J. H. Willey, who has been the manager for the last three years, has considerably developed the business.

Wenatchee, Wash.—The Milot-Mills Co. has completed a new addition to its greenhouses. There will be no need of purchasing another boiler, as the present boiler has ample capacity to care for the enlarged range. Business has been good and there has been no hindrance here to the growth of stock, as sunshine and water are both plentiful; an abundance of water for irrigation is obtained from the Wenatchee river. Leon I. Milot, the manager, left recently for a trip to the east.

BURLINGAME, CAL.

On her recently purchased estate at Hillsborough, Miss Jennie Crocker has put up a range of four greenhouses, each 26x200, for roses, carnations and other stock; also one cheesecloth house for chrysanthemums. These will be run on a commercial basis by her superintendent, Henry Maier, in conjunction with the propagating and show houses of old standing and the general nursery business in Burlingame.

The land on which the new houses are erected is located near the main entrance to the estate and is level, rich and sheltered. It was formerly rented to Chinese, who grew cut flowers for the market, but on account of the good location a good deal of retail business had been worked up. The transfer from Chinamen to a millionaire is considered by the growers to be for the better, as it will not lower prices. C. N.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

We are still having cold weather, which, although somewhat out of season, admits of the production of plenty of good stock. Asters are rather more plentiful than they were and the price has fallen. They will be in full crop in a few days and, though there is not as great an acreage devoted to them this year as there was last season, there will be sufficient for all wants. Gladioli are now in their prime, but are not moving as well as they did a year ago. America and Augusta are the best sellers, while the mixed sorts are hard to dispose of. Dahlias are being used considerably by the stores in window decorating, but otherwise are not much in demand.

Carnations are still in only fair crop, owing to the fact that many growers are changing stock at this time. Many of them are short-stemmed and the prices match the quality. Roses are in better form and color than they have been for the last month and the demand for good stock is becoming more noticeable daily. Japanese lilies of several kinds are now at their best and are selling well. In a general way it may be said that business is improving, due to the fact that the public schools are in session again and the vacation days for most people are about over for the year.

Various Notes.

Peter Hansen, a well known gardener of Niles, Cal., was brutally beaten by thugs and relieved of $40 on the night of July 30, when on the way to his hotel after an evening spent at the theater.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is still at a low ebb, depending principally upon the transient trade, with an occasional funeral order to break the monotony.

Carnations are becoming scarce, and are diminishing in size, as well. Asters are coming along nicely, but the dry weather has impaired their quality. Roses are poor; thrips seems to be prevalent on all sides. Rubrum and auratum lilies are plentiful.

Various Notes.

S. Lubliner has given up his lease on Seventh street, but expects to reopen later when a new location can be secured.

J. A. Wilson and family, accompanied by Miss Mildred Crout, are spending some time at Long Beach.

W. J. Williams and family are vacationing near Tillamook, Ore., the main attraction being the trout streams of the coast range.

James Edwards, formerly of Whitton & Edwards, Astoria, disappeared July 4 and fear is entertained that he was drowned in the Columbia river.

The sympathy of the trade is extended S. H. Forshaw, of Pendleton, on the death of his wife, who had been sick for some time.

E. R. C.

A LARGE SIGN IN ELK COLORS.

I wish to get some information on a matter of landscaping. A watering-place hotel at this town, in the southern part of the state of Washington, has ordered a large floral sign made of purple flowers. Is there anything I can use except lobelias or ageratums and what would be the best plant to use for shading the letters? The sign is to occupy a sloping bank, 10x150 feet, at the railroad depot. The proprietor is an Elk and wants this done in Elk colors.

W. T. J.

As purple is the Elk color and the shade used is designated as "royal," it does not seem that there is much to use except one of the dark lobelias. The writer uses Lobelia compacta Blue King for lettering where an especially dark, rich effect is desired. Although this sort has a white eye, it seems to stay in the erect shape better and keep in blossom longer than any of the other kinds that are used in border work. L. Erinus speciosa and L. Erinus gracilis are much harder to keep in shape. As the only decided contrast, with which to shade the letters, would be something in a very light color, W. T. J. might use Alternanthera aurea nana. This is about the only article that will correspond in style and growth to the lobelia. Alyssums do not stay in blossom long enough, and geraniums and achyranthes grow too fast to be of value for this sort of edging.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

The usual summer lull is now being experienced in this city, though an unusual run of funeral work has kept things moving along up to the present time. While this sluggishness has continued, the dearth of first-class stock has not been so appreciable as would have otherwise been the case. Prices rule about normal.

Various Notes.

George L. Stillman, the dahlia grower of Westerly, was in Worcester last week.

E. J. Johnston is painting and repairing the glass in his greenhouses on Rochambeau avenue.

M. Macnair had an attractive and novel window decoration at his new store, at the corner of Chestnut and Broad streets, last week. With mosses and ferns he arranged a cool looking and pretty effect, with a small brook of running water coursing through it.

Edward J. Brooks, of T. J. Johnston & Co., is painting and frescoing the interior of their store on Weybosset street.

George Kelley was one of the guests at the outing of the Osprey Club in Rehoboth, August 6.

Howard Vose, of A. W. Vose & Son, Cumberland Hill, will open a store at Attleboro about September 1.

James B. Canning reports an unusually active summer business, especially in funeral work.

Joseph Kopelman was among those who enjoyed the annual outing of the Providence Lodge of Elks, August 3.

Thomas T. Booth, for several years foreman for Vose & Son, of Cumberland Hill, has purchased the Thayer greenhouses, at Manville, and will plant them to general stock. He is arranging for the erection of a new house, 20x80 feet.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.

F. S. Folwell says this has been his busiest season.

F. I. Drake has had all he could attend to and expects to spread out yet more.

What promises to be the show place of Pittsfield is the new acquisition of Warren N. Salisbury, a Chicago millionaire. It is located in the heart of the Berkshire Hills and is presided over by J. W. Pybus, formerly of Lenox. Some idea of the immensity of the proposed improvements can be formed from the fact that a contract for laying out the sunken gardens, including walks, pergolas, summer houses and the like, is to cost $30,000, and this is but a part of the undertaking. There will be a magnificent residence in the Grecian style of architecture, surrounded by a beautiful park, with a lake in close view of the house. Mr. Pybus has plans for forming a perennial garden as a leading feature.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

We are in the midst of the dull season, broken only by an occasional funeral. The local cut flower crop is now limited to some good outdoor roses and tuberoses, the latter especially being first-class and cut by some growers in abundance. The rainy season has somewhat abated and at present the weather is ideal for all kinds of plants.

On account of the exceptionally large demand for poinsettias last Christmas, this splendid seller is grown this year by several florists in large quantities, and the plants seen at present look strong and healthy. These plants grow here quite easily and are vigorous, and it is to be expected that in the future some large grower will make a specialty of them for shipping purposes. The heavy frost last January killed hundreds of them planted in the open ground all over the city, and the demand this season will be heavy.

The growing on of winter flowering plants is limited here on account of our climatical conditions and most of them are either imported or shipped from northern markets. This city, with its natural advantages, is surely the place to grow tropical and semi-tropical foliage plants, ferns and orchids. Although only the last named are at present imported and grown for wholesale purposes, some enterprising florist will one day take the advantage and establish a wholesale business for all kinds of stock profitably grown here.

Various Notes.

Many of the local florists took advantage of the dull season and went on their yearly summer trips and no doubt a good number will attend the convention at Baltimore.

William Rehm, the American representative of one of the largest seed growing firms in Denmark, is staying here with his relatives on a visit.

Mrs. U. J. Virgin and her son, U. J., Jr., joined her daughters and sister in Asheville, N. C.

The death of C. L. Sieber, a former resident of this city, is recorded in the obituary column of this issue.

Foxboro, Mass.—F. H. Baldwin has erected two greenhouses, each 25x150, on Baker street property, and will plant them with chrysanthemums, to be followed by a crop of violets. The houses are some distance from the street, with which they run parallel, and a glass-covered house extends from them to a new, two-story office building in front. Next season the three Baldwin houses on Main street will be removed to Baker street, so as to have all the houses in one compact range.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business last week was nothing to brag about, as most of the society folk are out of town and there is no funeral work to speak of.

The supply of asters is on the increase, but not so the quality. Gladioli are quite abundant and of good quality, and roses are about equal to the demand. Plenty of good lilies can be had at all times.

Various Notes.

At the last meeting of the Florists' Club, which was well attended, James Currie, superintendent of the Forest Home cemetery, and Adolph Groth, of North Milwaukee, were elected to membership. Preliminary premium lists for the fall show, to be held November 15 to 19, were distributed and circulars showing the program for the S. A. F. convention at Baltimore were passed out by Secretary Mueller. The matter of using wire designs more than once was brought up for discussion and it was shown how easily contagious diseases can be spread in this manner.

The following will represent Milwaukee at the Baltimore convention: Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pollworth, Wm. Currie and H. W. Koerner.

Jim Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis., while in this city Monday, became the possessor of a fine Reo auto, which he tested by riding home in it.

Tom Cassiday and Philip Weil, of the C. C. Pollworth store force, left on a two weeks' vacation last Saturday.

The baseball team and their friends, of the Holton & Hunkel force at Brown Deer, made merry lest Saturday evening by giving a dancing party.

The M. A. McKenney Co. reports business good for the best part of last week. E. O.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Considering the season, trade has been good. Flowers are plentiful. Asters are in full swing. Carnations are about gone, but the young stock is nearly all planted. Asters retail at 35 cents per dozen. Owing to the dry spell in July, they are a little late, the early ones being still in full bloom. The recent rains have helped the late ones. Carnations—the few that are brought in—retail at 35 cents per dozen. Roses retail at $1 and $1.50 per dozen; they are fairly good for this time of the year. Gladioli retail at $1 and $1.50 per dozen. Sweet peas are none too plentiful, as the dry spell worked havoc with them; 50 cents per hundred blooms is the general retail price. Candytuft helps out a great deal. Funeral work has been good. There is a fairly good call for nice potted ferns.

Various Notes.

The stores still close early. Vacations are also on the slate.

Harry Vranzler, with E. H. Chamberlain, spent last week at Oak Bluffs, Mass.

We are having nice weather, with cool nights. W. L.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

We have had a succession of violent storms and rain, which at times turned roads into rivers, uprooted trees and destroyed growing crops—at one time over six inches of rain fell in forty-eight hours. Cut flowers were exceptionally scarce last week and stock is poor in character generally, including outside roses, which usually cut a great figure at this season. On all sides complaints are heard of the bad effect on all outside stock caused by the hail storm which we had six weeks ago. Carnations were the hardest hit, the hail splitting the plants to pieces.

Convention News.

The preparations for the convention, with the exception of a few minor details, are completed. All visitors are requested to stay the full length of time, if possible, for the last day will be just as instructive and entertaining as the first one. Q.

ASHTABULA, OHIO.

The Tong & Weeks Floral Co. has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $20,000, and will take over the greenhouses of the Ashtabula Greenhouse Co. and of Tong & Weeks, as well as the Center street store of the latter firm. H. Tong will have charge of the greenhouses and De Forest Weeks will conduct the store.

It is the plan of the company to devote to growing roses and carnations one-half of the capacity of the greenhouses on Bunker Hill, which were formerly operated by the Ashtabula Greenhouse Co. as vegetable houses. The other half will be used for vegetables. The benches for the roses and carnations have already been constructed. When this feature is developed the concern will start a wholesale department in flowers.

WHERE THE BEST IS FOUND

The wisest men I know in the world are those who seek the best;
The Florists will go to Baltimore, and this is their only quest;
To see what the workers are doing, the men who put all their thought
In the flowers they grew, they love them so, and are proud of what they wrought.

But on the way there are marvels, the perfect is easily seen
In Godfrey Aschmann's greenhouses, where his araucarias green,
Or covered with azure sheen, where the hue of the sky shines clear
Through perfect form, made resplendent in beauty without a peer.

Do not miss them, my brothers; the City of Brotherly Love
Will give you a hearty welcome, and there you will easily prove
That Aschmann's will complete your journey, all that is wanted you'll see.
I ask you all for a visit; come, spend a few hours with me.

REMEMBER

Araucarias Are Our Specialty

We have them by the thousands—front, sides, back, everywhere.

Araucarias! Araucarias!! Araucarias!!!

Fresh and Green.

No one can beat us in this line.

WARNING.

DON'T BE DECEIVED! Now, as well as for the last 25 years, we hold the ground as leaders in the importing, growing and shipping of our specialty, the Araucaria.

ARAUCARIAS. 6000 just received from Antwerp, Belgium, more coming by next steamer. Araucaria Excelsa, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, palms, etc. Florists, you know we are leaders for the last 25 years in importing, growing and shipping this so well known evergreen decorative plant, the Araucaria, more in favor now than ever. Almost every florist knows our Araucarias, therefore no argument is needed for our goods. We know what our customers want and need, and have provided for them and set aside special specimen plants of the Spring Importation 1910. These specimen plants will stand the climate everywhere and are especially adapted for decorating lawns, porches, verandas, bungalows, private summer residences, hotels and boarding-houses at the seashore or elsewhere. Our prices are very low for fine stock.

Our so well-known Christmas Begonia Erfordii, a constant bloomer for the fall holidays, and during the whole winter is never without a flower; in light pink, pink, dark pink and turning gradually into a bright red (big trusses of flowers), 2½-in. pots, $5.00; 3-in., 8c; 4-in., 12c.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each article advertised in this department of The Review is good, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

HEATING FLORISTS' DWELLINGS.

We wish to heat our two dwelling houses from the greenhouse boilers. Would it be practicable? What size of flow and return pipe would be needed? Both flow and return would be underground. We carry about twenty pounds of steam on the boilers. One of the dwelling houses is about 200 feet from the boilers and about ten feet above the water line in the boilers. The other dwelling is about 400 feet from the boilers and about fifteen feet above the water line. Would a return steam trap be any advantage in a gravity system? W. C.

The dwellings could be readily heated by steam from the heating plant if the pipes can be carried underground with a rise all of the way. Nothing is said about the size of the dwellings, but if they do not contain more than ten rooms each a 2-inch flow and a 1¼-inch return would undoubtedly answer for each of them.

The pipes should be well insulated to prevent loss of heat. They can be carried in sewer pipe, using 8-inch sewer pipe for the flows and 6-inch for the returns; or, better yet, construct a cement conduit, about twelve inches wide and eight inches deep, in which both pipes can be carried. The cover can also be of cement slabs, about 2x14x18 inches. Ordinary asbestos pipe covering can be used for the pipes. It may be possible to supply both houses from one main, in which case it might be desirable to use 2½-inch and 1½-inch pipes. There would be no occasion for having a steam trap on the system on account of supplying the dwellings, but it might assist in getting a better return from the greenhouse coils.

HOT WATER FOR ONE HOUSE.

I wish to get your advice on heating a house 25x100 feet, six feet to the gutters and about thirteen feet to the ridge, with three feet of glass in the sides. I shall use hot water. My plan are all satisfied with the results it has given, and many duplicate orders is the proof. This Valve will maintain a steady pressure on the low side, no matter how the initial pressure fluctuates. By carrying 40 or 50 pounds pressure on the boiler and setting the valve to carry 5 or 10 pounds on the line, you always have a reserve to fall back on in case of a sudden drop in temperature. Our new catalogue is just out and if you contemplate making any changes you had better get one—it is yours for the asking.

is to run four 4-inch flows, two at each gutter, and eighteen 2-inch returns. Would it be more satisfactory to run one flow at each gutter, and one at each purlin? Is 1½-inch pipe as satisfactory as 2-inch for returns? If so, how many returns would I need? Does painting the pipes reduce their heating power? What size of boiler would I need to heat the house to a temperature of about 60 degrees in this Illinois climate? W. B. W.

If four 4-inch flows are used, thirteen 2-inch returns will be needed to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in the house described. However, it will be found that four 2½-inch flow pipes will suffice to maintain the desired temperature, with fifteen 2-inch returns, and this arrangement is suggested, placing two flows on the purlins. In shorter houses 1½-inch returns answer quite well, but when the houses are over seventy-five feet long, it is better to use 2-inch pipes for the returns. A boiler with a rating of 1,500 square feet will be ample. If a paint composed of lampblack and equal parts of turpentine and linseed oil is used, it will not impede the heating.

HEAT FOR SERVICE BUILDING.

We have a two-story frame office and service building that we want to heat with a separate system from any other. We recently purchased a heating outfit that had been used for steam. We have thirteen direct flow 16-foot wall coils, 1-inch pipe, of eight pipes each, manifold tapped 1-inch. We have about 1,000 feet of 1¼-inch, 2-inch, 2½-inch, 3-inch and 4-inch pipe to go with it. Our building is 40x130 feet, two-story frame, with building paper for inside walls. The first floor has a 10-foot ceiling, the second floor an 8-foot ceiling. We want to heat with hot water. Could we use the steam piping by reversing the flow and return pipes? We want to place the boiler at about the center of the building on one side. Could you tell us what size of boiler we would need and also the size and amount of pipe needed, providing we could not use the pipe we have?

on the first floor. The data given, however, is not sufficient to tell just how much radiation or how large a boiler will be required, since this depends largely on the amount of window surface, which is not stated. The quantity of each of the different sizes of pipes is not stated.

In a general way, a building of the size and kind described will require about 1,200 square feet of radiating surface, plus two-thirds as much as the area of glass in the windows, to heat it to 70 degrees. For 65 degrees, the quantity can be reduced fifteen per cent.

As a rule it is better to use 1½-inch or 2-inch pipe for hot water, and unless the boiler can be in a cellar or basement, it might be better to use steam for the building described, in which case the amount of radiation can be reduced one-half. A twenty-five horsepower boiler would undoubtedly be sufficiently large for heating the building.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

Last week's weather was good for flowers. It was cool and cloudy, with enough sunshine and rain to make things grow. Hence the supply is abundant and the demand is equally good. Asters and sweet peas seem to be most abundant, and the quality of both is good, though many of the asters have short stems, due to the dry weather during July. Roses are scarce and are sold about as soon as they come in. White roses are at a premium and bring a good price. Lilium Harrisii are scarce and so are callas. Killarneys, Marylands, Kaiserins and Wards are all of good quality. Sweet peas are much better than they have been for some time. Lilies of the valley are holding up well and bring a good price. Gladioli are in good condition and much more plentiful than at the last writing.

Garden flowers are in great demand. Many private gardens, being neglected during the hot spell, suffered from drought; consequently the owners of these gardens must now come to the florists for flowers for all occasions. Hence the great demand, and all sorts of garden flowers bring a good price. Cornflowers retail at 10 cents per dozen; Golden Glow, 25 cents per dozen; phlox, 35 cents per dozen; gladioli, $1 per dozen; asters, 50 cents per dozen; yellow daisies, 25 cents per dozen. Carnations are few and far between and there is little call for them during August.

Trade in general is rather dull, but there is enough left to let one feel that there is still some life throbbing underneath the lethargy of summer. A few important funerals helped to make things more lively last week and a decoration or two added their share.

Various Notes.

Exquisite pink gladioli and handsome Easter lilies in fancy imported vases, combined with Australian ferns, made up the artistic window display at E. C.

12 YEARS AGO

We Installed

—two "Morehead Traps" of type shown above in the greenhouse of John F. Horn Bros., Allentown, Pa. This machine has recently been replaced by larger traps of the "Morehead" type shown below—

Read What They Say

"In regards to the Morehead Steam Traps, the two old Steam Traps here were in use 12 years and did the work until we put up too many houses and then we had to get two No. 5, and these are large enough now for the entire place, which is 75,000 feet of glass. They give us no trouble here at all; pump all the water very easy and require no attention whatever. Work on all kinds of steam pressures, high or low. We have our boilers on floor level and have what you may call the Double Trap System. They deliver the water hot and quickly. Also feed the boilers with the city water when we need water by just letting it simmer in the receiver. We only turn off city water when we shut down steam for the day, so we can always hold the water line in our boilers steady by just letting the cold water valve so and thé city water mixes with the condensed water and never helps to run the steam down on the boilers. We consider the Traps far ahead of the pump, as the pump is too slow and requires packing and also oil. Traps for us every time and Morehead at that. The old Traps would have lasted a life-time, as they did not show any wear in the 12 years they were in use here."

Support Your Carnation Plants Properly and They Will Support You

Now is the time to put in some of our Carnation Supports, to show you how much more practical, economical and serviceable they are above other makes. Note our reasons.

They are easily put up and just as easily taken down; no tangled mess of wire to store away.

They pay for themselves quickly by the additional and superior blooms gained with the proper support of your plants.

Our No. 1 needs no overhead wires or strings except one thin wire, which locks on the clamp in the support, holding it upright and in place.

Our No. 2 Support acts as a stool for your plants, allows no sagging. With this support you use overhead wires or strings to keep blooms growing erect. It opens on both sides so all side shoots can be put in easily at all times. Note the low prices.

Mark Crawshaw cut the first Golden Glow chrysanthemums July 12 and believes this is about the earliest on record. It is no trouble to get them in with early asters. He has a fine stock.

Schaefers, Inc., report orders for wedding and funeral work ahead of the record.

The Newburgh Floral Co., Dr. W. Wait, proprietor, is successor to Caldwell & Jesperson. Henry Jesperson is a noted grower and will make a specialty of forcing stock for the wholesale market. Dr. Wait is well pleased with the orders received for his steel benches. M.

MILLBROOK, N. Y.

W. C. Russell has a large landscape contract on hand that will require a year for its completion. He says that if one such contract came to hand annually, he would retire from the cut flower end of the business.

W. Fletcher, superintendent of the Dieterich estate, has things in splendid shape, especially considering the dry season. He is an expert tree doctor, in addition to his other qualifications.

Charles Rapp, formerly superintendent for Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne, is planning to launch out on his own account at Melrose Highlands, Mass. M.

Oneonta, N. Y.—C. W. Peck is rebuilding two houses. Arthur Newport, the grower, is superintending the work. The material was supplied by the King Construction Co.

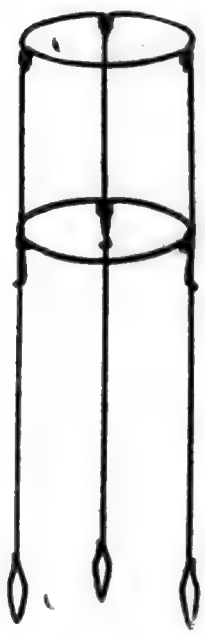
A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.



"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Flowers are more plentiful than a week ago. Asters and gladioli are coming good and selling well. Roses are improving and selling well. There is not an overstock of any cut flowers.

Various Notes.

E. G. Gillett left August 3 for a few weeks in Michigan.

August Sunderbruch, Cincinnati's oldest and most respected florist, peacefully passed away Tuesday, August 2, at 6 p. m. He was born May 26, 1830, at Marl Hanover, Germany. At the age of 15 years he started in his apprenticeship in the florists' and nursery business. In 1849 he arrived in New York and came directly to Cincinnati. He married Miss Dorothy Klanke. There were ten children, of whom three still survive, William, Albert, and Mrs. Louis Helwig. He was also a professor of botany at the Wesleyan Female College for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Murphy are rejoicing over the arrival of a son.

The meeting of the Florists' Society August 7 was well attended and business of importance was attended to in regard to the florists' meeting at Baltimore and the coming fall show. Cincinnati will send a bowling team to compete with the other florists' teams of the country. G. M.

GRASS SEED FOR KENTUCKY.

Can you inform me what would be the best kind of grass seed to sow on a lawn in Kentucky, in order to have grass which would stand dry weather? When would be the best time to sow? The location is about 100 miles west of Louisville. G. F.

You could have no better grass seed for your lawn than Kentucky blue grass or June grass, Poa pratensis. Mix a little red top, Agrostis alba vulgaris, with it. Do not purchase any of the fancy mixtures offered in the seed catalogues. These are all right in the more northerly states, where it is cooler and moister. In your state long droughts would soon kill out most of the grasses. Sow the seed from the middle to the end of September. The better the ground is prepared, the more satisfactorily will the grass stand summer droughts. C. W.

Club Meeting.

At the last meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club the following officers were elected:

President—G. Browne, reëlected.
Vice-President—J. F. Sullivan.
Secretary—H. Schroeter, reëlected.
Treasurer — Robert Rahaley, reelected.
Librarian—E. A. Scribner.

The annual outing will take place at Bois Blanc August 29.

Various Notes.

Robert Rahaley, manager of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, left August 6 to join Mrs. Rahaley at Mackinac Island and spend a week on the lakes.

B. Schroeter is having good results with his sale on Boston ferns.

Mrs. J. F. Sullivan, who has been ill a long time, was able to take a walk up the grounds August 6 and it is hoped that from now on her recovery will be rapid. H. S.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The prices of cut flowers are about as low as they can fall here at present, though the quality is all that could be asked for. The weather has been favorable, with plenty of rain, and the crops in general, both flowers and vegetables, have done well. Fruit, also, is plentiful.

Various Notes.

Christian Young, the vegetable and plant grower, recently completed a new market house, entirely of concrete construction. His trade in the spring and early summer was so brisk that his own stock was completely exhausted and he was obliged to have large quantities of various sorts of plants shipped in from other towns. He is now busy preparing his houses for his winter crops.

PAXTON, ILL.

Addems, Morgan & Co. expect to be ready for business with their new greenhouses by September 1, and will have one of the finest establishments in this part of the state. When completed there will be four houses, each 238 feet long, comprising about 30,000 square feet of glass, together with a boiler house and workroom, 22x100. Two sixty horse-power boilers will heat the range and the new residence of Chas. Addems, which adjoins. With Mr. Addems will reside his father, Joseph, and his sister, Miss Ida.

This is the U-Bar—the Bar that makes U-Bar Greenhouses the famous greenhouses they are.

Here is a beautiful formal sunken garden, flanked on two sides by U-Bar greenhouses. These houses replaced those of other constructions that were torn down because they were not in keeping.

The U-Bar was chosen because of its airy gracefulness, durability and unmatched productiveness. These are the points on which it wins out. Always it is a case of superior points—and not one of mere price. The best, of course, must cost more. But U-Bar houses are worth a good deal more than their difference in cost. The catalogue both tells and shows why. Send for it.

Actual use will convince any grower that the breakage of Ionia pots in greenhouse use is much less than the breakage with any other kind.

Ionia pots have what is commonly known as a round bottom, thereby assisting the drainage and permitting the plant to dump more easily without breaking the ball of soil.

THE BALTIMORE CONVENTION

TWENTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

THE NEXT MEETING WILL BE HELD AT CHICAGO.

OFFICERS FOR 1912:

President, RICHARD VINCENT, JR., White Marsh, Md.

Vice-president, AUGUST POEHLMANN, Chicago, Ill.

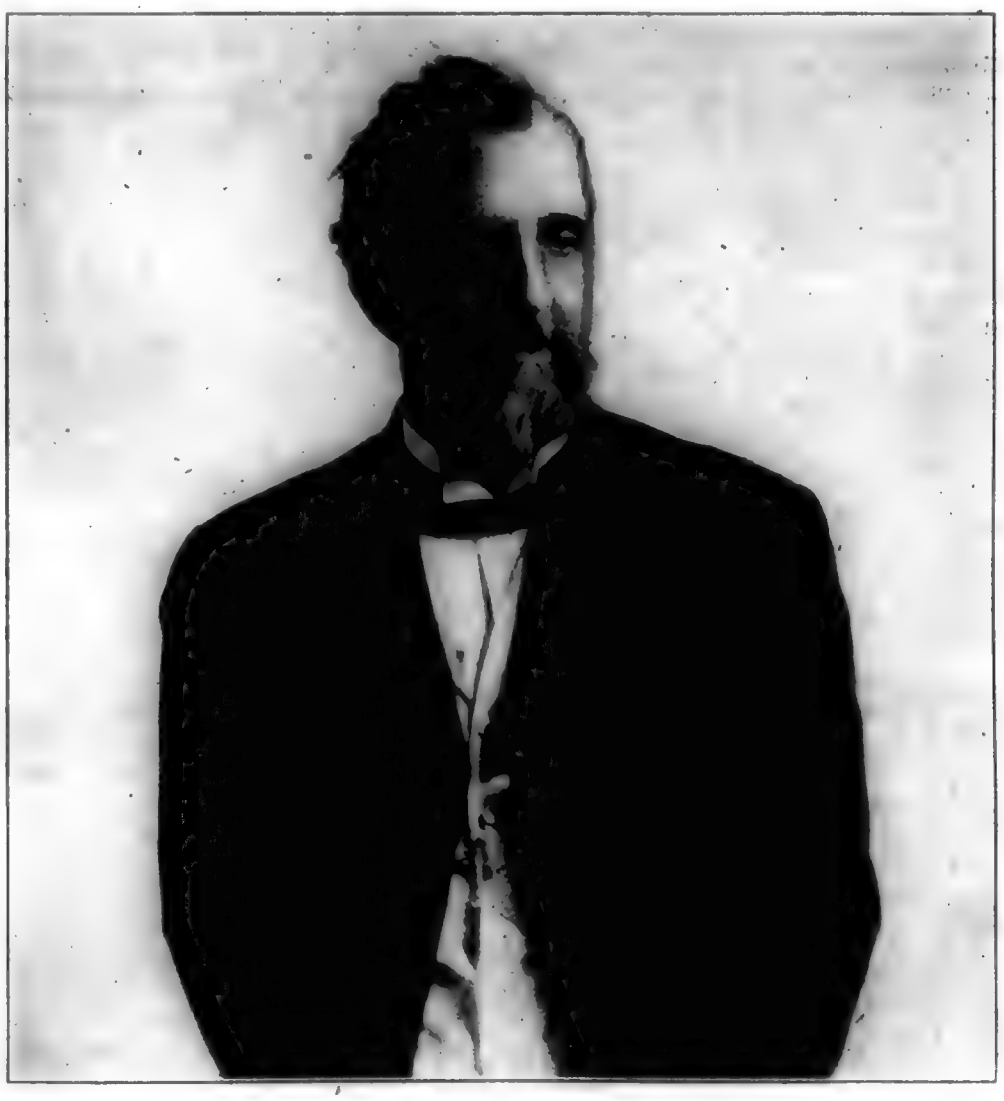
Secretary, JOHN YOUNG, Bedford Hills, N. Y.

Treasurer, WM. F. KASTING, Buffalo, N. Y.

For the twenty-seventh time the florists of America have gathered in annual convention, on this occasion on the shore of the Chesapeake, at Baltimore, midway between the north and the south, city of wealth, tradition and far-famed hospitality. Except for the expedition to "tickle the angels' feet," and the meeting at the national capital, it is farther south than the society ever has been before. There is a prejudice against going south in August, but it ought to be overcome, for, though many mansions in Baltimore have the shutters up, the weather is not so warm as most of the visitors to the convention city have experienced in their home towns within the recent past, though the humidity may be greater. There is no kick on Baltimore weather—it is not nearly so warm as the greeting of her citizens.

The attendance broke no records; in fact, it is just a little disappointing to the Baltimore florists, who say they had counted on more and hoped for twice as many. Just how it compares with other years is difficult to estimate. The pioneers used to gather and make a week of it together, but as the trade has broadened this has changed. Hundreds come from short distances; many go home the same night. Perhaps they come twice, for the opening day and again to enjoy the hospitalities of Friday. At any rate, the crowd never is all together at one time. The Atlantic seaboard, from Boston to the extreme south, was heavily represented this year, but the western men were not much in evidence; there were fully as many if not more at Boston in March, which perhaps accounts for the light attendance from west of Pittsburg this week.

The S. A. F. never had so fine a place to meet as the Fifth Regiment armory in Baltimore. Not only is there an ideal floor for the trade exhibits, but the meeting hall, committee rooms and all the facilities are under one roof. No need to go outside the building except to sleep. The arrangements left absolutely nothing to be desired. Those Baltimore florists certainly have profited by the lessons of the past, for if they made a single misstep it passed unnoticed in the general approval of their accomplishment.



The convention program also was shaped up by men who knew what the members approve, for the evening sessions were cut out and the number of learned essayists held down to a point where time would become available for the real work of the society. Thus the interest was increased.

The Opening Formalities.

One of the most popular men in the trade in Baltimore is "Old Bob" Graham, president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, to whom fell the duty of calling the convention to order, which he did promptly at the appointed hour of 2 p. m., Tuesday, August 15—those Baltimoreans are nothing if not prompt. The business sessions were held in one of the larger company rooms in the armory, on the same floor as the trades' display, where there were seats for all in spite of the fact that several of the visitors said they never before had seen so large an attendance at the beginning of an S. A. F. convention.

Mr. Graham said that the governor of Maryland, who had accepted an invitation to be present, had been unexpectedly called away and introduced as the governor's representative N. W. Williams, secretary of state for the state of Maryland. The Honorable Mr. Williams, who probably is fully as good a talker as the governor, else he would not be sent as a substitute, told of the elevating influence flowers have on those who buy them; of how they appeal to man's finer instincts. He said that the men who grow flowers reflect the character of their product and hence attract those with whom they come in contact—that was why he took honest pleasure in welcoming this convention to Maryland.

Mr. Graham introduced Mayor James H. Preston to follow Mr. Williams. He is a booster—you could tell that just by looking at him, before he said a word—

The convention program also was shaped up by men who knew what the members approve, for the evening sessions were cut out and the number of learned essayists held down to a point where time would become available for the real work of the society. Thus the interest was increased.

The Opening Formalities.

One of the most popular men in the trade in Baltimore is "Old Bob" Graham, president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, to whom fell the duty of calling the convention to order, which he did promptly at the appointed hour of 2 p. m., Tuesday, August 15—those Baltimoreans are nothing if not prompt. (President-elect Society of American Florists.)

and how he did boost Baltimore! But everyone there knew he meant it when he said he was glad to see so many visitors (he didn't offer the keys to the city) and everyone was prepared to agree with him that his is a grand little old town, none finer. No! Sir! None!

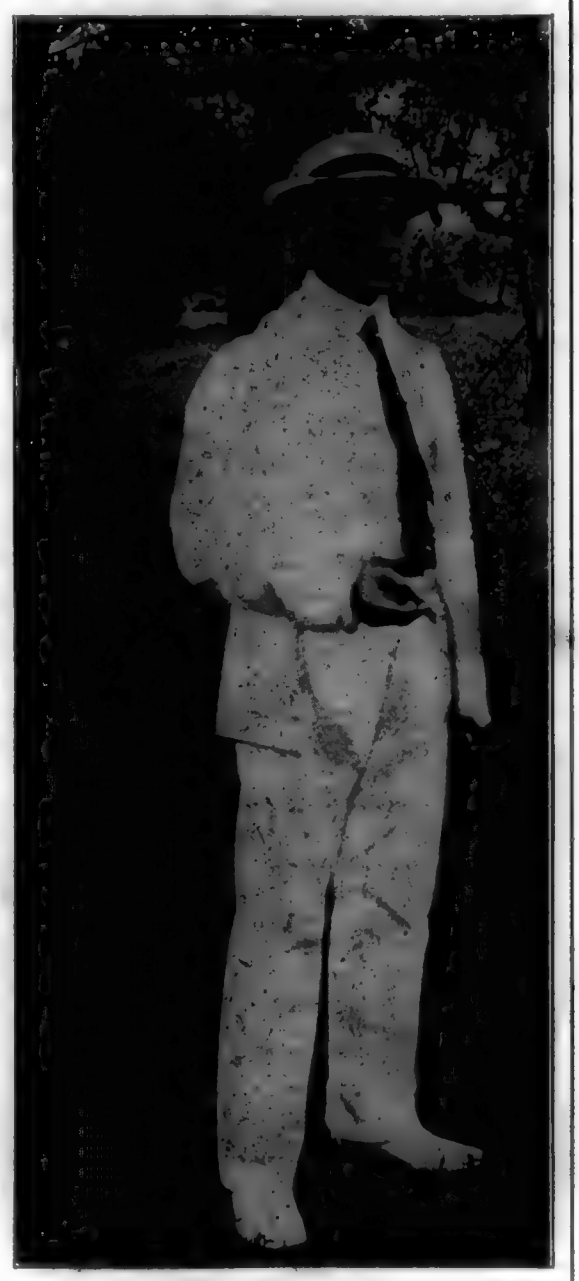
President Graham asked Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, to respond to the welcomes given, which that gentleman did in his usual graceful style, paying a word of tribute to the Feasts, Hallidays and Cooks, who have given Baltimore a standing in floriculture on a par with its reputation for hospitality. The convention was then fairly launched and the rudder was turned over to George Asmus, twenty-fifth president of the S. A. F. He received an ovation.

The Routine Work.

The rest of the afternoon was given to dispatching the routine work. President Asmus read a carefully prepared address, printed elsewhere in this issue, in which he offered many recommendations born of his years of experience in the affairs of the society. The venerable ex-President William R. Smith, of Washington, came in while Mr. Asmus was reading and was escorted to the platform amid cheers. Mr. Asmus asked that discussion of his address be postponed until a later session.

Secretary H. B. Dorner read a report of the year's work in his office and Treasurer W. F. Kasting presented a summary of the financial transactions, from both of which reports it was seen that the society has prospered as never before. The membership exceeds 1,100, fifty-seven new annual members and two new life members having been gained on the morning of that day. The balance in the treasurer's hands, including investments, was, August 10, $17,363.68. The addition to the balance in the year, the profit, so to speak, was $3,410.19. Mr. Kasting predicted an even better showing in the next annual report.

The state vice-presidents' reports were presented and referred to a committee without reading.



William F. Gude, Washington representative of the society, presented a report on his efforts before the post-office committee of Congress in behalf of the parcels post, a project which has three times been endorsed by the society in convention. Mr. Lenker, P. Welch and W. F. Kasting each had a word or two to say on the necessity for a parcels post and, on motion of Mr. Kasting, Mr. Gude was given a vote of thanks and implied instructions to keep at it.

President's Reception.

The president's reception was the feature for the evening of the opening day. It was held in the ball room of the splendid Hotel Belvedere, where the accommodations for such an affair left nothing to be desired. In the receiving line were President and Mrs. Asmus, Vice-president and Mrs. Vincent, R. L. Graham, president of the local club, and Mrs. Graham, ex-President and Mrs. Traendly, ex-Presidents W. R. Smith, W. J. Stewart and several others. Several hundred hands were shaken, after which refreshments were served in adjoining parlors, followed by dancing, but the excellently planned and most pleasant affair was brought to an early close, for during the evening news came of the sudden death of John Birnie, one of the oldest and most respected members, there in the hotel, where his widow was left in her grief. As the word was passed it brought sadness to every heart.

Death Invades the Society.

The session of Wednesday morning was postponed as a mark of respect to John Birnie, whose death occurred after adjournment the day before. The officers of the S. A. F. and of the special societies, together with prominent members, joined with the members of the New York Florists' Club present in Baltimore and, to the number of eighty-five, escorted the body of Mr. Birnie to the station, where the casket was opened and each florist dropped a rose upon his breast. It was the most impressive incident in the history of the Society of American Florists.

August Poehlmann.
(Vice-president-elect Society of American Florists.)

Reciprocity With Canada.

When the convention got down to business Wednesday, J. G. Esler introduced the subject of reciprocity with Canada by reading the report of the committee on tariff and legislation, printed elsewhere in this issue. He was followed by Patrick Welch, of Boston, who made a strong plea for the removal of the tariff on florists' products and supplies passing between Canada and the United States. Then came Mr. Robinson, of Montreal, who read a paper prepared by E. I. Mepsted, of Ottawa, Canada, who was unable to be present. Mr. Mepsted refuted one by one the arguments usually advanced in opposition to reciprocity, both speakers taking identical ground in favor of closer trade relations between the two countries. Benjamin Hammond commended the three papers, by Messrs. Esler, Welch and Mepsted, for the thorough manner in which they had set forth the advantages of the plan and the status of the movement, and F. R. Pierson offered the following resolution: "That it is the sentiment of the convention that the best interests of horticulture will be secured by reciprocity with Canada and that the tariff and legislative committee be instructed to use its best efforts to secure its consummation." Adopted.

Mr. Esler discussed the various methods of forwarding the work and asked for an expression of opinion as to which one should be pursued. J. Otto Thilow urged using the quickest method, whichever that is. Mr. Rudd moved that it be left entirely to the committee. Adopted.

Mr. Esler then sought an expression on the matter of joining the nurserymen in their fight on the proposed federal quarantine bill and the bill providing for federal inspection of nursery stock at the port of entry. F. R. Pierson spoke against the inspection bill, and on his motion the whole matter was referred back to the committee, with power.

Spring Meetings.

W. F. Kasting precipitated one of the warmest discussions in the recent history of the society when he introduced the subject of changing the time of meeting to March. He advanced a few of the reasons why the change would be advantageous, stating that the attendance of 694 outside florists at Boston last spring, compared with a registration of 701, including ladies, the first two days at Baltimore, proves that the trade can and will turn out in March.

W. N. Rudd urged that the great point is that the combining with the Rose and Carnation Societies in March will make possible doing in one trip what now takes three trips. W. R. Pierson made the point that the society membership was increased more at Boston than at any August convention. E. G. Hill said that he hopes to see all the trade societies join in a great national flower show every spring. A. Farenwald, president of the Rose Society, said the trade should just have one big meeting instead of three important ones each year, but that he feared an annual flower show, like the one at Boston, is out of the question.

At this point, J. D. Fulmer, of Des Moines, took the floor, saying that all the stars of the society seemed to be in favor of the March meeting, but that the rank and file is against it, as was shown by the postal card vote taken last year. March, he said, is the time when smaller florists are busy taking in the coin on which to take a summer vacation trip to the convention and have a good time. J. V. Phillips, the Brooklyn retailer, said he does not believe many retailers can be attracted regularly in March. These arguments brought out prompt rebuttal from Messrs. Kasting, W. R. Pierson, Hill and Westcott. S. B. Wertheimer endorsed the spring meeting from the standpoint of the exhibitor, stating that the personal comfort of all concerned will outweigh all other considerations and result in a larger attendance than can be had in midsummer.

W. N. Rudd moved that the proposal to amend the by-laws to permit of a change of date be taken from the table, where it was placed last year, and that it be placed on the ballot for the election of officers, for the deliberate action of the members. Carried.

Chicago Next.

For the first time in history the balloting to select the next meeting place resulted in a tie, ninety-seven votes for Louisville and the same number for Chicago. A second ballot was taken, at which each man's right to vote was authenticated from the membership books, with the result that Chicago polled 145 votes to 102 for Louisville.

The tellers were H. A. Bunyard, A. R. Baumer, C. C. Pollworth and S. A. Anderson.

The contest not only provoked much good-natured rivalry, but was the result of an episode similar to the one that led to the trip to Asheville. When this order of business was reached, Secretary Dorner read a letter of invitation from the Chicago Florists' Club and H. A. Philpott, president of the club, made a brief speech urging that it be accepted. J. C. Vaughan spoke of the advantages of Chicago as a convention city, reading a formal invitation from the Association of Commerce. Then August R. Baumer presented letters of invitation to Louisville from the governor of Kentucky, the mayor of Louisville and half a dozen commercial bodies. He then spoke for the Kentucky Society of Florists and introduced one of the Louisville members, Mr. Brown, the managing editor of the Louisville Times and director of the Louisville Convention and Publicity League, to talk on Kentucky's attractions. Mr. Brown made the most entertaining speech the society ever has had the pleasure of listening to. Though the mint julep took the place of tickling the angels' feet, the trend of his discourse was along the line of the talk of the Asheville gentlemen of vivid memory and it almost had the same effect, for he sat down amid a storm of applause. Chicago friends gave up hope, but cast their ballots, and were surprised when they had tied the score. On the second ballot Chicago gained more votes than Louisville did, and won. The silver-tongued gentleman then moved to make it unanimous.

A Bid From California.

While the session was in progress the secretary received a letter from California containing the applications of twenty-two new members and the suggestion that it is not too early to turn thoughts westward, as 1915 is to be a great year in California. The letter contained a check for $116, dues for the new members and two old ones. It was from Dan MacRorie.

Nomination of Officers.

Nominations for president being in order, R. L. Graham nominated R. Vincent, Jr., E. C. Reineman seconding. Robert Craig nominated John K. M. L. Farquhar, C. H. Totty seconding.

For vice-president, H. B. Howard nominated H. E. Philpott, president of the Chicago Florists' Club, after which W. N. Rudd nominated August Poehlmann. E. G. Hill seconded the nomination of Mr. Philpott and F. H. Traendly that of Mr. Poehlmann.

For secretary, W. J. Stewart nominated John Young; seconded by W. N. Rudd and W. F. Sheridan. J. Otto Thilow nominated David Rust; seconded by William Currie.

For treasurer, Patrick Welch nominated Wm. F. Kasting and there were many seconds.

President Asmus named Patrick Welch, W. F. Sheridan and R. L. Graham as tellers for the election, to be held next day.

The National Flower Show.

F. R. Pierson presented the report of the committee on the National Flower Show, printed in full elsewhere in this issue. It showed a net profit for the society of $1,450, and Mr. Pierson recommended that this and the $483 profit from the Chicago show be placed in the permanent fund. Adopted.

W. N. Rudd moved that the work of all members who managed the Boston show was highly commendable and that the thanks of the society were due. Adopted.

W. A. Manda moved that the complete record of the show be published in the annual report, to which Mr. Rudd added the names of all officers and committees. There were many exand how he did boost Baltimore! But everyone there knew he meant it when he said he was glad to see so many visitors (he didn't offer the keys to the city) and everyone was prepared to agree with him that his is a grand little old town, none finer. No! Sir! None!

President Graham asked Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, to respond to the welcomes given, which that gentleman did in his usual graceful style, paying a word of tribute to the Feasts, Hallidays and Cooks, who have given Baltimore a standing in floriculture on a par with its reputation for hospitality. The convention was then fairly launched and the rudder was turned over to George Asmus, twenty-fifth president of the S. A. F. He received an ovation.

The Routine Work.

The rest of the afternoon was given to dispatching the routine work. President Asmus read a carefully prepared address, printed elsewhere in this issue, in which he offered many recommendations born of his years of experience in the affairs of the society. The venerable ex-President William R. Smith, of Washington, came in while Mr. Asmus was reading and was escorted to the platform amid cheers. Mr. Asmus asked that discussion of his address be postponed until a later session.

Secretary H. B. Dorner read a report of the year's work in his office and Treasurer W. F. Kasting presented a summary of the financial transactions, from both of which reports it was seen that the society has prospered as never before. The membership exceeds 1,100, fifty-seven new annual members and two new life members having been gained on the morning of that day. The balance in the treasurer's hands, including investments, was, August 10, $17,363.68. The addition to the balance in the year, the profit, so to speak, was $3,410.19. Mr. Kasting predicted an even better showing in the next annual report.

The state vice-presidents' reports were presented and referred to a committee without reading.

William F. Gude, Washington representative of the society, presented a report on his efforts before the post-office committee of Congress in behalf of the parcels post, a project which has three times been endorsed by the society in convention. Mr. Lenker, P. Welch and W. F. Kasting each had a word or two to say on the necessity for a parcels post and, on motion of Mr. Kasting, Mr. Gude was given a vote of thanks and implied instructions to keep at it.

President's Reception.

The president's reception was the feature for the evening of the opening day. It was held in the ball room of the splendid Hotel Belvedere, where the accommodations for such an affair left nothing to be desired. In the receiving line were President and Mrs. Asmus, Vice-president and Mrs. Vincent, R. L. Graham, president of the local club, and Mrs. Graham, ex-President and Mrs. Traendly, ex-Presidents W. R. Smith, W. J. Stewart and several others. Several hundred hands were shaken, after which refreshments were served in adjoining parlors, followed by dancing, but the excellently planned and most pleasant affair was brought to an early close, for during the evening news came of the sudden death of John Birnie, one of the oldest and most respected members, there in the hotel, where his widow was left in her grief. As the word was passed it brought sadness to every heart.

Death Invades the Society.

The session of Wednesday morning was postponed as a mark of respect to John Birnie, whose death occurred after adjournment the day before. The officers of the S. A. F. and of the special societies, together with prominent members, joined with the members of the New York Florists' Club present in Baltimore and, to the number of eighty-five, escorted the body of Mr. Birnie to the station, where the casket was opened and each florist dropped a rose upon his breast. It was the most impressive incident in the history of the Society of American Florists.

Reciprocity With Canada.

When the convention got down to business Wednesday, J. G. Esler introduced the subject of reciprocity with Canada by reading the report of the committee on tariff and legislation, printed elsewhere in this issue. He was followed by Patrick Welch, of Boston, who made a strong plea for the removal of the tariff on florists' products and supplies passing between Canada and the United States. Then came Mr. Robinson, of Montreal, who read a paper prepared by E. I. Mepsted, of Ottawa, Canada, who was unable to be present. Mr. Mepsted refuted one by one the arguments usually advanced in opposition to reciprocity, both speakers taking identical ground in favor of closer trade relations between the two countries. Benjamin Hammond commended the three papers, by Messrs. Esler, Welch and Mepsted, for the thorough manner in which they had set forth the advantages of the plan and the status of the movement, and F. R. Pierson offered the following resolution: "That it is the sentiment of the convention that the best interests of horticulture will be secured by reciprocity with Canada and that the tariff and legislative committee be instructed to use its best efforts to secure its consummation." Adopted.

Mr. Esler discussed the various methods of forwarding the work and asked for an expression of opinion as to which one should be pursued. J. Otto Thilow urged using the quickest method, whichever that is. Mr. Rudd moved that it be left entirely to the committee. Adopted.

Mr. Esler then sought an expression on the matter of joining the nurserymen in their fight on the proposed federal quarantine bill and the bill providing for federal inspection of nursery stock at the port of entry. F. R. Pierson spoke against the inspection bill, and on his motion the whole matter was referred back to the committee, with power.

Spring Meetings.

W. F. Kasting precipitated one of the warmest discussions in the recent history of the society when he introduced the subject of changing the time of meeting to March. He advanced a few of the reasons why the change would be advantageous, stating that the attendance of 694 outside florists at Boston last spring, compared with a registration of 701, including ladies, the first two days at Baltimore, proves that the trade can and will turn out in March.

W. N. Rudd urged that the great point is that the combining with the Rose and Carnation Societies in March will make possible doing in one trip what now takes three trips. W. R. Pierson made the point that the society membership was increased more at Boston than at any August convention. E. G. Hill said that he hopes to see all the trade societies join in a great national flower show every spring. A. Farenwald, president of the Rose Society, said the trade should just have one big meeting instead of three important ones each year, but that he feared an annual flower show, like the one at Boston, is out of the question.

At this point, J. D. Fulmer, of Des Moines, took the floor, saying that all the stars of the society seemed to be in favor of the March meeting, but that the rank and file is against it, as was shown by the postal card vote taken last year. March, he said, is the time when smaller florists are busy taking in the coin on which to take a summer vacation trip to the convention and have a good time. J. V. Phillips, the Brooklyn retailer, said he does not believe many retailers can be attracted regularly in March. These arguments brought out prompt rebuttal from Messrs. Kasting, W. R. Pierson, Hill and Westcott. S. B. Wertheimer endorsed the spring meeting from the standpoint of the exhibitor, stating that the personal comfort of all concerned will outweigh all other considerations and result in a larger attendance than can be had in midsummer.

W. N. Rudd moved that the proposal to amend the by-laws to permit of a change of date be taken from the table, where it was placed last year, and that it be placed on the ballot for the election of officers, for the deliberate action of the members. Carried.

Chicago Next.

For the first time in history the balloting to select the next meeting place resulted in a tie, ninety-seven votes for Louisville and the same number for Chicago. A second ballot was taken, at which each man's right to vote was authenticated from the membership books, with the result that Chicago polled 145 votes to 102 for Louisville.

The tellers were H. A. Bunyard, A. R. Baumer, C. C. Pollworth and S. A. Anderson.

The contest not only provoked much good-natured rivalry, but was the result of an episode similar to the one that led to the trip to Asheville. When this order of business was reached, Secretary Dorner read a letter of invitation from the Chicago Florists' Club and H. A. Philpott, president of the club, made a brief speech urging that it be accepted. J. C. Vaughan spoke of the advantages of Chicago as a convention city, reading a formal invitation from the Association of Commerce. Then August R. Baumer presented letters of invitation to Louisville from the governor of Kentucky, the mayor of Louisville and half a dozen commercial bodies. He then spoke for the Kentucky Society of Florists and introduced one of the Louisville members, Mr. Brown, the managing editor of the Louisville Times and director of the Louisville Convention and Publicity League, to talk on Kentucky's attractions. W. A. Manda moved that the complete record of the show be published in the annual report, to which Mr. Rudd added the names of all officers and committees. There were many ex pressions of appreciation of the work done and the success of the great undertaking.

Miscellaneous Business.

William Duckham read a carefully prepared paper on the private gardener and his relations to the society.

Mr. McMillan read a valuable report from the society's entomologist, Dr. Forbes not being able to be present in person.

The president appointed Joseph Heacock, Patrick Welch and Benjamin Hammond to consider the state vice-presidents' reports.

Judges' Report.

The judges of the trade exhibits entered as novelties were Irwin Bertermann, A. T. Pyfer and Fred H. Meinhardt. Their awards were as follows:

Honorable mention to Wertheimer Bros. for Werbro corsage shield and Wertheimer corsagettes.

High commendation to Wertheimer Bros. for Celestial funeral ribbon, for holly berry chiffon, for novelty Christmas ribbon and for novelty ribbons.

Honorable mention to Schloss Bros. for waterproof stem protector.

High commendation to Schloss Bros. for satin rose Jacquard and satin clover leaf Jacquard ribbons, newly designed.

Honorable mention to M. Rice & Co. for prepared cycas leaves, prepared by a new process.

Honorable mention to H. Bayersdorfer & Co. for wheat sheaves, new style for displaying flowers with stems in water.

Honorable mention to H. Bayersdorfer & Co. for mirror basket, a novelty for decorating the vacant space on mirrors.

Honorable mention to H. Bayersdorfer & Co. for new ornamental grasses of various kinds for fern dishes and wreaths.

Honorable mention to Fred Lappe for collection of cannas containing a number of improved seedlings.

High commendation to Reed & Keller for folding wire pedestal stands, specially designed to meet the requirements of florists for decorative work.

Honorable mention to Lion & Co. for featherweight pliable corsage shield that will conform to any shape of bouquet.

Honorable mention to Robert Craig Co. for collection of fifty seedling crotons and for another collection of thirteen seedling crotons, each of which latter is named for a state.

High commendation to Edward Amerpohl for handy delivery box for plants.

Honorable mention to George M. Garland Co. for improved lock joint, improved post locket and drip conductor in greenhouse construction.

Rose, Carnation, Sweet Pea Societies.

An informal joint meeting of the American Rose Society, American Carnation Society and National Sweet Pea Society was held at Baltimore, August 17. There were present President Farenwald and Secretary Hammond of the American Rose Society, Secretary Baur and Director Pierson of the American Carnation Society, and President Sim and Secretary Bunyard of the National Sweet Pea Society; also a large and representative number of the members, many of whom belong to all three organizations. The object of the meeting was to find some way of getting together in one large exhibition at Detroit early next year. F. R. Pierson presided and his efforts to secure free and full discussion brought out no difference of opinion on the desirability of a joining of forces. The only trouble lay in selecting a date satisfactory to the different interests. The representatives of the Carnation Society reported themselves bound to a January date by the action of a meeting at Boston and refused to vote on a resolution that it was the sense of the meeting that a date in March should be chosen. Finding there was no way around this obstacle, the rose men supported a resolution in favor of January 10 as the date for convening at Detroit, though the rose men said they did this only as a means of getting two societies together and not at all with the idea that it was the best date for themselves or the Sweet Pea Society. In fact, this left the young and rapidly growing Sweet Pea Society out in the cold, as its representatives stated they could see no possibility of making a creditable showing in January. Everyone regretted the inability to select a date that would be available to all, and Benjamin Hammond gave the Sweet Pea Society $100 to use as it sees fit. The officers stated that they think the society will hold a separate show of its own in the spring.

Later in the day the Rose Society and the Carnation Society held separate and joint meetings to ratify the action of the informal meeting and work out some of the details for the Detroit meeting.

American Gladiolus Society.

The American Gladiolus Society held an exhibition apart from the showing of gladioli in the trades' display. It was the largest and best show the society has yet had, in spite of the misfortune to flowers which caused one of the largest exhibitors to cancel all his entries. The show was particularly strong in new varieties of exceptional merit. The white seedling with which Thomann & Sons, Rochester, took several prizes was thought by many to be the best in its color in sight today.

The first certificate ever granted by the society was given to L. Merton Gage for the pink variety, Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Jr. E. A. Kunderd showed a splendid new orange pink variety and a magnificent lot of the ruffled variety, Kunderdi Glory. In the amateur classes Albert Lahondy, gardener to T. A. Havemeyer, won all the premiums, showing magnificent blooms.

The awards in the open classes were:

Michell cup for Kunderdi Glory, to William Robertson, gardener to J. W. Pepper, Jenkintown, Pa.

Crawford prize for best six spikes of any white, to Jacob Thomann & Sons, Rochester, on unnamed seedling.

Henderson prize for best ten varieties not yet on market, to H. W. Koerner, Milwaukee.

Burpee prize for collection of ten varieties, to John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y.

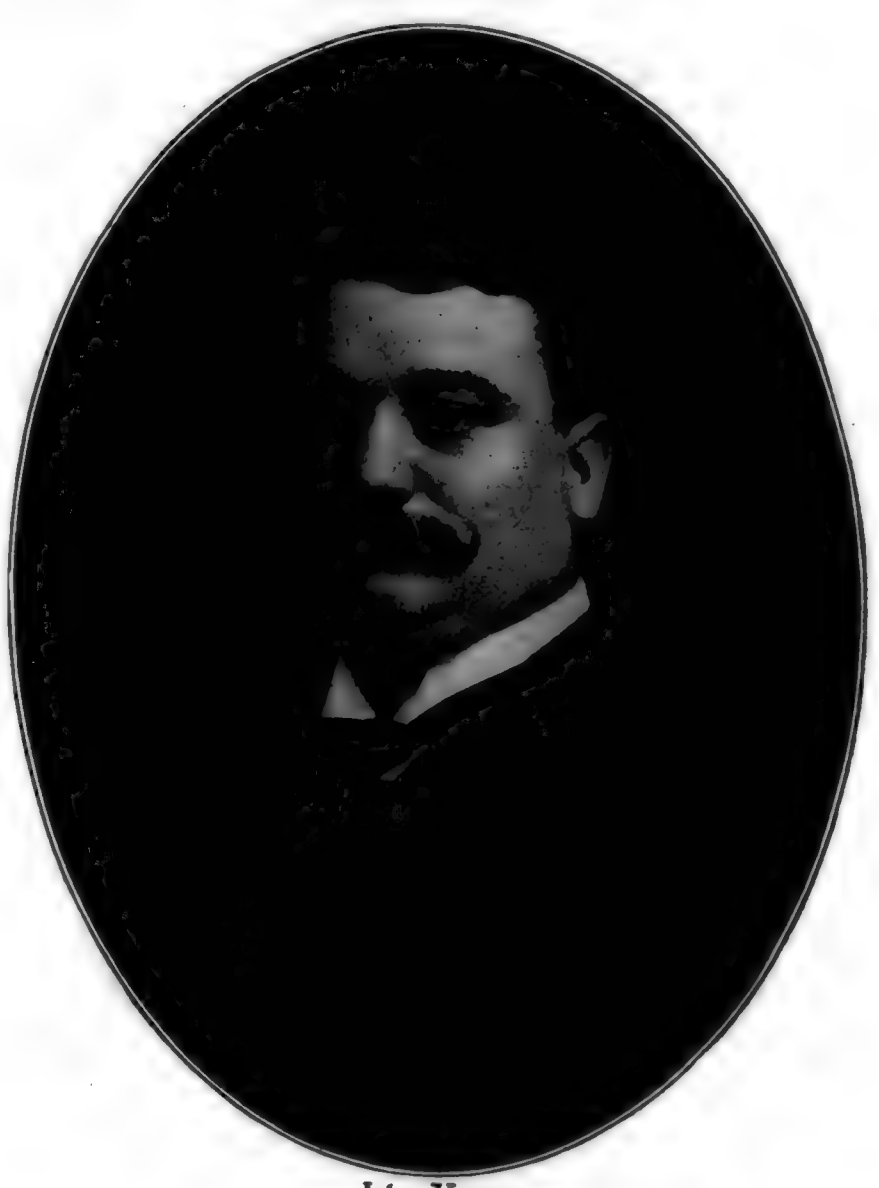
Stewart prize for Golden Queen, to B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.

White prize for vase of seedlings, to H. W. Koerner.

Cushman prize for vase of white variety, to Thomann & Sons, on their seedling.

Boddington prize for best named yellow, to John Lewis Childs on Sulphur King.

Gardeners' Chronicle cup for exhibit containing the largest number of named varieties, to John Lewis Childs, whose varieties numbered 115.



Stumpp & Walter prize for collection of fifteen varieties, to John Lewis Childs.

Crawford prize for table centerpiece, to Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy.

Banning prize for Niagara, to B. Hammond Tracy.

Groff prize for collection of hybrids, to H. W. Koerner.

Rowehl & Granz prize for Augusta, to B. Hammond Tracy.

John Young.

Kunderd prize for Kunderdi Glory, to William Robertson.

Kunderd prize for twenty spikes Kunderdi Glory, to Vaughan's Seed Store.

At a largely attended business session, August 16, President Hendrickson read a carefully prepared address, in which he outlined the needs of the society. The paper was referred to a committee consisting of J. C. Vaughan, M. Crawford and Arthur Cowee, for consideration and report. The secretary's report showed steadily increasing membership and the treasurer reported receipts for the year of 1911, disbursements of $545, and balance of $230, with $345 still on the books.

The bulletin committee reported, and President Hendrickson was specially thanked for his work. All delinquent members were ordered dropped.

Arthur Cowee brought up the matter of a scale for size of bulb for mixtures and it was voted that first size should consist of bulbs one and one-half inches and up, with second size consisting of bulbs one and one-quarter inches and up. There was discussion of the need of an official color chart and description, but no action was taken.

The committee on president's address reported concurrence in the recommendation that a board of registration be created to examine new varieties offered for that purpose, and nominated I. S. Hendrickson, Arthur Cowee and Carl Cropp; also that the society prepare a medal to be given to other societies as awards for exhibits of gladioli. The report was adopted.

It was voted later to prepare an official color chart.

Professor Fitzpatrick, of Cornell, delivered an address on the work done on disease of the gladiolus, illustrated by a large number of specimens, charts and photos.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Isaac S. Hendrickson; vice-president, E. H. Cushman; corresponding secretary, L. Merton Gage; financial secretary, H. Youell; treasurer, William Sperling; executive committee, Arthur Cowee, Arthur T. Poddington and E. W. Fengar; nomenclature committee, Arthur Cowee and Leonard Joerg.

Adjournment was to meet at Chicago.

Hail Association.

An amendment to the by-laws was adopted, raising the rate of insurance on single-thick glass from 8 cents to 10 cents.

Officers were elected as follows:

President, E. G. Hill; vice-president, John T. Temple; secretary, J. G. Esler; treasurer, Joseph Heacock; directors, H. H. Ritter and J. A. Valentine, with Samuel Murray in place of Herbert G. Tull.

The annual report of Secretary Esler showed the equivalent to an insurance upon 35,663,440 square feet of glass. The total receipts for the year ending August 1, 1911, and including last year's balance, as per treasurer's report, have been $53,378.87. The total expenditures, as per treasurer's report, have been $43,132.08. The cash balance on hand is $10,246.79, of which $8,700.60 belongs to the emergency fund and $1,546.19 to the reserve fund. The reserve fund now amounts to $26,046.19, of which $24,500 is invested in securities. One hundred twenty-eight losses, representing a breakage of 219,231 square feet of single-thick glass and 144,395 square feet of double-thick glass, have been paid during the year. Since organization 1,650 losses have been adjusted, involving a total expenditure of more than $217,000.

Treasurer Heacock's report of the year's operations was as follows:

Dr.
To balance on hand Aug. 1, 1910	$ 1,585.45
To receipts for year ending Aug. 1, 1911	51,793.42
	$53,378.87

Cr.
By losses paid Aug. 1, 1910, to Aug. 1, 1911	$30,661.24
By expenses	3,470.84
By investments	3,000.00
Miscellaneous (notes paid)	6,000.00
By balance on hand	10,246.79
	$53,378.87

Telegraph Delivery Association.

In the absence of President Valentine, Fred H. Meinhardt occupied the chair at the Baltimore meeting.

Secretary Bertermann reported on the work done since the meeting at Boston and read a list of forty-two members to date. Treasurer Rock sent a report showing $142 on hand. George W. Hansburger, of the Western Union Telegraph Co., talked on the subject of telegraph service and offered the assistance of the local agents of his company in interesting new members. It is planned to begin the transaction of business in the autumn.

Meeting of Ladies' S. A. F.

Officers were elected as follows:

President, E. G. Hill; vice-president, John T. Temple; secretary, J. G. Esler; treasurer, Joseph Heacock; directors, H. H. Ritter and J. A. Valentine, with Samuel Murray in place of Herbert G. Tull.

The annual report of Secretary Esler showed the equivalent to an insurance upon 35,663,440 square feet of glass. The total receipts for the year ending August 1, 1911, and including last year's balance, as per treasurer's report, have been $53,378.87. The total expenditures, as per treasurer's report, have been $43,132.08. The cash balance on hand is $10,246.79, of which $8,700.60 belongs to the emergency fund and $1,546.19 to the reserve fund. The reserve fund now amounts to $26,046.19, of which $24,500 is invested in securities. One hundred twenty-eight losses, representing a breakage of 219,231 square feet of single thick glass and 144,395 square feet of double thick glass, have been paid during the year. Since organization 1,650 losses have been adjusted, involving a total expenditure of more than $217,000.

Treasurer Heacock's report of the year's operations was as follows:

Dr.
To balance on hand Aug. 1, 1910	$ 1,585.42
To receipts for year ending Aug. 1, 1911	51,793.42
	$ 53,378.84
Cr.
By losses paid Aug. 1, 1910, to Aug. 1, 1911	$ 30,661.21
By expenses	3,470.84

Telegraph Delivery Association.

In the absence of President Valentine, Fred H. Meinhardt occupied the chair at the Baltimore meeting.

Secretary Bertermann reported on the work done since the meeting at Boston and read a list of forty-two members to date. Treasurer Rock sent a report showing $142 on hand. George W. Hansburger, of the Western Union Telegraph Co., talked on the subject of telegraph service and offered the assistance of the local agents of his company in interesting new members. It is planned to begin the transaction of business in the autumn.

Meeting of Ladies' S. A. F.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Society of American Florists was held August 16, at the Hotel Belvedere, with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. J. V. Phillips, was in the chair. An address of welcome was given by Mrs.

Vincent. The response was by Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass.

The report of the secretary showed a membership of 273. The treasurer's report showed receipts of $629.72, disbursements of $341.01; balance, $288.71.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. E. V. Boone, Baltimore; first vice-president, Mrs. R. Wittman, West Hoboken, N. J.; second vice-president, Miss Perle Fulmer, Des Moines, Iowa; treasurer, Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.; secretary, Mrs. Charles H. Maynard, Detroit, Mich.

The evening of Thursday was placed in the hands of the ladies' society for a reception and dance at the Hotel Belvedere, a duplicate of the brilliant affair given last year at Rochester. The ladies' organization has added immensely to the social side of the conventions.

Election of Officers.

When the society convened Thursday morning the polls were opened for the election of officers. The interest was so keen that it was found impossible to go ahead with the other work and the program for the day was put over until evening. No such election was ever known in the history of the society. With two candidates for each of the three offices, the heaviest vote ever known was polled. Keen as was the rivalry between the friends of the candidates, nothing but the best of fellowship prevailed.

The election results were:

CONVENTION NOTES.

At the Baltimore & Ohio station on a big terrace in the lawn the gardener has in 6-foot letters "S. A. F. & O. H. —1911." It is said a visitor asked the station master for a translation and was told that it stood for "See America First — and — Oh! H—l! I d'know what the rest of it means."

The armory is just a little out of the restaurant section, so the Baltimore Gardeners' Club served a free luncheon every day in one of the company rooms upstairs. In fact, they took it as a breach of courtesy for one to go elsewhere for refreshment.

Before the convention had fairly opened J. G. Neidinger, of Philadelphia, took out his purse, laid it down a moment, and when he reached for it, it was gone, with the $60 it contained. The surprise was that it occurred in the armory.

Geneva, O.—R. A. Parker and W. W. Stocking have purchased the interests of R. D. Woodworth in the firm of Woodworth & Parker. The sale includes the Woodworth home and farm of fifteen acres. The new firm expects to increase the business and add to the number of greenhouses. Mr. Woodworth has not decided on his plans for the future.

THE TRADES' DISPLAY.

Eclipses All Records.

The trades' display, to the average visitor, always has been the great drawing card of the S. A. F. convention and this year it is even larger and better than ever. In the twenty-six preceding annual gatherings of the craft the exhibition has been staged in all sorts of buildings, some well adapted to the purpose, some never intended for such a use, but it has remained for Baltimore to place at the disposal of the society, for the first time, a structure that leaves nothing to be desired, the great Fifth Regiment armory. Here on one great floor, designed for the drilling of a thousand men, there is space for all. No one had to go to a balcony, or a basement; none is out of sight; there is not an undesirable spot in the room, and if one place is better than another it is merely a matter of personal preference; the only thing for which there is no room is criticism. But with its acres of floor space, the building is filled. The exhibitors have taken everything but the aisles.

Philadelphia makes a big part of the show, as usual. There have been conventions at which there was a greater number of exhibitors, but there never has been a convention for which so much space was sold. The answer is that most of the exhibitors are using more space than they ever before have used—they are making larger and more attractively arranged displays. Several firms are each using close to 1,000 square feet and practically every one has given much care to the staging. There never was a trades' display that made anywhere nearly so good a general effect; but for a large part of this credit must be given to that wise rule that did away with the great, gaudy banners with which exhibitors were wont to "decorate" their stands and all available space in the building. Taking a leaf from the National Flower Show, all the signs are small, neat and uniform. They are cards cut and painted to represent the shell of that typical Baltimore product, the oyster, and the gilt lettering is limited to the exhibitor's name and address.

The exhibition presents little that is strikingly new. The supply houses, it is true, have many novelties, and there are some good new plants, but for the most part the show consists of the best examples of the things the trade is buying day after day, using or passing on to the public. One commendable feature was that the exhibition was practically complete the day before the convention opened. The exhibitors were on hand early; most of the exhibits arrived in time and were quickly in place, for that most capable superintendent, Mack Richmond, has seen to it that everything wanted was at hand. If ever a superintendent has merited the testimonial received at the hands of the exhibitors, and many certainly have, he has done so.

Florists' Supplies.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, outdid all their previous efforts, occupying 900 square feet of space, admirably located straight across one end of the great hall, and bringing so large a line of samples that every inch of table and wall was occupied. They had, of course, a general line of supplies embracing many hundreds of articles, but the conspicuous places were occupied by novelties, chief among which were the electric flower lamp, with pan for cut flowers or plants; the mirror basket, a half basket set against the glass; ornamental grasses, Minerva, two-tone Minerva and plain; Parisian wreaths, of statice and ammobiums; crepe flowers of infinite variety, wreaths of prepared natural foliage, bright red beech sprays, thistles in many colors, wheat sheaves with pans deep enough for long-stemmed Beauties, etc. The exhibit was in charge of Sydney Bayersdorfer, Martin Reukauf and four assistants.

The display of M. Rice & Co., of Philadelphia, was a distinct innovation. Instead of staging a large line of staple supplies, an enclosure was attractively fitted up for reception purposes, and only a few choice novelties shown. Newel posts trimmed with rushes formed the corners, the enclosure being completed by wedding ropes. The featured novelty was a new natural cycas leaf prepared without paint or varnish so that it can scarcely be distinguished from the untreated article, while it still has great lasting qualities. The American rights are controlled. Several out-of-the-ordinary baskets were shown. The Diana wreath is of natural prepared grasses, some tipped red and some lavender. The Atlas wreath is shaded magnolia leaves, shaded cycas leaves, and ruscus, tipped with poppies, cones and thistles. Christmas novelties included a red wreath of cape flowers trimmed with natural cones. Especially pretty was fern moss in green and red. Thistles were shown in red and lavender. B. Eschner was in charge, assisted by Robert Schoch.

J. G. Neidinger, of Philadelphia, brought a much larger line than ever before. His specialty, wax designs and flowers, was represented by hundreds of numbers, but the place of honor in the exhibit was given to a line of new ivory finish baskets of Mr. Neidinger's own origination and manufacture; fifty shapes were shown, the likeness to ivory being exact in all. The basket section also included a striking line in blue with antique finish. Natural prepared foliage was shown in variety. Velvet poinsettias and prepared asparagus, combined in the ivory baskets, were striking. Pot-covers, vases, chenille, ribbon, chiffon and many other articles were in the display. Mr. Neidinger personally was in charge, with several assistants.

Reed & Keller, New York, showed a large assortment of florists' supplies, including the usual line of casket wire designs, special pieces and a new folding wire plant stand. A novelty was the tall Quadro Beauty vase. A new prepared imported oak leaf was shown. A wire model of the Olympic, the largest steamship afloat, was made to scale. But the strongest feature of the display was the Paris wreaths. They are made of red ruscus, statice or colored capes in many styles and a variety of decorations, the ruscus wreath being particularly good; it was said the large one shown was the first thus far imported. R. E. Hall and George Maunz were in charge.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange, Cleveland, O., put up an attractive arbor of wild smilax to show the decorative possibilities of artificial flowers. George W. Smith, who did the work personally, is an old retailer and knows how. The line included life-like reproductions of practically every flower of the greenhouse, garden and woods. Specially good were the artificial Beauties and hibiscus. The booth was carpeted with Beaven's fadeless moss and plant tubs were one of the specialties shown.

S. A. Weller, Zanesville, O., showed a fine line of vases, jardinieres, ferneries, window boxes and other pottery suitable for retailing in a flower store. The mission ware, doubtless a development of the Indian ware, was a new feature, as was the antique ivory pottery hanging basket. This is a line of ware many florists who never attend a convention would handle if they knew about it.

S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, was on hand with his velvet poinsettia and fine samples of his new, recently registered begonia, Bettie Anderson, in 5-inch pots.

The Non-Breakable Flower Vase Co., Washington, D. C., staged its line of enameled metal cut flower receptacles, Vincent. The response was by Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass.

The report of the secretary showed a membership of 273. The treasurer's report showed receipts of $629.72, disbursements of $341.01; balance, $288.71.

S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, was on hand with his velvet poinsettia and fine samples of his new, recently registered begonia, Bettie Anderson, in 5-inch pots.

The Non-Breakable Flower Vase Co., Washington, D. C., staged its line of enameled metal cut flower receptacles, the feature of which is that they are not only practically indestructible, but ornamental; also window boxes, vases, etc. H. L. Lauscher was in charge.

Ribbons.

Wertheimer Bros., New York, had two stands for the display of their line of staple and novelty ribbons, chiffons and corsage ties, and large assortment of corsage pins. The Sprinkleproof ribbons and chiffons were featured, as usual, with many new patterns and colors, and there were several new corsage effects. The Werbro shield is a new flexible, invisible dress protector. There was a new shower ribbon for bridal work. S. B. Wertheimer arrived August 15, having landed the day before from a European tour, bringing a number of novelties that are to follow in quantity.

The Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, staged its usual large line of ribbons, chiffons, corsage ties, pins and novelties. The ribbon department shows the addition of a new shade in both satins and taffetas, that of the Melody rose. A new moire taffeta ribbon shades from dark at the edge to light at the center in tones to match autumn foliage. There are several new shades in corsage ties of their own origination. A jewel corsage pin and clasp is new; it grasps the stems of the flowers and pins to the dress; an attractive article. The exhibit was in charge of E. J. Fancourt, assisted by A. W. Swan and J. E. H. Morichard.

Lion & Co., New York, had an exceptionally attractive booth for the display of their large line of Colonial brand ribbons, featuring American-made chiffon, an article they put on the market a little over a year ago with one pattern and which achieved such quick success that they now have eight patterns. A novelty was Chiffon de Liberty ribbon, with chiffon center edged with double faced satin, in ten colors and two widths. A new featherweight, flexible, waterproof corsage shield and a transparent celluloid shield were shown in addition to last season's invisible shield. Corsage bouquet ties were shown in variety. Oscar Lion was in charge, with two assistants. The souvenirs were large, black Havanas.

Schloss Bros., New York, showed their usual large line of ribbons, chiffons and corsage effects, to which the new season has added several novelties. A satin ribbon in six colors has 3-leaved and 4-leaved clovers and clover blossoms woven in, and the same effects were shown with rose foliage and blooms. A new stem holder to be used in place of foil is waterproof. A novelty was a line of ribbons bearing the inscriptions usually required on funeral designs. Emil Schloss was in charge, assisted by Julius Dilloff. The souvenir was a tape measure.

M. Adler, New York, had a large assortment of corsage pins.

Paper Boxes.

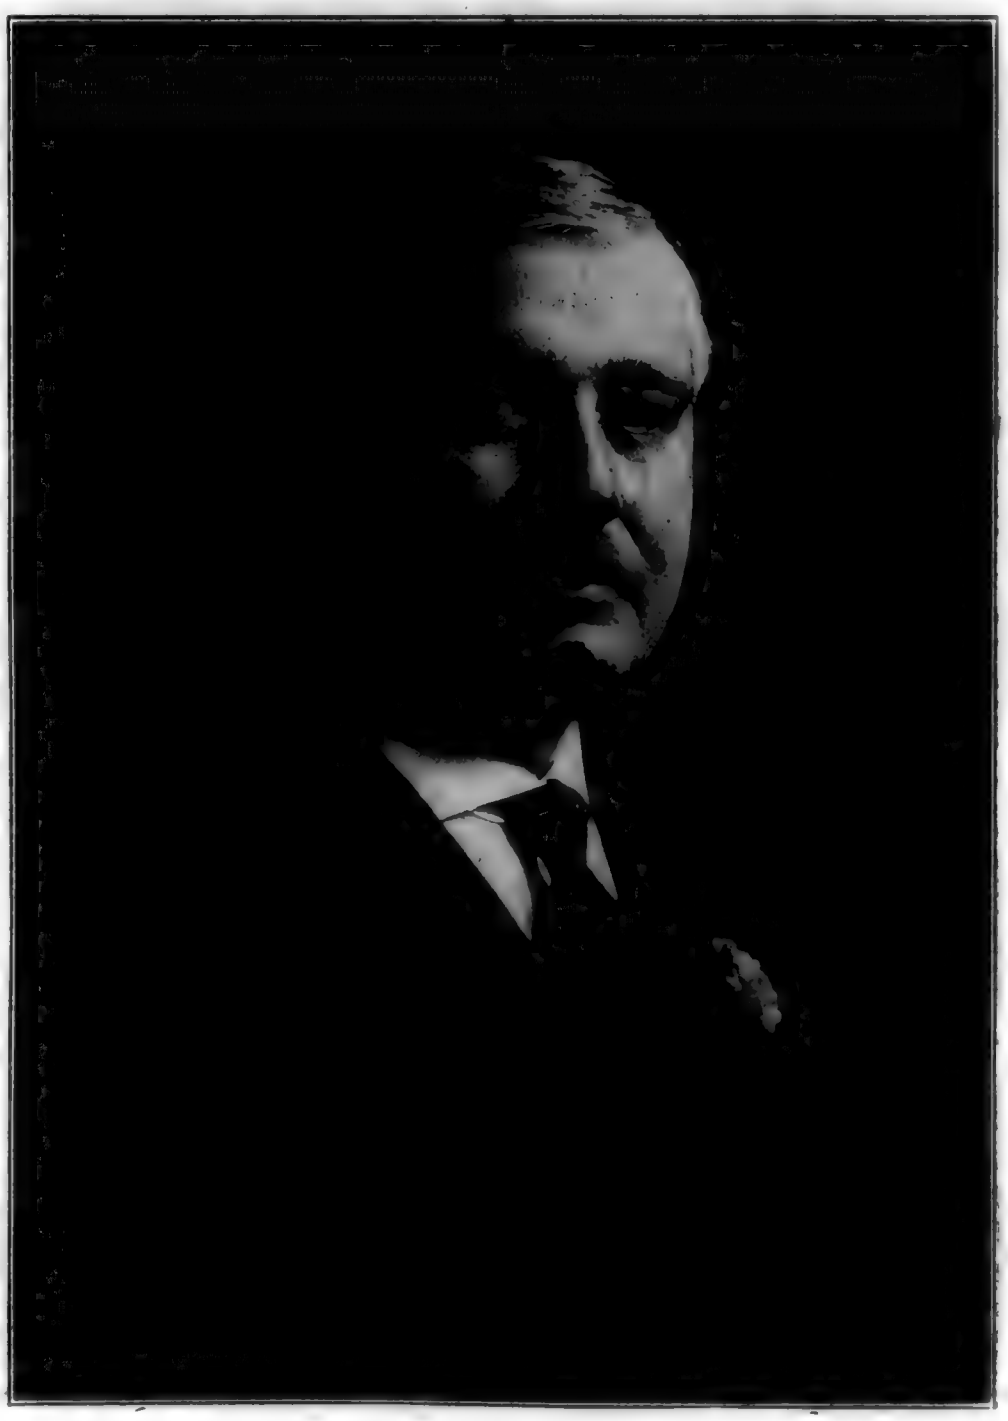
W. J. Boas & Co., Philadelphia, showed their line of square lock cut flower boxes, including a new gray color corresponding to the popular "London smoke" color of the dry goods stores. Jas. F. Smith was in charge.

Lord's Frost-Proof Plant Box Co., Minneapolis, the exhibitor farthest from home, had a large table of patented folding one-piece corrugated fiber-board boxes for shipping plants, cut flowers and designs. L. P. Lord was in charge.

The Edwards Folding Box Co., Philadelphia, showed its line of folding cut flower boxes, to which has been added several new greens and grays, as well as a new finish in white. W. P. Snyder was in charge.

The Janesville Florists' Box Co., Janesville, Wis., showed samples of a patented frost-proof paper box for plant deliveries. It was stated that one double box, felt lined, had withstood a below zero temperature for hours. Edward Amerpohl was demonstrating how easily plants go in and out of the box.

Cut Flowers.



Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., had engaged three tables, each of 100 square feet, for his display of gladioli and staged his exhibit, although he canceled all his ten entries for the prizes of the American Gladiolus Society because his blooms had heated during a twenty-four hours' delay on the road. He had between 5,000 and 6,000 spikes, including about 400 varieties, many being unnamed seedlings of promise. Because of heating, the blooms did not open properly. In the collection were Peace, pure white with peacock feather in the throat, and Luna, cream white with carmine throat, that Mr. Cowee considers his finest florists' varieties and which he intends to offer to the trade this season. Mr. Cowee had his usual staff of young lady assistants.

John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., staged 115 varieties of gladioli, one or more vases of each. One large table was given entirely to the Childsii varieties, with another for the Gandavensis, Lemoinei and hybrids. The Childs collection of seedlings has of late run strongly to yellows and of these Safrano, in this color, was never before shown. I. S. Hendrickson and S. C. Parnell were in charge.

B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass., assisted by Mrs. Tracy, staged a fine lot of gladiolus blooms, many of them seedlings raised on their place. Dawn, shell pink, was conspicuous among them. Mr. Tracy spoke well of Niagara, yellow, and showed it well.

Wilhelm Pfitzer, Stuttgart, Germany, showed twelve varieties of gladioli, a vase of each, all named sorts and including some striking things. The feature of the lot, however, was Europa, pure white. The flowers were grown for Mr. Pfitzer by J. B. Hutchinson, of Haddonfield, N. J., and for himself Mr. Hutchinson showed vases of ten of the best varieties now in commerce.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., had a fine display of cut blooms of garden flowers. Big heads of hydrangeas were conspicuous. There were a large number of dahlias of all types, thirty varieties of phlox and as many of cannas. Of course, the selection of varieties was of the best.

H. W. Koerner, Milwaukee, had a large display of cut blooms of gladioli.

Jacob Thomann & Sons, Rochester, N. Y., had a small but notable exhibit of gladiolus blooms, an unnamed white seedling of their own raising. It looked particularly good with a vase of Europa, the German white that is sold at $2.50 per bulb.

Green Goods.

Jones, the Holly Wreath Man, Milton, Del., was a new exhibitor. C. G. Jones, who was in charge, built two arbors of wild smilax for the display of holly and laurel wreaths and roping, boxwood, leucothoe, etc. In addition to the natural greens, air plant, prepared magnolia, beech, chestnut and oak foliage were shown, used in a variety of attractive ways. The "Holly Wreath Man" does not confine himself to holly, by any means.

The Shaw Fern Co., Pittsfield, Mass., had hardy ferns, not cut, as growing in the woods, attractively arranged. L. E. Shaw was in charge.

Plants.

The Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, had an even larger display than in other years. The feature was, of course, the collection of crotons, which is without an equal in America. Of named varieties eighty-five were shown, and of Craig seedlings, mostly unnamed, there were sixty-four. Although several sizes of several kinds were shown, there were no two plants alike in the entire collection. The cyclamens were splendid plants for this time of year and the Cincinnati and Lorraine begonias were a prominent feature. Another group contained branched Ficus pandurata that were exceptional, also Dracæna terminalis and D. Massangeana that were extra large pieces. Phœnix Roebelenii was well done and some excellent made-up arecas were shown. The exhibit was in charge of R. A. Craig, W. P. Craig and Duncan Macaw.

Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, made a larger display than at any previous convention, 900 square feet of space being required, three sections of 300 feet each. One section was entirely palms in salable sizes, including all the commercial varieties, while another was largely small stock for growing on. Cocos Weddelliana in large sizes were conspicuous and there were araucarias in thirteen sizes. The cibotiums were said to represent the stock in eight houses at Riverton. Variegated pineapple also was a feature. Crotons and Phœnix Roebelenii were well shown. The third section included a full line of Bermuda, Dutch and French bulbs, tubs, glazing points, etc., with cut blooms of a selection of the finer gladioli, asters, phlox and the double fringed petunia, probably 100 vases in all. A new line was pot-grown rambler roses for Easter forcing; samples were shown in flower. The exhibit was in charge of J. J. Karins, Joseph Goudy, J. Ruppert, Geo. Parsons and several assistants. The souvenir was a florists' knife.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., occupied one entire section with the Boston fern and its descendants: Piersoni, Scottii, Magnifica, Superbissima, Harrisii, Giatrasii, Compacta, Elegantissima improved, Viridissima and the youngest child, Muscosa, to make its debut this season. A feature was two extra large, perfect plants of Compacta and Elegantissima improved. On another table was a full line of Harrisii bulbs grown on St. David Island, a large line of hyacinths and tulips and, later, a full line of French bulbs, just arrived. The exhibit was in charge of Messrs. Fotheringham and Trevillian, as usual.

Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., showed a variety of field-grown roses for forcing, from a stock of field roses said to cover nearly sixty acres. A quantity of dish ferns were exhibited, also palms, aspidistras, araucarias and Cocos Weddelliana to go with the ferns in dishes. S. R. Welch was in charge.

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., showed a large line of shrubs, including althæas, berberis, deutzias, forsythias, hydrangeas, philadelphus, privet, spiræas, viburnums and weigelias, also honeysuckle and American Pillar rose. But when the cut blooms of cannas arrived, showing the best standard varieties and the seedlings of Antoine Wintzer that are well termed "canna lilies," they became the feature of the exhibit. The firm has become American agents for "The Genus Rosa," by Ellen Willmott, that Robert Pyle thinks will become the standard work on the subject.

Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., had a large lot of palms in all varieties and sizes, crotons, ardisias, Phœnix Roebelenii, Pandanus Veitchii, dracænas and bays, all in commercial sizes. The exhibit was in charge of J. Muller and F. Sealey.

J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, had a table of Farleyense, Asplenium nidus avis, Pandanus Veitchii and Begonia Lorraine and B. Cincinnati, all well grown. R. W. Peterson was in charge in his father's absence in Europe.

Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, and A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., who are to jointly disseminate the varieties, made a joint display of Double White Killarney and Killarney Queen, two new roses that originated at the Budlong place in Rhode Island and which have been under observation for some time. The two were shown in splendid condition for midsummer. The stems were of good length, strong, and the foliage was heavy and clean. The flower of the white sport is not only more double than White Killarney, but it is much larger, and the color is almost pure white; the pinkish tinge is only to be found in the center of a few blooms and one has to hunt for it to see it. Killarney Queen is a fine bright, deep rich pink, several shades darker than Killarney, and the variety gives evidence of being a strong grower.

Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., showed its usual line of well grown palms, reinforced by some fine plants of Cibotium Schiedei. Both kinds of kentias were shown, single plants in all sizes and also made up plants.

the feature of which is that they are not only practically indestructible, but ornamental; also window boxes, vases, etc. H. L. Lauscher was in charge.

Ribbons.

Wertheimer Bros., New York, had two stands for the display of their line of staple and novelty ribbons, chiffons and corsage ties, and large assortment of corsage pins. The Sprinkleproof ribbons and chiffons were featured, as usual, with many new patterns and colors, and there were several new corsage effects. The Werbroshield is a new flexible, invisible dress protector. There was a new shower ribbon for bridal work. S. B. Wertheimer arrived August 15, having landed the day before from a European tour, bringing a number of novelties that are to follow in quantity.

The Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, staged its usual large line of ribbons, chiffons, corsage ties, pins and novelties. The ribbon department shows the addition of a new shade in both satins and taffetas, that of the Melody rose. A new moire taffeta ribbon shades from dark at the edge to light at the center in tones to match autumn foliage. There are several new shades in corsage ties of their own origination. A jewel corsage pin and clasp is new; it grasps the stems of the flowers and pins to the dress; an attractive article. The exhibit was in charge of E. J. Fancourt, assisted by A. W. Swan and J. E. H. Morichard.

Lion & Co., New York, had an exceptionally attractive booth for the display of their large line of Colonial brand ribbons, featuring American made chiffon, an article they put on the market a little over a year ago with one pattern and which achieved such quick success that they now have eight patterns. A novelty was Chiffon de Liberty ribbon, with chiffon center edged with double faced satin, in ten colors and two widths. A new featherweight, flexible, waterproof corsage shield and a transparent celluloid shield were shown in addition to last season's invisible shield. Corsage bouquet ties were shown in variety. Oscar Lion was in charge, with two assistants. The souvenirs were large, black Havanas.

Schloss Bros., New York, showed their usual large line of ribbons, chiffons and corsage effects, to which the new season has added several novelties. A satin ribbon in six colors has 3-leaved and 4-leaved clovers and clover blossoms woven in, and the same effects were shown with rose foliage and blooms. A new stem holder to be used in place of foil is waterproof. A novelty was a line of ribbons bearing the inscriptions usually required on funeral designs. Emil Schloss was in charge, assisted by Julius Dilloff. The souvenir was a tape measure.

M. Adler, New York, had a large assortment of corsage pins.

Paper Boxes.

W. J. Boas & Co., Philadelphia, showed their line of square lock cut flower boxes, including a new gray color corresponding to the popular "London smoke" color of the dry goods stores. Jas. F. Smith was in charge.

Lord's Frost Proof Plant Box Co., Minneapolis, the exhibitor farthest from home, had a large table of patented folding one-piece corrugated fiber board boxes for shipping plants, cut flowers and designs. L. P. Lord was in charge.

The Edwards Folding Box Co., Philadelphia, showed its line of folding cut flower boxes, to which has been added several new greens and grays, as well as a new finish in white. W. P. Snyder was in charge.

The Janesville Florists' Box Co., Janesville, Wis., showed samples of a patented frost-proof paper box for plant deliveries. It was stated that one double box, felt lined, had withstood a below zero temperature for hours. Edward Amerpohl was demonstrating how easily plants go in and out of the box.

Cut Flowers.

Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., had engaged three tables, each of 100 square feet, for his display of gladioli and staged his exhibit, although he canceled all his ten entries for the prizes of the American Gladiolus Society because his blooms had heated during a twenty-four hours' delay on the road. He had between 5,000 and 6,000 spikes, including about 400 varieties, many being unnamed seedlings of promise. Because of heating, the blooms did not open properly. In the collection were Peace, pure white with peacock feather in the throat, and Luna, cream white with carmine throat, that Mr. Cowee considers his finest florists' varieties and which he intends to offer to the trade this season. Mr. Cowee had his usual staff of young lady assistants.

John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., staged 115 varieties of gladioli, one or more vases of each. One large table was given entirely to the Childsii varieties, with another for the Gandavensis, Lemoinei and hybrids. The Childs collection of seedlings has of late run strongly to yellows and of these Safrano, in this color, was never before shown. I. S. Hendrickson and S. C. Parnell were in charge.

B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass., assisted by Mrs. Tracy, staged a fine lot of gladiolus blooms, many of them seedlings raised on their place. Dawn, shell pink, was conspicuous among them. Mr. Tracy spoke well of Niagara, yellow, and showed it well.

Wilhelm Pfitzer, Stuttgart, Germany showed twelve varieties of gladioli, a vase of each, all named sorts and including some striking things. The feature of the lot, however, was Europa, pure white. The flowers were grown for Mr. Pfitzer by J. B. Hutchinson, of Haddonfield, N. J., and for himself Mr. Hutchinson showed vases of ten of the best varieties now in commerce.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., had a fine display of cut blooms of garden flowers. Big heads of hydrangeas were conspicuous. There were a large number of dahlias of all types, thirty varieties of phlox and as many of cannas. Of course, the selection of varieties was of the best.

H. W. Koerner, Milwaukee, had a large display of cut blooms of gladioli.

Jacob Thomann & Sons, Rochester, N. Y., had a small but notable exhibit of gladiolus blooms, an unnamed white seedling of their own raising. It looked particularly good with a vase of Europa, the German white that is sold at $2.50 per bulb.

Green Goods.

Jones, the Holly Wreath Man, Milton, Del., was a new exhibitor. C. G. Jones, who was in charge, built two arbors of wild smilax for the display of holly and laurel wreaths and roping, boxwood, leucothoe, etc. In addition to the natural greens, air plant, prepared magnolia, beech, chestnut and oak foliage were shown, used in a variety of attractive ways. The "Holly Wreath Man" does not confine himself to holly, by any means.

The Shaw Fern Co., Pittsfield, Mass., had hardy ferns, not cut, as growing in the woods, attractively arranged. L. E. Shaw was in charge.

Plants.

The Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, had an even larger display than in other years. The feature was, of course, the collection of crotons, which is without an equal in America. Of named varieties eighty-five were shown, and of Craig seedlings, mostly unnamed, there were sixty four. Although several sizes of several kinds were shown, there were no two plants alike in the entire collection. The cyclamens were splendid plants for this time of year and the Cincinnati and Lorraine begonias were a prominent feature. Another group contained branched Ficus pandurata that were exceptional, also Dracaena terminalis and D. Massangeana that were extra large pieces. Phœnix Roebelenii was well done and some excellent made-up arecas were shown. The exhibit was in charge of R. A. Craig, W. P. Craig and Duncan Macaw.

Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, made a larger display than at any previous convention, 900 square feet of space being required, three sections of 300 feet each. One section was entirely palms in salable sizes, including all the commercial varieties, while another was largely small stock for growing on. Cocos Weddelliana in large sizes were conspicuous and there were araucarias in thirteen sizes. The cibotiums were said to represent the stock in eight houses at Riverton. Variegated pineapple also was a feature. Crotons and Phœnix Roebelenii were well shown. The third section included a full line of Bermuda, Dutch and French bulbs, tubs, glazing points, etc., with cut blooms of a selection of the finer gladioli, asters, phlox and the double fringed petunia, probably 100 vases in all. A new line was pot grown rambler roses for Easter forcing; samples were shown in flower. The exhibit was in charge of J. J. Karins, Joseph Goudy, J. Ruppert, Geo. Parsons and several assistants. The souvenir was a florists' knife.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., occupied one entire section with the Boston fern and its descendants: Piersoni, Scottii, Magnifica, Superbissima, Harrisii, Giatrasii, Compacta, Elegantissima improved, Viridissima and the youngest child, Muscosa, to make its debut this season. A feature was two extra large, perfect plants of Compacta and Elegantissima improved. On another table was a full line of Harrisii bulbs grown on St. David Island, a large line of hyacinths and tulips and, later, a full line of French bulbs, just arrived. The exhibit was in charge of Messrs. Fothergham and Trevillian, as usual.

Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., showed a variety of field grown roses for forcing, from a stock of field roses said to cover nearly sixty acres. A quantity of dish ferns were exhibited, also palms, aspidistras, araucarias and Cocos Weddelliana to go with the ferns in dishes. S. R. Welch was in charge.

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., showed a large line of shrubs, including althaeas, berberis, deutzias, forsythias, hydrangeas, philadelphus, privet, spiraeas, viburnums and weigelias, also honeysuckle and American Pillar rose. But when the cut blooms of cannas arrived, showing the best standard varieties and the seedlings of Antoine Wintzer that are well termed "canna lilies," they became the feature of the exhibit. The firm has become American agents for "The Genus Rosa," by Ellen Willmott, that Robert Pyle thinks will become the standard work on the subject.

Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., had a large lot of palms in all varieties and sizes, crotons, ardisias, Phœnix Roebelenii, Pandanus Veitchii, draecenas and bays, all in commercial sizes. The exhibit was in charge of J. Muller and F. Sealey.

J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, had a table of Farleyense, Asplenium nidus avis, Pandanus Veitchii and Begonia Lorraine and B. Cincinnati, all well grown. R. W. Peterson was in charge in his father's absence in Europe.

Pennock Meehan Co., Philadelphia, and A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., who are to jointly disseminate the varieties, made a joint display of Double White Killarney and Killarney Queen, two new roses that originated at the Budlong place in Rhode Island and which have been under observation for some time. The two were shown in splendid condition for midsummer. The stems were of good length, strong, and the foliage was heavy and clean. The flower of the white sport is not only more double than White Killarney, but it is much larger, and the color is almost pure white; the pinkish tinge is only to be found in the center of a few blooms and one has to hunt for it to see it. Killarney Queen is a fine bright, deep rich pink, several shades darker than Killarney, and the variety gives evidence of being a strong grower.

Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., showed its usual line of well grown palms, reinforced by some fine plants of Cibotium Schiedei. Both kinds of kentias were shown, single plants in all sizes and also made up plants.

Made up arecas also were a feature. Phœnix Roebelenii was well done and the cocos under the other stock were like a brood of chickens under a hen. Mr. Heacock was assisted by his son, John.

Henry Eichholz, Waynesboro, Pa., showed plants of his two carnations, Christmas Cheer and Princess Charming. These were in pots, and the Christmas Cheer, Mr. Eichholz thinks, will some day be sold more largely than any other subject as a blooming pot plant for the holidays. It is the ideal Christmas color. Princess Charming is of the Enchantress color.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., exhibited thirty varieties of field-grown roses, three varieties of clematis, Ampelopsis Veitchii, roots of Pæonia festiva maxima and a number of pot plants of the new hydrangea, Souvenir de Claire, flowers of the Lorraine begonia shade, for which the exhibitor expects a great future.

Knight & Struck, New York, who recently took over the E. D. Darlington place, showed ericas in nearly a dozen varieties, several sizes of many, including some rare as well as all the standard forcing sorts; also Acacia floribunda and A. cultriformis. Both members of the firm were on hand to do the honors.

Charles D. Ball, Holmesburg, Philadelphia, showed Kentia Forsteriana, K. Belmoreana, and arecas, made up plants predominating in the larger sizes; also Phœnix Roebelenii. Mr. Ball was never known to bring anything but perfect plants to a convention. He was assisted by his son, C. D. Ball, Jr.

Godfrey Aschmann, Philadelphia, was a new exhibitor. His special feature was improved Begonia Vernon Tootsie, the greenhouse grown plants having pink flowers and those grown in the open reddish flowers. His ferns included Whitmani, Boston, Scottii and Scholzeli, Araucarias, azaleas, cycas, begonias, arecas, rubbers and table ferns completed the line. Mr. Aschmann personally was in charge.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., staged five cases of freshly imported cattleyas and 115 plants in seventy-seven varieties of established orchids not in flower. They also showed a number of plants in bloom, including Cattleya Atlanta, Cattleya Dussendori Undine, pure white; Miltonia Blountii Lubbersiana, Crassavola Digbyana, Dendrobium Regium and Cypripedium Mahleræ. J. E. Lager was in charge.

Lemuel Ball Estate, Wyomissing, Pa., showed the palms, dracænas, Phœnix Roebelenii and cocos for which the late Mr. Ball was so well known. The display was in charge of Jas. W. Wade, who was Mr. Ball's foreman and who is managing the estate.

W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., showed Polypodium Mandaianum, boxwood, plants and cut; golden privet, evergreens in tubs, dracænas, adiantums, Pteris tremula cristata and a variety of other plants, including five varieties of anthuriums, a new anthericum and Ophiopogan Japonica as a plant for table fern dishes. There also were a number of orchids in bloom. The exhibit was in charge of Robert Karlstrom and F. Mouncy.

I. H. Moss, Govanstown, Md., showed nearly half a hundred varieties of evergreens in tubs, each carefully labeled. Variegated privet was exhibited in tubs in several sizes.

Fred Lappe, Rossville, Md., showed about thirty varieties of cannas, finely flowered, in pots, all seedlings of his own raising and including some things that appear to be improvements over the varieties of their color now on the market. Mr. Lappe has not been long at this work, but has taken it up with enthusiasm.

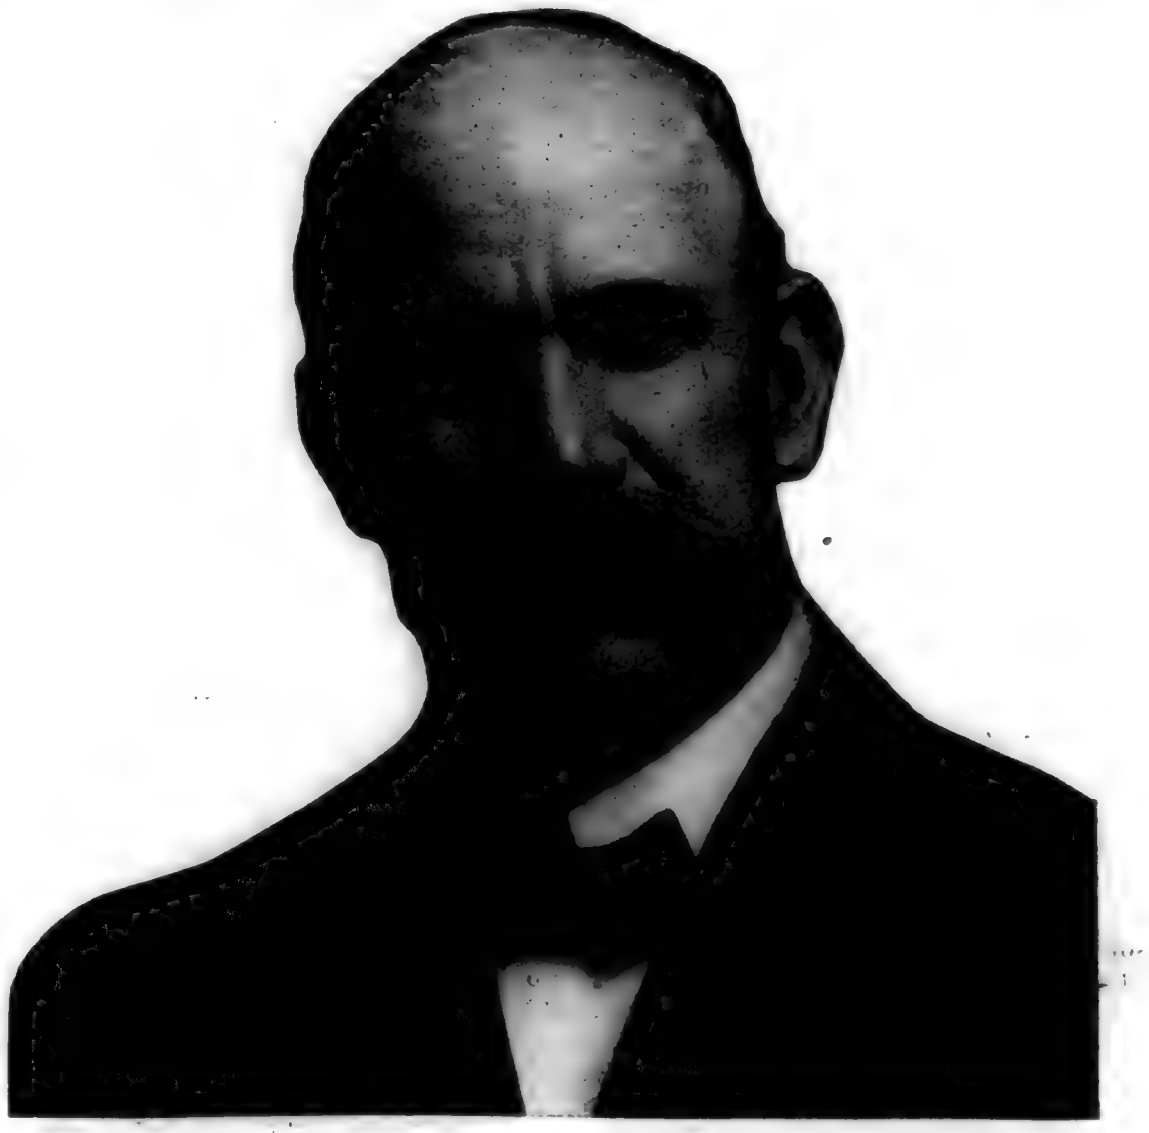
J. G. Harrison & Sons, Berlin, Md., made a large display of privet growing in boxes like giant window boxes, evergreens in variety, fruit trees and a general line of nursery stock. Orlando Harrison was in charge and had some luscious peaches as souvenirs.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., showed 100 varieties of evergreens, all different, in tubs, also palms, bay trees, Phœnix Roebelenii, boxwood and a general line of store plants. Victor Morgan was in charge, as usual.

Charles Eble, New Orleans, showed his specialty, Phœnix Roebelenii, outdoor grown, in all sizes.

Joseph A. Manda, West Orange, N. J., filled a big table with twenty-five fine large pieces of freshly imported cattleyas and a splendid established plant of Cattleya Dowiana.

Seeds and Sundries.



H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, had a large line of bulbs, among them hyacinths in twenty-seven varieties, including La Innocence of extraordinary size; thirty varieties of tulips, just arrived; twenty varieties of narcissi, including several rare kinds; buttercup, scilla, monster bulbs; a full line of French bulbs, all sizes of Harrisii and cold storage giganteums. On another table was a full line of greenhouse and garden requisites, everything from a spade to hose or a wagon heater. The exhibit was in charge of I. Rosnosky and Philip Freud, with several assistants. A budding and grafting knife was the souvenir.

Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, had some delay in getting their stock to the hall, but staged a line of Dutch bulbs in 140 varieties of tulips and hyacinths, all large, solid stock. They also had a full line of French bulbs, Harrisii, freesias, etc. They make a specialty of garden requisites and showed a big line of implements, insecticides, etc. English wall nails were included, also the Rex tag for the same purpose. A grass shears was shown which can be taken apart for sharpening. W. A. Sperling was present, but the exhibit was in charge of Otto Kronmuller and W. H. Downing.

J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, moved a large part of their seed testing laboratory to the exhibition hall and gave a continuous demonstration of seed analysis with samples of grass, clover and field seeds, with scores of bottles of the impurities found in the samples they had tested. They also showed bulbs, insecticides, poultry foods, garden tools, hose, and a large line of the self-watering porch and window boxes of the American Metal Box Co., for which they are local agents. George Sturgeon and several assistants were in charge.

The Hubert Bulb Co., Portsmouth, Va., showed bulbs of fifteen varieties of narcissi and as many of tulips, all grown in the vicinity of Portsmouth. These were large, sound bulbs and the firm claims for them earlier and better flowering qualities than for the imported bulbs. A line of Holland-grown hyacinths also was shown. W. Guille was in charge.

Griffith & Turner Co., Baltimore,

(President Baltimore Florists' and Gardeners' Club.)

made a good showing of garden and lawn tools, grass seeds, insecticides, weed killers, hose, glazing materials and similar articles. On a special table they showed a large line of Dutch bulbs grown for them by C. Keur & Sons, Hillegom, Holland. J. L. Towner was in charge.

Building Material.

Lord & Burnham Co., New York, had a model greenhouse showing their pipe frame construction with the V-shaped truss on the giant arch. It was especially good because so built that every part could be closely examined. Two sectional boilers were shown, cold-frames in various sizes, iron gutter in different styles, curved eave, a new machine-mixed paint, etc., the enclosure being formed by frames carrying pipe brackets capable of several hundred different combinations. D. T. Conner and W. H. Wright were in charge. A steel pocket rule was the souvenir.

The Advance Co., Richmond, Ind., had an attractive booth to show its ventilating apparatus in operation. Any visitor could turn the wheel and see the working of the new Twistless arm. Another novelty was the split ridge support, a simple device for fastening post to bar. A large line of pipe fittings also was shown. The display was in charge of J. E. Jones, R. E. Jones and Harvey Packer.

Hitchings & Co., New York, showed their new quick-draft sectional boiler in two sizes, the smallest and the largest. A nice little detail is that all the doors are provided with rustless brass pins. On screens were shown sectional details of their eave plate house, the curved eave house, all the various sashbars, gutters and the half-iron-frame house. John McArthur was in charge. The souvenir was a briar-root pipe. Some handsome new literature bore the imprint of the Tuthill Ad Agency.

The George M. Garland Co., Des Plaines, Ill., set up a section of truss iron-frame construction, showing the elimination of swivel joints, U bolts and clips. Cast-iron foot pieces and independent down spout and drip conductor were included. Five different styles of cast-iron gutter were shown; also eave plate fittings, a mold for making concrete bench posts, a handy truck with rack for carrying flats and an iron frame bench with new supports for wires.

The King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., instead of bringing a big and heavy lot of wood and iron, put up two large, handsome screens of nicely framed photographs of greenhouses built by King, or of King material.

The John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, showed a large number of blue prints for greenhouses designed by their staff and had a table of sections of gutters, sashbars, etc., showing not only patterns and shapes, but methods of splicing and making tight joints. N. J. Rupp was on the ground and for a souvenir had an individual folding drinking cup of aluminum.

The Foley Mfg. Co., Chicago, put up the largest section of a greenhouse the concern ever has shown at a convention. It was thirty-four feet wide, the new flat rafter iron frame house, with malleable iron sashbar clips for attaching the bars to the channel steel gutter. The new Foley worm gear ventilating apparatus was in operation. The exhibit was in charge of Isaac Cassidy and W. J. Davidson. The Foley Co. is western agent for the Giblin boiler and it had been planned to show the heater in the house. G. A. Harwood, of Giblin & Co., was on hand, but the boilers were among the things that failed to arrive in time.

William Christie.
(Vice-president Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club.)

The Quaker City Machine Co., Richmond, Ind., showed the Challenge ventilating apparatus, embodying the Twentieth Century Arm. J. A. Evans was demonstrating.

Heating Apparatus.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, was represented by an exhibit that weighed 23,000 pounds. It was identical with the display made at the National Flower Show at Boston, except that it also included a new 2-inch return system of piping and a new shaking grate. The No. 14 boiler, capable of heating 48,000 feet of glass, was sold to J. D. Cockcroft, Northport, L. I., who will use it to heat greenhouses 400 feet long with hot water on the gravity system. The piping shown included the boiler tube system, 8-inch flows and the generator that puts the system under pressure. Fred Lautenschlager was in charge, as usual.

The American Auxiliary Heating Co., Boston, showed two of its circulators, one directly connected with the motor and one connected by a belt. This apparatus is to accelerate the circulation of water in greenhouse heating systems. It pumps the water, causing it to flow even though cold. The forced circulation may be had by the use of electric, gas or water motor and a circulator is built that starts automatically when needed. The exhibit was in charge of J. L. Congdon.

William Moll, Cleveland, O., showed the Ideal steam trap, the Ideal pipe clamp and the Bate evaporator for nicotine solutions. T. W. Moll was the demonstrator. A hat card was the souvenir.

The American Blower Co., Detroit, showed one of the larger sizes of the New Detroit return trap, with G. D. Millspaugh explaining its working and handing out catalogues.

The Johnston Heating Co., New York, set up one of its return tubular firebox boilers, a size capable of heating 39,000 square feet of glass by either steam or hot water. The boiler was sold for delivery in western New York. J. F. Johnston was in charge.

The Morehead Mfg. Co., Detroit, had a large display of the Morehead tilting return traps, each trap shown being built for some special purpose. The line includes, besides the return trap and boiler feed, vacuum and condenser traps that draw live steam when the pressure on the coils is extremely light. The display was in charge of R. J. Fridinger, the Baltimore agent.

Morton McL. Dukhart, Baltimore agent for the Gem City Boiler Co., Dayton, O., showed a fifty horse-power return tubular portable steel boiler and a pneumatic pumping system by which he gives a syringing pressure, or greater, from a steel tank, the pumping being done by an electric motor or a gas or gasoline engine.

The United States Radiator Corporation, Dunkirk, N. Y., through its Baltimore agent, Jonas Naylor, showed a 33-inch square sectional Furman boiler for water and a similar 18-inch boiler for steam; also two 22-inch round Furmans, three tank heaters, radiators, etc.

John B. Adt, Baltimore, showed a Peerless sectional boiler. M. R. McGechin was in charge.

Hose and Pots.

The Revere Rubber Co., Chelsea, Mass., put up the same pergola made of Revere hose that it used as a booth at the National Flower Show. There was plenty of new hose, but, also, there was some old hose, one section of fifty feet having been in such continuous use for three years that G. C. C. Schrader, Elmhurst, L. I., refused to loan it for the purpose of exhibition until he was sent a new piece to use while the old piece was gone. Not necessary to say that the old pieces were still good after hard use. Geo. Wittemore, of Boston, and E. W. Holt, of New York, were in charge.

Wilmer I. Cope & Bro., Lincoln University, Pa., showed a line of smooth pots taken from stock. Caleb D. Cope was in charge.

W. H. Elverson Pottery Co., New Brighton, Pa., staged its line of pots and bulb and azalea pans in all sizes. W. H. Elverson and F. W. Elverson were in charge.

A. H. Hews & Co., Cambridge, Mass., who started making pottery eleven years before the Declaration of Independence was signed, showed the flower pots they have been making ever since pots were used. Now they make nothing but flower pots, from 1-inch to 24-inch. L. D. Bryant was telling the story.

P. B. Crosby & Son, Catonsville, Baltimore, showed paper pots, sold flat, to be put together by the user with a tack. Plants were shown that had been started weeks ago from seeds planted in the pots. P. B. Crosby was in charge.

The Detroit Flower M'f'y, Detroit, Harry Balsley, representative, showed its line of red pots, half pots, etc.

The Roseville Pottery Co., Zanesville, O., sent an unusually large display, ten cases of goods, in charge of John Humphreys. It was so large a line that the unpacking had not been completed when it became necessary to dispatch this report.

The Quaker City Rubber Co., Philadelphia, showed samples of a large number of brands of rubber hose. J. Musgrave was in charge.

Miscellaneous.

Means & Thatcher, Boston, who made their first display at the National Flower Show, exhibited Winner brand paint and putty. E. E. Dunlap was in charge.

Vaughan's Seed Store, New York and Chicago, showed a full line of first and second size named, bedding and forcing hyacinths; a full line of tulips, including Darwins; a full line of French bulbs, extra size; Paper Whites and Paper White grandiflora precocious, ten to fourteen days earlier; Harrisii, cold storage giganteums, Scollay sprayers, a giant sprayer, raffia, brass-bound oak jardinieres, raffia in many colors, insecticides, Neponset paper pots and many other articles. W. E. Cook and H. Cheeseman were in charge.

The O. F. Zurn Co., Philadelphia, showed Shaderine, a powder to be wet up for shading on greenhouse roofs, said to wear off and leave the glass clear and bright.

The Plant and Land Food Co., Baltimore, showed fertilizers and a compost mixing machine driven by a motor, the whole mounted on wagon wheels for easy removal from place to place.

The Lemon Oil Co., Baltimore, erected an attractive booth for the display of cans of lemon oil insecticides.

I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg, Ill., showed his carnation calyx mender, being assisted by Mrs. Pillsbury.

A. T. De La Mare Printing and Publishing Co., New York, had a display of horticultural books. Mr. De La Mare was present, with several assistants.

The Aphine Mfg. Co., Madison, N. J., showed its products, Aphine and Fungine. M. C. Ebel was in charge.

The Thomsen Chemical Co., Baltimore, showed a large line of orchard sprays.

Muller & Klein, Norristown, Pa., showed an adjustable flower pot and vase holder for cemetery use.

The McFarland Publicity Co., Harrisburg, Pa., had a table of horticultural business literature, including catalogues, advertisements and follow-ups. A penholder was given as a souvenir, possibly as a delicate way of saying, "Please write when you get home."

The Williams Florists' Supply Co., Utica, N. Y., showed the Williams adjustable carnation tie, an exceedingly simple device of wire to hold the plants upright on the bench. J. J. Williams was demonstrating.

Worcester, Mass.—F. E. Keyes is rebuilding some of the houses erected by his father half a century ago. They were still in fair shape, but, as Mr. Keyes says, up-to-date methods include up-to-date houses.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

[The following is the address of President George Asmus, read before the Society of American Florists, in convention at Baltimore, August 15 to 18, 1911.]

It is with great pleasure I address you on this occasion, the twenty-seventh annual meeting of our society. Although this is the first time this city has been chosen for a meeting place, it is not the first time we have been guests of our brethren in Baltimore, for the memory has been ever dear to us of that splendid afternoon and evening's entertainment on Friday, August 18, 1905, when, as a fitting climax to an enjoyable and profitable meeting in the city of Washington, we were welcomed here in true southern spirit, and now we are here again to partially pay that debt of gratitude, even as a victorious army returns from the scene of conflict. In the six years that have passed we have to our credit many victories won by legislation and arbitration for the general good of our profession and those engaged in it. We also have a much larger sum of money in our treasury, a greatly increased membership roll and two great, successful national flower shows to look back upon.

The National Shows.

The one thing that stands out prominently in connection with the show held in Boston last March was the bringing together of the different societies for the display of their productions and the opportunity of attending the different meetings at one expense of time and travel. This had been one of my great desires for a number of years. The great growth of our business has necessitated the specializing of many of our large growers and with them it was a case of "Not that I love you less, Brutus, but that I love Cæsar more," meaning that their greater interests were in one of the special societies, but we have solved that problem and never again must we meet separately. Ours is one cause for the good of all. Our national shows have come to stay and to that end we should organize at once. The shows should be held once every two years. It is true that the first shows took a longer period of preparation, but that time was used in careful consideration of premium lists, finances and other details which gave us the experience we needed.

Fred G. Burger

The national show should always be held in the spring. Fall shows are not new and are covered in nearly all large cities, and in this connection I wish to state that I am pleased that many local societies and florists' clubs are following the example of the national society. Now, if we wish to profit by the experiences in past shows, we must always have as men at the head some of those who have assisted in previous shows and as briefly as possible I will outline my plan for your consideration.

Permanent Show Committee.

I would suggest a permanent national flower show committee, say of six, to be appointed, two for six years, two for four years and two for two years and every other year the president to appoint the members for the six-year term. Thus there would always be on the committee four members of at least two shows' experience. These committeemen should be as representative as possible of the different societies taking part in the show. The chairman of this committee could be elected by the committee or appointed by the president after the location of the show had been decided upon, as it would be of great advantage to have the chairman close at hand. These exhibitions, properly conducted, show but little chance for loss and therefore I would suggest that fifty per cent guarantee be assumed by the society and fifty per cent, as in the past, by personal subscription.

Trade Exhibits at National Shows.

Trade exhibitions and the selling of space as inaugurated at Boston proved wise and should be continued, and the checking of receipts and disbursements should be done by our officers, as we have a system that has always proved adequate for that purpose and officials that are paid for that work. The great good done by such exhibitions cannot easily be conceived. The standing it gives the trade and the general promotion of horticulture are apparent when the vast throngs that visit the shows and the newspaper publicity given them are considered. There are no doubt some of you who will differ with me and say that the shows should be conducted outside the society, but I say no. We have found the way to cement our different lines into one general interest. The meetings and the organization of this society have made this possible and we must not take this healthy young child from the mother organization. Our national charter was given us, too, for the development and advancement of floriculture and horticulture in all its branches and we are coming near to complying with that in these exhibitions.

The charter, constitution and by-laws should be printed with the proceedings every year, and it would be well to print

N. F. Flitton.
(Secretary Baltimore Florists' and Gardeners' Club.)

therewith proposed amendments to the constitution and by-laws.

Dividing Convention Expenses.

It has been my experience that immediately after the selection of a city for the convention the coming year, inquiries are instituted as to what part of the expense the society will have to assume, and I think that a by-law should be passed that would cover this matter in a general way. The officers of our society awakened to the fact a few years ago that our membership was not developing in proportion to the expense which we incurred, and about the same time we also discovered that one of our largest assets, the trade exhibition, was being used as a big joy fund, and in several instances there was enough left, although we all had participated in considerable joy, to fatten the treasury of the local organization.

The necessity of stringent rules for the proper conducting, the charging and rating and the responsibility was apparent, and the rules to manage and maintain that part of conventions were adopted, and the results of that action are just beginning to be felt. By referring to the report of the Rochester meeting it will be found that over $1,500 was added to the treasury after paying all expenses. Thus, when we accept invitations from cities that as an inducement give us concessions such as hall rent, etc., free, it is of great assistance. This beautiful building has been granted to us by the Baltimore brethren on behalf of the business men of the city on those conditions. Then the three principal things for us to consider in the selection of the next place of meeting are: The offering of the hall, the advantage to our trade exhibitors and the opportunity for increase in membership.

Entertainment at Conventions.

The society has no financial inducements to offer any city soliciting the convention. It long has asked that lavish entertainment be done away with, as there is always one enjoyment, greater than any other, that of meeting your fellow in trade and exchanging ideas. The amount of business we have to do sometimes suffers by the entertainments. I can see the day not far distant when the fourth day on the program will have to be devoted to business sessions. Debates and discussions on subjects important to everyone are frequently shortened for lack of time, and several of our important committees have complained that, after a large amount of work and the preparation of a lengthy report, the matter is hastily rushed through and much that might be gained by discussion is lost.

I do not wish to be understood as against all entertainment. There never need be any fear of that! The danger, if any, lies in each city trying to outdo the other.

The Flower and Plant Exhibits.

At the convention in Cincinnati two years ago a resolution was adopted to hold a cut flower and plant exhibition in connection with the trade exhibition. This was attempted at Rochester last summer by the Rochester florists, who, with the aid of exhibits by trades people, made a creditable showing. I am pleased to note that the members of the American Gladiolus Society are with us as a body, and it is just such exhibits as this that will make the exhibitions possible.

The board of directors has proposed, as one way to promote the plant and flower exhibition at the convention, to allow the local people at certain times to admit the public at a reasonable admission, the money thus obtained to help defray the expense of music, decorations, etc.

Superintendent of Exhibits.

Rules 1 and 2, as adopted by the executive board, should, I think, be added to our constitution and by-laws, and are as follows:

"1. The society shall control all the features of the trade exhibition.

"2. There shall be appointed annually at the winter meeting of the executive board a superintendent of exhibits and an advisory committee of three. Said superintendent shall have general charge of all details of the annual exhibition. He shall receive all applications for space and assign the same in the order in which they are received by him. He shall furnish the society, through the secretary thereof, a list of the exhibitors and exhibits by 1:00 p. m. on the day of opening the convention. He shall also furnish the secretary with a list of novelties and new devices submitted for awards, said list to be for the use of the judges.

"He shall make no expenditure exceeding $10 in amount without the consent of the advisory committee. He shall keep full, detailed records of receipts and expenditures and other matters of importance relating to the exhibition. Immediately after the close of the convention he shall make a complete report, which, after having been audited and approved by the advisory committee, shall be forwarded with the records of the exhibition to the secretary. All money collected by him shall be forwarded from time to time, without undue delay, to the secretary. All bills incurred shall be endorsed by him and submitted to the advisory committee for approval, after which they shall be sent to the secretary for payment by the treasurer of the society.

"The advisory committee shall act as an advisory and audit board, subject to instructions of the executive board, and in case of disagreement between them and the superintendent their decision shall be final, except it be reviewed by the executive board."

My reason for this is that it has taken years of work to bring this feature up to its present standard and a matter in which the revenue involved is so large in comparison with the total amount of dues received should be under the control of the society proper. The details should be left as they now are, in the control of the board, as minor changes are often necessary.

Increasing the Membership.

This is one of the great problems that confront us, and in proportion to the growth of all branches of our business, it suffers by comparison. Reasons and theories have been advanced, but when the benefits derived are considered it seems incredible. True, we are slowly and steadily growing. Our secretary's report will show that we made a fine gain during the national show at Boston, and the results of recent efforts with which you are familiar through the literature received will also be given you, but when our tariff and legislation committees go before bodies of whom we are asking our rights, they immediately want to know who we are and whom we represent, and our membership of only eleven hundred does not signify that we are as strong as we should be to obtain proper recognition.

By carefully examining the secretary's reports we find that our gains in membership are almost entirely at conventions or national flower shows and in some cities where we had reason to expect the largest increase we were disappointed, and for the reason, we have discovered, that the open hand of hospitality was so far-reaching. The craft in general has been invited, regardless of their being attached to any organization. Just so long as they were florists they were feted and treated, and went away happy, but forgot the magnitude of hospitality offered them through the members of the society and the society itself.

The S. A. F. Pins.

We have been so liberal that we thought it would be terrible if when a florist came to the outer doors of the tabernacle and asked for admission, we would ask him if he was a member, but does not the work of you gentlemen for the last twenty-six years in their interests demand support? Aye, and so for several years past we have asked that in consideration of his membership we shall pin upon his bosom the highest token of honor, the leaf and emblem of our national organization, which grants the right to our festive occasions and business meetings. Not to be severe with those that are paying for space in our trade exhibitions, we have granted them the privilege, by personal recognition, of bringing into the building our brothers in the trade, and we have always hoped and trusted that before they retired they would join in our ranks—this has helped us gain some members and it will continue to do so just as long as we adhere to this policy.

A natural increase in membership also comes from the convention being held in new localities where the society has not held its meetings for several years, and in the selection of the place for the next meeting this should be given due consideration.

The Elections.

I am now going to voice the sentiments expressed by several of my predecessors and say that the president of our society ought to have had experience on the executive board, to make him better fitted for the office. I am also in favor of the election of the board of directors by the society. I think that the selection of the men to perform the important work of the board would be better left to the discretion of a number of men rather than to the several presidents. On the contrary, with the offices of secretary and treasurer, their work has to be scrutinized by the board, who are also the instigators of a large proportion of their work. If perchance the offices were not satisfactorily filled—and satisfactorily means judiciously, promptly, correctly and obediently—there is no immediate redemption. Their official capacity is better known to the board to whom are entrusted the welfare of the society and the greater proportion of our serious questions; therefore why not this?

Recompensing the Officers.

In conducting the trade exhibit it has been the custom to hire a superintendent and as a recompense allow him ten per cent of the gross amount derived from the rentals of space, which for several years past have amounted to from $225 to $250, and on several occasions an additional $50 has been allowed as expense outside of the ordinary requirements. There have always been a number of other items, such as stenographer, bookkeeper and miscellaneous expenses, which approximately, from the reports of the last several years, amount to between $400 and $600.

Each year the office accounts and records are kept differently and I know of no time when any of the incidentals connected with this office were ever used for another year, all of which means some outlay. Now, we are all nearly agreed that the secretary's salary is hardly enough to recompense a man such as is necessary to properly perform the important duties connected with this office for his entire time. Our membership is not increasing rapidly enough to increase this salary. Now then, the same conditions exist concerning the office of superintendent of trade exhibits. We can not employ one for a long enough period at the amount usually earned, for he must have other employment at the same time and perhaps that something else is his own business or his employer's; therefore, we have two important positions partially, when we could have them wholly filled at a reasonable increase.

Combining Two Offices.

Now, why not combine the duties of the two? They both are clerical in their way, and both at a certain time need the undivided attention of one man. The duties of the superintendent of trade exhibits are mostly correspondence, except for a short period before the exhibition and then the secretary should be giving his undivided time for the good of our organization and should be in the city where the convention is to be held, assisting, as a paid official, the many willing volunteers who are giving their time, without recompense, toward preparing for the grand welcomes that have greeted us in the past and in this city at this time. This is my solution of obtainin that for which we have been striving, the undivided time of a secretary and superintendent of trade exhibits.

It can easily be seen that both offices can be combined and the duties be competently and judiciously performed. The secretary has all the advantage of his office to secure new business, and the combining of the two offices does not entail any more expense than we have been under during the last two or three years, but it means better results. The amount of salary I have in view at the present time is $1,500 per year, and if the work increases as it should under proper supervision, our income will increase, and the time is not far distant when $2,000 a year should be our secretary's salary. He would be the proper man for secretary of the national flower shows; his statistics and experience would make him the natural choice; his salary and the duties of his office ought to make his presence a necessity on such occasions.

Separate Section Meetings.

The adoption of this suggestion of President Valentine was one of the good things that cannot be praised too highly, and is conducive to great good to the different societies as well as to our own. Buildings such as this in which we are meeting are particularly adapted, with the different regimental rooms available. I have always been a believer in the necessity of these societies and of their being able to better carry out their specific work than can be done in our general meetings. They do not conflict, but assist, and every organization pertaining to horticulture, whether a florists' club, horticultural society, gardeners' association or any other specific in its character, formed to promote its own interests, and at the same time the interests of horticulture, should have the encouragement and support of our society. Perhaps some plan could be developed whereby each one of these organizations, when they could show a certain number of their membership in our society, would be entitled to a representation on our board of directors. This would help make our board representative of all interests and be an inducement for them to get their members into the national organization, thus materially increasing our membership.

The Outlook.

The last year has been one upon which we can look back with much satisfaction, for while business in a great many other lines has not been up to standard and a great feeling of unrest has prevailed among some of them, we, generally speaking, have no complaint and the outlook for a continuance is most promising. There have been fears of overproduction among the conservative, but this has not developed, and these fears must have passed away, judging from the large number of buildings being erected or contracted for at present. Some of the building concerns say that this year promises to be the heaviest in their history.

In conclusion, I wish to state that I have refrained from touching on many subjects of importance to the society, but they are in the hands of carefully selected committees, whose familiarity with their work will give to you far better recommendations than I could, and their reports will be presented in due time at this convention.

THE LOCAL MANAGEMENT.

For the excellent arrangements and the open-handed hospitalities credit is to be given to the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore, its officers and committees, as follows:

Muncie, Ind.—The Riverside Floral Co. is successor to the Warfel Floral Co., by purchase at the receiver's sale. The officers of the new company are: President, S. A. Richison; secretary and treasurer, F. A. Shaw. Henry Potomkin is grower. The greenhouses are at the corner of Beechwood and Meeks avenues; the offices are in the Wysor building. The principal crops will be carnations and roses.

BOWLING.

The ladies bowled Thursday morning, there being twenty-one of them. The seven high scores were by Mesdames Cook, Schaffer, Traendly, McKellar, Baur, Brodsky and Asmus, in the order named. Mrs. Traendly won a cup worth $75 in a special game. Thursday afternoon the inter-city team match was bowled, eight teams competing. The results were as follows:

Washington	2598	New York	2287
Cleveland	2367	Buffalo	2284
Philadelphia	2323	Cincinnati	2272
Baltimore	2315	Chicago	2254

THE NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

[The following is the report of the committee on the second National Flower Show, presented by the chairman of the committee, F. R. Pierson, at the convention of the Society of American Florists in Baltimore, August 15 to 18, 1911.]

The second National Flower Show opened its doors to the public in Mechanics building, Boston, March 25, 1911, continuing until Sunday, April 2. The formal opening took place on the evening of March 25, on which occasion we were honored by the presence of Governor Foss of Massachusetts, Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston, Congressman Samuel McCall and others, who addressed the large and distinguished audience gathered in Paul Revere hall, contributing greatly to the interest and eclat of the opening of the exhibition. The weather was unseasonably cold at the time of the opening, but, in spite of this drawback, I think I can modestly say that no previous exhibition ever held in this country approached this one in its scope and magnificence. The large attendance of the trade from all over the country, at a busy season of the year, and especially the large local attendance, was most gratifying.

A Financial Success.

You are all aware of the success of this show from a horticultural standpoint, and I am sure you will be pleased to know that it was not only a horticultural success but a financial success as well. The number of paid admissions—38,915—amounted to $18,982. At the first National Flower Show the number of paid admissions was 29,790, amounting to $17,791. This by way of comparison, although at the first show 75 cents was charged for admission, while at Boston 50 cents was considered the highest fee it was practicable to charge, on account of the fact that the Massachusetts Horticultural Society had been in the habit of giving exceedingly fine shows practically free. The amount distributed for cash prizes was $8,013.10; at Chicago, $5,447 was paid out for premiums. The total receipts, including the amount received from the guarantors, was $39,027.87, from which amount, after deducting all expenses and refunding to the guarantors the amount paid by them, there was left a gross profit of $3,655.46.

Payment of the Manager.

We were most fortunate in securing the services of Chester I. Campbell as manager, who, because of his experience in carrying on large exhibitions, particularly in Boston, was able to effect many economies which otherwise would have been impossible, and who was a great aid to the efficient work of the committee. Mr. Campbell, according to the arrangement made with him, was to receive, in lieu of salary and office expenses in the preliminary work of organization, securing the trade exhibits, etc., a percentage from the rental of the floor space, and, in addition, one-third of the gross profits, if any. In view of the uncertainty as to whether this show could be made a financial success, this was considered a safe, conservative and advantageous arrangement, as it obviated incurring any large fixed charges and practically made Mr. Campbell a partner in the enterprise. After paying Mr. Campbell one-third of the gross profits, according to the agreement, and returning to the guarantors a ten per cent dividend—the same as was returned at the first show—there was a net profit of $1,450.97 remaining for the Society of American Florists.

Work of Organization.

The preliminary work of organization was mapped out by representatives from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the Gardeners' and Florists' Club and the two Boston cut flower markets, in connection with the National Flower Show committee. After the preliminary work of organization was in hand, on account of the immense amount of labor involved in the work preparatory to so large an undertaking, and the fact that the members of the National Flower Show committee were so widely separated, it was deemed wise to entrust the detail work to a small local executive committee. Accordingly, such committee was appointed, styled the board of control, and consisted of John K. M. L. Farquhar, Thomas Roland, Patrick Welsh and E. Allan Peirce, with myself as chairman.

No one who has not had experience can realize the amount of work necessary to execute an undertaking of this magnitude, and I take this occasion to express my appreciation of the splendid services rendered by the gentlemen named, to whom, because of their indefatigable labor in connection with the show, from the beginning to the end, no little credit is due for the success of the exhibition. I shall long remember my pleasant association with them in carrying on the work, which was absolutely harmonious throughout. I wish also to state that the services of the board of control and of the National Flower Show committee were given entirely gratuitously. No one received any remuneration in the way of salary, and each one paid his own traveling expenses, hotel bills and all other expenses.

Helpful Coöperation.

One of the most pleasing features of the show was the hearty coöperation of the various horticultural societies, and it was largely due to their coöperation that the show was the success that it proved to be. We had the united support of the American Carnation Society, the American Rose Society, the National Sweet Pea Society, the National Gladiolus Society, the National Association of Gardeners, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture, the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, and other allied horticultural interests in the vicinity of Boston.

In preparing the premium lists, the Carnation Society, the Rose Society, the Sweet Pea Society and the National Association of Gardeners were asked to prepare their own schedules. The care and thought with which these, as well as the general schedule, were prepared is best evidenced by the fact that over eighty per cent of the premiums offered were won. This gave each society control practically over its own particular interest, and tended to harmony and good fellowship. It was the carrying out to a logical sequence the idea of home rule. It proved in a practical, logical way that it is not impossible to have all the auxiliary societies united in one harmonious whole, and I think that the getting together of the different societies in making one grand show has demonstrated the truth of the adage, in horticultural as well as in other matters, that "in union there is strength."

Frequency of National Shows.

Undoubtedly, it is impracticable to repeat these flower shows annually. A work of this magnitude involves so much labor and expense that a national flower show should probably be held not oftener than once in three years, and in different parts of the country, alternating between eastern and western cities. There is no doubt that the educational benefits derived from these shows are great. The attendance at Chicago and at Boston proves that the public is interested in horticulture. Our summer conventions do not meet this need; they are more particularly intended to carry on the work of the society and to promote its social and immediate business interests, whereas a national flower show, held in the spring, and once in about every three years, can be made of particular interest to the general public and a great educational factor in horticulture.

I am glad that the success of this second National Flower Show has demonstrated to the Rose Society and the Carnation Society the advantages to be derived from a combined exhibition. The success of the Boston spring show has resulted in the Rose and Carnation Societies getting together to hold their next annual show in Detroit, and we hope that this work, so well begun, will be carried forward along these lines, as we believe it is a move in the right direction.

The English Visitors.

A pleasing feature of the exhibition—I must not omit to mention—was the presence of our English friends, who made it a point to time their visit at the time of the flower show, contributing much to the pleasure of the occasion.

We wish to acknowledge our indebtedness to the Gardeners' and Florists' Club and to the ladies of Boston for the cordiality of the hospitality extended by them. The trade exhibit was exceedingly large and comprehensive and added no small part to the success of the general result, and the committee believes that those represented found themselves amply repaid for the expense and labor involved. In addition to the cash prizes awarded, there was a large number of silver cups donated by many generous friends; also a number of S. A. F. medals and certificates of merit. Besides these, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, through its own committee, awarded numerous gold and silver medals in recognition of superior culture and merit; and we wish to express to this society our appreciation of its liberality in this matter.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[The following is the report of Secretary H. B. Dorner, read before the Society of American Florists, in convention at Baltimore, August 15 to 18, 1911.]

I have the pleasure of presenting today the secretary's report for the twenty-seventh annual convention of this, one of the finest national organizations in the country. It has been a pleasure to follow the work of the organization for the year. While the society has not made the progress that was really possible, there are things that will help to make us more proud of our organization.

The National Flower Show.

Perhaps the most important event of the year has been the National Flower Show. All who were there will agree that it was the finest flower show ever held in this country. Many of the exhibitions were beyond expectation and all were worthy of the trip to see them. A full report will be given later by the committee through whose efforts such a show was made possible.

Condition of the Finances.

The finances of the society are gradually improving. The permanent or life membership fund has been increased since the last convention by the sum of $1,261.65. This amount was derived from the fees taken for life memberships and interests accruing during the year. The fund has now reached the sum of $9,700.15. Of this amount $7,500 is invested in the form of two loans secured by mortgages on properties located at Fort Wayne, Ind. These securities bear interest at five per cent.

Membership.

The membership has also been steadily increasing. At the end of 1909 the membership of the society was 995. At the end of 1910 this was raised to 1,073, with the prospect that it will be much increased during the present year. The paid-up membership up to August 10 is 1,055, or just eighteen less than at the end of 1910. One hundred and seventy-five of the members on last year's roll have as yet failed to pay their dues, but a number will do so before the year is over.

New Members.

One hundred and fifty-seven new members have already been taken in during the year. This is more than twice the number that were added up to the same date last year. At the suggestion of the president, letters were sent out to all the members, making an appeal for increased membership. The appeal was in the form of a request that each member make an attempt to secure at least one new member. The names of all members sending in applications are to be included in the printed report. Up to date nineteen of the numbered application blanks, which were sent out with the letters, have been returned. The following members sent in one or more applications:

E. A. Peirce	12	S. Wallace Tilton	1
Morris Goldenson	3	Peter Flanagan	1
R. Vincent, Jr.	1	James D. Hooper	2
Wm. F. Kasting	3	Geo. Asmus	1
R. A. Vincent	3	John Miesem	1
H. G. Berning	2	Jos. Manda	3
Joseph Traudt	1	T. P. Langhans	1
I. S. Hendrickson	1	F. E. Brockman	1
P. L. Larson	1	Matt Thau	1
Robt. Halliday	10	Florists' Tel. Del.	6

The following vice-presidents were also active and have sent in many new names:

Connecticut—W. R. Pierson	4
Iowa—Jas. S. Wilson	1
Mass. (East)—W. A. Hastings	14
Mass. (West)—G. H. Sinclair	1
Missouri—Fred H. Weber	6
Penn. (East)—S. S. Skidelsky	1
Rhode Island—L. J. Reuter	2
Wisconsin—J. E. Matthewson	2
Alberta, Canada—A. M. Terrill	1

Few realize that, by a little concerted effort on the part of the members, the membership can easily be doubled. It is to be hoped that the method suggested by President Asmus will be continued from year to year and that the members will make a greater effort to aid the society in this manner.

Of the new members added to our roll, five have come in as life members. In addition to these, fifteen old members have also become life members, making a total of twenty for the current year. This now gives the society 272 life members.

Transportation.

As usual, application for rates was made of all the passenger associations. This was granted by the Trunk Line Association and refused by the remainder. The Canadian, the Southeastern, the Western and the Southwestern Associations refused to grant rates, owing to the small number attending from those districts. The Central Association stated that it has ceased to grant rates unless an attendance of 1,000 be guaranteed. Owing to the reduced fares in many of the states, it is becoming more difficult each year to secure rates.

Trade Exhibition.

The trade exhibition of 1910 was by far the most successful ever held. Superintendent Vick and his associates at Rochester should be commended for the able manner in which the exhibition was handled. The total receipts for the sale of space were $2,460.43. The total expenditures were $944.52, leaving a net profit of $1,515.91. Several changes were made this year in the rules governing the exhibition, and it is to be hoped that they will do much to improve our exhibitions. It is hoped that the present exhibition will excel that of last year, as it did that of any previous year.

Entomologist and Pathologist.

The attention of the members should be called to the excellent reports given last year by the entomologist and pathologist, which are printed in the proceedings for 1910. Reports such as these can only be prepared by the expenditure of much labor and money.

Plant Registration.

Thirty-two plants have been registered during the last year, as follows:

No. 440—Oct. 6, 1910, Coleus, Fanny Ross, by J. W. Ross Co., Centralia, Ill.
Nov. 17, 1910, the following chrysanthemums were registered by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich.:

Necrology.

Since the last report the following members have died:

September 19, 1910, George Wittbold.
December 19, 1910, Anthony Wiegand.
March 18, 1911, George Lorenz.
April 30, 1911, George Engel.
May 18, 1911, Lloyd G. Blick.
May 21, 1911, Frederick Mathison.
May 24, 1911, Lemuel Ball.

Medals and Other Awards.

The following medals have been awarded during the year:

Silver medal—Patten & Co., for Carnation Genevieve, offered through the American Carnation Society at its annual exhibition, held at Boston, March, 1911.

Bronze medal—Patten & Co., for Carnation Mrs. C. W. Barron, offered through the American Carnation Society at its annual exhibition, held at Boston, March, 1911.

Silver medal—Lager & Hurrell, for Cypripedium insigne var. Hurrellianum, offered through the Horticultural Society of New York at its exhibition, November, 1910.

Silver medal—F. R. Pierson Co., for Nephrolepis viridissima, offered through the Horticultural Society of New York at its exhibition, November, 1910.

Silver medal—F. R. Pierson Co., for a new form of Nephrolepis superbissima, offered through the Horticultural Society of New York at its exhibition, November, 1910.

The medals and certificates awarded at Boston at the National Flower Show will be included in the report of the National Flower Show committee.

Trade Press.

The members of the trade press continue to give the society their cordial support. They have always been ready to print all notices and items sent to them by the secretary. The thanks of the society is also due them for the complimentary copies of their publications sent for the use of the secretary.

Secretaryship.

Before closing this report, a word or two should be said regarding the secretary's office. The work of the office is getting heavier each year and has now reached the point where the entire time of the secretary should be devoted to the interests of the society. Experience of the last two years has shown that the work can not be efficiently done by anyone who has other duties to perform. Where such is the case, it is the society's and not the man's business that suffers. The secretary should work to secure increased membership and that takes time. He should be able to give assistance to the various committees, so that they will be able to carry on their work without such sacrifice of time and money as is now necessary to accomplish anything. More could be accomplished in this way. Why should we insist upon holding to the methods used in the society twenty-five years ago, any more than we should insist upon using the methods employed by gardeners of that period, when those methods do not suit our present-day conditions? Any member who has the interests of the society at heart must see the necessity of a change. Many other duties that are neglected at the present time could be given the necessary attention.

In closing I wish to thank the members of the society for all their kind consideration and help given to the secretary during the last two years.

TREASURER'S REPORTS.

Treasurer W. F. Kasting presented two reports, one for the complete year 1910 and the other for the first part of the present year. The following is a summary of the two reports:

TARIFF AND LEGISLATION.

[The following is the report of the Tariff and Legislative Committee, read before the Society of American Florists, in convention at Baltimore, August 15 to 18, 1911.]

The attention of your committee was called to the importance of reciprocal exchange of floral products between the United States and Canada. An attempt on the part of your chairman to obtain the opinion of not only the committee, but of some of the persons who were likely to be vitally interested, brought out such a diversity of opinion that a recommendation was made to the executive committee of the S. A. F. to have the subject discussed from both sides of the boundary line, at this convention. This was acted upon by the executive committee and it is the hope of the tariff and legislative committee that, after Mr. Mepsted and Mr. Welch have given their views on the subject, the matter will be thoroughly discussed and your committee fully instructed by the S. A. F. as to future procedure in the matter.

In order to view this subject intelligently, we herewith give the American duty on floral imports, the Canadian duty and the concessions the Canadian Horticultural Society was willing to make last year:

American Duty.	Canadian Duty.	Products.	Canadian Duty Asked For.
25%	17½%	Cut flowers	17½%
Free	17½%	Cut smilax and asparagus	17½%
Free	20%	Laurel roping, laurel branches, bay leaves, magnolia leaves and branches, galax leaves, leucothoe sprays, wild smilax, long needle pines, palm crowns, cut boxwood, and all natural greens	Free
4c ea.	20%	Rose plants, outdoor or greenhouse grown	20%
25%	20%	Carnation plants or cuttings	20%
25%	20%	Geraniums, coleus, salvia, petunias, heliotrope, fuchsias, Vernon begonias, and all soft wooded plants for bedding	20%
25%	20%	Greenhouse plants known as stove plants	20%
25%		Carnations, new varieties of greenhouse plants and roses, free-rooted cuttings or large plants of carnations, roses, chrysanthemums, geraniums, ferns, violets or any new variety of plant being sent out for the first time	Free
25%		Palms, azaleas, pot-grown lilacs, rhododendrons, aspidistras, Ficus elastica, Ficus pandurata, bay trees, box trees, aquatic plants, cacti, Dutch and French grown bulbs, caladium, tube-rose begonias, peonies, etc.	Free
25%	20%	Ferns, flower pots, etc.	20%
25%	20%	Orchid plants, hardy perennials	Free
25%	20%	Insecticide for fumigating purposes	Free

$5.00 per M. Free Liliums of all kinds..... Free

Lily of valley pips, tulip, narcissus, begonia and gloxinia bulbs, $1 per thousand.

Hyacinth, astilbe, dielytra and valley clumps, $2.50 per thousand.

Lily bulbs and calla bulbs, $5 per thousand.

Peony, Iris Kaempferi and Germanica, canna, dahlia and amaryllis bulbs, $10 per thousand.

All other bulbs cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per thousand.

Your chairman made a suggestion to the Canadian Horticultural Association that its members further discuss the subject this year, and if possible notify us of a minimum rate that they would be willing to accept. Mr. Mepsted, in his address, will no doubt furnish this information upon this subject. Your committee would suggest that if both societies could agree upon the same rate, it would undoubtedly make it easier work for both committees to secure what was mutually desired.

Another important subject is: House Bill No. 8611 and Senate Bill No. 2870, both giving the Secretary of Agriculture large and possibly dangerous discretionary power over the importation of nursery stock and some kinds of floral products. The nurserymen ask our coöperation in their effort to have the bill amended, so as to have the discretionary power placed within reasonable bounds. Your committee again asks that you give this matter earnest, not slipshod attention, and that you give specific instruction as to your wishes.

Complaints About Express Service.

A complaint concerning the dilatory delivery of cut flowers by the U. S. Express Co. has been taken up with the company. This complaint is brought about as a result of the recent strike and its solution has not progressed far enough to make a definite report possible. The labor trust seems to be master of the situation. Your chairman promises to carry it to its ultimate conclusion, even if it leads to the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

Another complaint concerning the routing of goods was taken up with the express companies, and an admission that their officials were in error was secured. Directions were given by the express companies how to secure proper service in the future.

Your committee would also suggest that any information concerning the cost of production, at home or abroad, of glass or any other product, entering into the construction of greenhouse establishments, will be gladly accepted and filed for future use, whenever the time arrives to make the information effective.

The opinion of your committee is divided as to the advisability of appearing before the Inter-State Commerce Commission, against express companies, some contending that inasmuch as concessions have been made in favor of flowering plants and generally satisfactory service has been rendered, it would not be advisable to make ourselves too prominent in the matter. My own opinion is that we should have the evidence to make a good case before we carry a grievance to the commission, and that in all cases it might be well first to endeavor to rectify the matter complained of by application to the companies themselves.

Respectfully submitted,

John G. Esler, Chairman.
J. C. Vaughan,
J. Otto Thilow,
Frank Traendly,
P. Welch,
E. G. Hill.

WASHINGTON REPRESENTATIVE.

[Report of Wm. F. Gude, permanent Washington representative of the S. A. F., presented at Baltimore.]

I appeared before the committee on postoffice and post roads of the House of Representatives of the United States, at its meeting June 14, 1911, in favor of a parcels post and lower postal rates.

My address was along lines essentially needed by the florists and seedsmen and was in favor of a flat rate. To make this clear to some few members, who have not made a detailed study of the matter, a flat rate is one rate from any given point to all other points, so that we can ship our product to any point for one flat postage rate.

Some bills are now under consideration for a zone system, say twenty-five, fifty, seventy-five or 100 miles or more, where the postage would be according to distance, and have much in their favor, for anything that will lower the cost is good.

The national granges favor the flat rate, while the jobbing and commercial elements favor the zone system.

In answer to the chairman's inquiry, "In what way do you represent your organization?" I stated that I was appointed by the president of the organization and I told him that our charter, which we hold from the United States government, is signed by President McKinley. I stated, further, that at our convention held three years ago, a unanimous vote was passed in favor of parcels post. The seedsmen and florists probably need a parcels post more than anyone else, for the reason that they need a service by which they can send their goods at a rate they can afford to pay. The chairman asked, "You are here as a representative of that great organization?" "Yes, sir." "And to give their views as to parcels post?" "Yes, sir." "Go ahead." I said: "I am here to state that this resolution has been passed, not by a few members, but in an annual convention the matters were discussed fully and three separate and distinct times they have passed a unanimous resolution favoring the establishment of a parcels post by the United States government similar to that which has been passed in other countries." In speaking of a rate we could afford to pay, I stated it should be a happy medium between the rate charged by the express company and the first-class postage rate now charged on flowers.

Nature of Florists' Shipments.

The great majority of our shipments weigh more than four pounds, which we are permitted to send on account of the packing in some material sufficiently strong to reach the purchaser in proper condition; frequently the packing itself weighs more than the contents.

The express rate on flowers is more than that of ordinary merchandise. The increase to the eleven-pound limit would increase the florists' shipments four times.

Our goods are shipped by first-class postage because we believe they go through more promptly, even though they must be called for at the rural offices. This is the best kind of business for the United States government to handle, being short hauls only, at first-class postage rates.

In the south we are somewhat handicapped on many shipments by having to wait twenty-three hours before flowers leave by express. This condition, we believe, would be altered by parcels post. In a good many of the larger cities of the south there is only one express service a day. The south will be helped materially if we can get flowers and seeds by an eleven-pound parcels post, well managed (as we manage all things well in the south when we have the opportunity).

Now, gentlemen, speaking for the Society of American Florists, an organization composed of men who are eminent florists and horticulturists, as well as seedsmen and nurserymen, and men who do business largely to promote the æsthetic part of man and act as a lifting power, if I may so put it, to humanity, let me say: The most prominent men in our line in all the large cities are members of this organization, and it comprises more than 1,000 members. A great many are life members. Let every florist speak to his representative and senator and urge upon them to work actively and promptly for the parcels post measure.

Strange Discrimination.

Gentlemen, these facts are startling: Within the United States the rate of postage on fourth-class matter is 16 cents a pound, with a limit of four pounds. The United States is party to a treaty under which residents of twenty-nine foreign countries may send fourth-class matter through the United States mails at 12 cents a pound, with a limit of eleven pounds. In other words, a man may send an eleven-pound package from San Francisco, Cal., to Rome, Italy, at 12 cents a pound, but if he wishes to send the same articles to New York he must divide them into packages of not to exceed four pounds each and pay 16 cents a pound. A Japanese residing in New York can send an eleven-pound package to his friends in Tokio, Japan, over 5,000 miles, at 12 cents a pound, but an American in New York can send only a four-pound package from New York to Washington, less than 300 miles, and must pay 16 cents a pound.

This is all, gentlemen. I thank you very much and I urge upon you the adoption of the plan proposed of a direct appeal to individual congressmen, and I ask you to indorse the following bill, and that copies of it be sent by our secretary to the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States:

"Fixing the rate of postage to be charged for transmission of mail within the United States or its possessions. Be it enacted, That from and after the passage of this act no higher postage rate shall be charged for transmission of mail entirely within the United States, or its possessions, than is charged for transmission of mail partly within and partly without the United States or its possessions. The postmaster-general is hereby authorized and required to establish and enforce rules and regulations which will give the people of the United States rights and privileges in the use of the United States mails as liberal as the rights and privileges the United States accords to the people of the most favored nation."

RAILROAD GARDENERS MEET.

Enthusiasm was the keynote of the fifth annual convention of the Railway Gardening Association, held at the Kaiserhof hotel, Chicago, August 15 to 18, 1911. Out of a total active membership of fifty-two, there responded to the call forty-two workers for the good of the cause. This was a remarkable showing, considering that railroads from coast to coast were represented.

This association was organized September 21, 1907, with only seventeen members, and was the result of much untiring effort and correspondence on the part of George B. Moulder, chief gardener of the Illinois Central railroad, who conceived the idea.

The following interesting program was closely followed for the Chicago meeting, and it was felt by all present to have developed many ideas that will prove valuable in the future work of the association and its individual members:

TUESDAY, AUGUST 15.

10:00 a. m.—Address of welcome.
Officers' reports.
"Uniformity in Railroad Gardening and How to Bring It About," E. A. Richardson, Boston & Albany R. R.
"Interesting Railroads in Beautifying Their Station Grounds," N. S. Dunlop, Canadian Pacific R. R.
"Fences, Including Hedges; Where to Use; Material, Maintenance," Joseph Carson, Pennsylvania R. R.
1:30 p. m. to
5:00 p. m.—Inspection tour of Chicago parks.
8:00 p. m.—"Sodding and Seeding Lawns, Comparative Value, Best Time to Do It, Material," R. J. Rice, Michigan Central R. R.
"The Gardeners' Jurisdiction: How Far Beyond the Park Fence Should It Extend?" R. W. Hutchison, Pennsylvania R. R.
"How Best to Prevent Stock from Trespassing on Our Grounds," C. W. Eichling, Queen & Crescent R. R.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 16.

10:00 a.m.—"Hardy Herbaceous Perennials in Landscape Work," W. H. Waite, Vaughan's nurseries.
"Plants for Permanent Effect: Extent of Their Use; Varieties," Geo. E. Kessler, St. Louis & San Francisco R. R.
"Should Railroad Companies Purchase or Grow Their Stock?" F. W. Vail, Central of New Jersey R. R.
"Treating Cuts and Banks to Prevent Washing and Sliding," H. S. Moulder, Illinois Central R. R.
"Fertilizers," J. A. Byrne, Baltimore & Ohio R. R.
"Maintaining Parks During Drought," J. E. Smith, Pennsylvania R. R.
Open discussion on all subjects.
1:30 p. m. to
5:00 p. m.—Inspection Burlington R. R. station grounds and Vaughan's nurseries, Western Springs, Ill.
8:00 p. m.—Selection of next meeting place.
Election of officers.
Miscellaneous.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY, AUGUST 17-18.
Sightseeing at the discretion of visitors.

The 1912 meeting will be held at Roanoke, Va., on the line of the Norfolk & Western railroad, August 13 to 16.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows, the vote being unanimous in every instance: President, Patrick Foy, Roanoke, Va., reëlected; vice-president, F. W. Vail, Dunellen, N. J.; secretary-treasurer, J. S. Butterfield, Lee's Summit, Mo., reelected; executive committee, Geo. B. Moulder, Chicago, Ill., R. J. Rice, Niles, Mich., R. W. Hutchison, Sewickley, Pa. The officers of the association are ex-officio members of the executive committee.

A handsome souvenir book, descriptive of the organization from its inception to date, was distributed by the secretary. It includes many articles of interest to anyone engaged in railroad gardening.

CANADIAN FLORISTS MEET.

Officers Elected.

At the fourteenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, held at Ottawa, Ont., August 9 to 11, it was decided to hold the 1912 meeting at Montreal, and the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year:

President—A. C. Wilshire, Montreal, Que.

First vice-president—Walter Muston, Davisville, Ont.

Second vice-president—H. B. Cowan, Peterboro, Ont.

Secretary—Julius Luck, Cote des Neiges, Montreal.

Treasurer—C. H. Jazen, Berlin, Ont.

Executive committee, three years—J. Graham, Ottawa; A. H. Ewing, Woodstock; H. G. Mulliss, Brampton; two years—A. Annandale, Toronto; F. S. Cheesman, London; E. J. Mepsted, Ottawa; one year—F. McKenna, Berlin; William Downing, Berlin; R. H. Ellis, Leamington.

President's Address.

Mayor Hopewell, of Ottawa, started the ball rolling with an address of welcome, to which T. W. Duggan, of Brampton, fittingly replied.

President J. Connon, of Hamilton, in his address during the opening session, urged the need of a parcels post and suggested that the question of reciprocity be discussed solely with reference to the benefits this trade would derive therefrom. He advocated the inauguration of a department for commercial floriculture at the government experimental farm, and said that to hold the interest of all factions at the annual conventions the retailers, private gardeners and growers should have separate meetings for the discussion of matters pertaining to their particular branch of the trade.

The secretary's report was adopted as read and A. H. Ewing, of Woodstock, presented an able paper on "What Inducement Does the Future of Horticulture Hold Out for Young Men?"

There was a red-hot discussion and many speeches on the reciprocity question and it was finally decided that the list of florists' stock and supplies as drawn up by the tariff committee about covered the requirements of the trade in this country.

Trade Exhibit.

Judges E. Hayward, Montreal; H. G. Dillemuth, Toronto, and J. Milford, Sherbrooke, reported the trade exhibits as follows:

Scrims', Ottawa; especially fine exhibit of cyclamen in 6-inch pots.

Taylor & Scott, Montreal; extra quality cut sweet peas.

Slack Bros., Waterloo; sweet peas.

Experimental farm, Ottawa; fine show of cannas.

Graham Bros., Ottawa; well grown lot of ferns.

Gammage & Sons, London, Ont.; especially fine exhibit of palms, ferns and decorative plants; certificate of merit.

W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; splendid exhibit of greenhouse and store plants.

R. H. Ellis, Leamington, Ont.; splendid lot of nephrolepis.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; samples of ribbon and florists' supplies.

Campbell Bros., Simcoe, Ont.; fine cut gladioli.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; baskets.

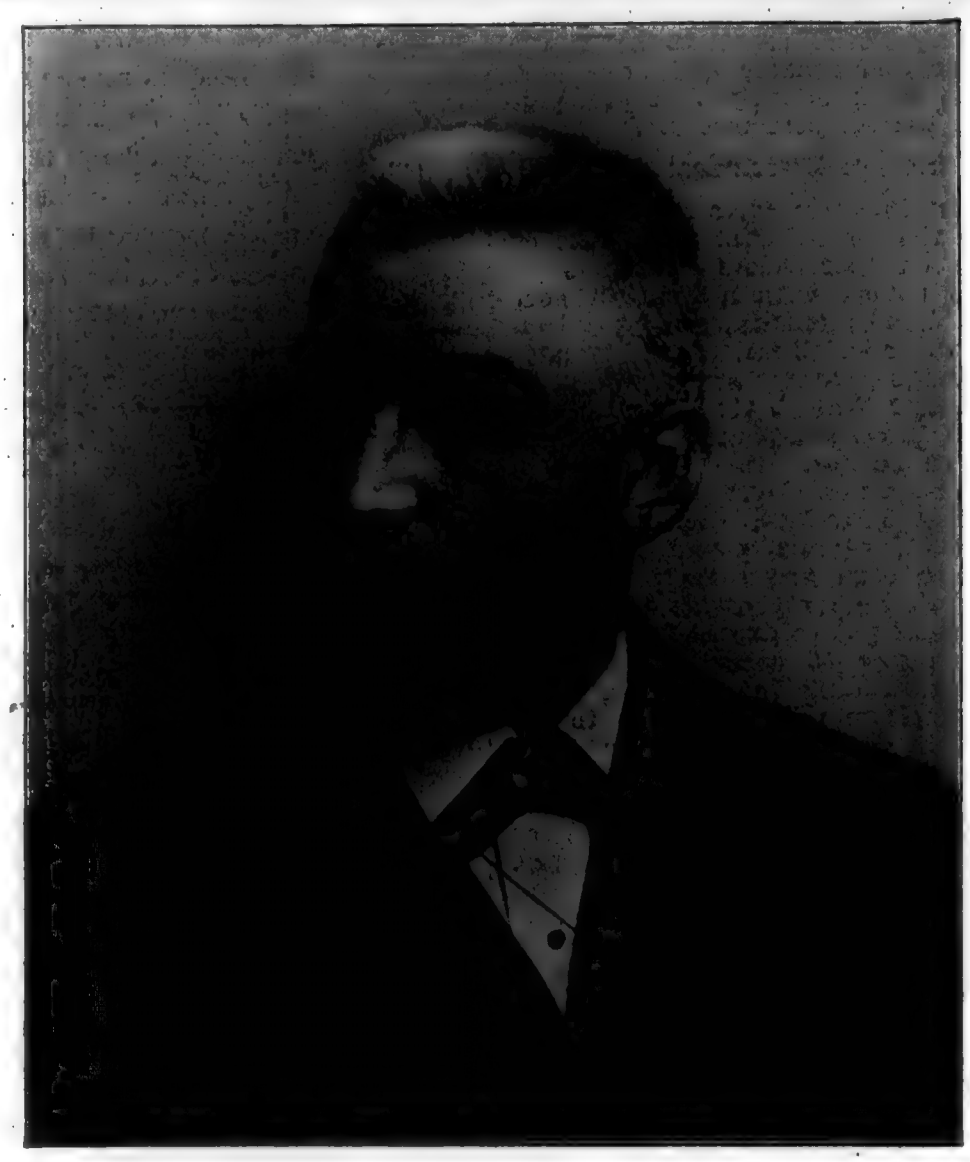
Dale Estate, Brampton; excellent display of ribbons, wirework, wheat sheaves and cycas leaves.

Beverly, Mass.—George Gordon, the prosperous gardener and florist of North Beverly, has left his business in charge of his son-in-law and is making an extended tour of the western states. In Wyoming he visited a brother, Peter, whom he had not seen for more than forty years. After a brief stay with his brother, he went to Salt Lake City, from which point he expected to make a side trip to the Yellowstone Park, thence to San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Vancouver and then homeward by way of Canada.

OBITUARY.

John Birnie.

John Birnie, of West Hoboken, N. J., one of the most widely known of the growers for the New York market, died without warning Tuesday, August 15, in the Hotel Belvedere, at Baltimore. Mr. Birnie had gone, with Mrs. Birnie and many friends in the New York Florists' Club, to attend the S. A. F. convention. After the first business session he stood with several of the leading members for a group photograph for one of the Baltimore daily papers, after which he walked back to the hotel and entered the dining-room, where he was seized with sudden illness. He was assisted to his room, where he died in a few minutes. The coroner's inquest gave a verdict of death by apoplexy. In the evening a special meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held, at which arrangements were made for escorting the body home and a committee consisting of C. H. Totty, H. A. Bunyard and W. F. Sheridan appointed to draft resolutions to be spread on the minutes of the next regular meeting.



A native of Scotland, who came in youth to New York, John Birnie was one of the oldest active florists in his section or, indeed, in the country. His start in the trade was almost coincident with the beginning of the real development of commercial floriculture in the vicinity of New York. He was one of the first men to grow the carnation for cut flowers and his reminiscences of those early days always were full of interest to the younger generation. Of late years he had specialized on geraniums. He was of progressive disposition and kept fully abreast of the times. For years he had been a regular attendant at the S. A. F. conventions and an active participant in the business meetings. He also had attended the Carnation Society's meetings with regularity. The recent hot weather had told on him severely, but he was of that sturdy constitution that refused to give up. At luncheon with friends on the day of his death he had complained of feeling unwell, but had expressed the belief that he would soon be all right again, "but when I break down, I'll go all at once," he said as the group left the table.

Mr. Birnie was 58 years of age. Besides the widow, there are left two sons and three daughters, one of the sons being engaged in the plant-growing business with his father.

James Joseph O'Leary.

James Joseph O'Leary, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. O'Leary, of Lowell, Mass., died August 5 at the home of his parents, 40 Fanning street, at the age of 21 years. He had been ill for several weeks. He had resided in Lowell since early childhood. He was in the florists' business with his father and was a former member of Company G, Sixth regiment, M. V. M. He is survived by his parents and one sister, Miss Mary G. O'Leary.

Baraboo, Wis.—E. T. Ross, who has been identified with the florists' trade for the last twelve years, is now starting in business for himself here, with a greenhouse 20x100, and expects to build more next spring. He will grow potted plants of all kinds and carnations for cut flowers.

John Birnie.

GLOVE COVE, N. Y.

The regular monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, August 9. President Trepess occupied the chair and there was a good attendance.

Messrs. Ashworth, McNenery and Walker were appointed as judges and their decisions were as follows:

Society prizes—Twelve asters, any color, first, George Barton; twelve gladioli, first, Paul Reul; six lilies, first, George Barton.

J. Ingram, special prize for four vases of asters, first, George Barton. A certificate of culture was awarded to James Emslie for a dish of peaches.

The outing committee reported all arrangements satisfactory for the annual outing to be held at Karatsonyi's hotel, Glenwood, August 17.

A letter was read from the Stumpp & Walter Co., offering a silver cup for the fall exhibition; also from Hitchings & Co., offering a prize for the same exhibition.

Mr. Holloway, of the executive committee, read the schedule prepared for the dahlia show, to be held September 27, and it was adopted.

The society has just received a presentation of 500 vases. The donors were Mrs. C. L. Bucknall, Mrs. Wm. Beard, Mrs. Arthur Gibbs, Mrs. H. L. Pratt and Mrs. F. S. Smithers.

A list of the special prizes and their donors was read; also the preliminary schedule for the fall show.

The Rev. J. W. Gammick was unanimously elected a life member of the society, exempt from dues.

The society's prizes in September will be for the best muskmelon, twelve potatoes and six ears of corn. E. H. W.

PITTSBURG'S PICNIC.

The two illustrations shown herewith were reproduced from photographs taken at the annual picnic of the Pittsburg Florists' and Gardeners' Club at Keystone Park, August 8. Albert Lorch, one of the club members, was the man with the camera. Further notes of the outing will be found in the Pittsburg notes on another page of this issue.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Outdoor flowers continue to dominate the markets, asters, gladioli and sweet peas being the three leaders at present. Business has been somewhat quiet since the last report. Good quality flowers, of course, clean up well, but a great many seen are of the inferior grades and are either sold cheaply or thrown into the rubbish barrels. Asters are abundant, but only a small proportion are of first grade quality. A great many are short-stemmed, show open centers, or are in other ways deformed. Prices are much lower. Gladioli are in heavy oversupply. The quality of the home-grown stock is excellent, but large quantities of New York state flowers are being dumped here at an average of $5 per thousand. These are short-stemmed and of inferior quality, but they hurt the sale of the better grades. Sweet peas are not equal to previous years in quality, but are holding out well and seem to be rather more abundant.

Roses are in good supply. Many are small, puny flowers and difficult to move. Beauties sell well, also Carnot, Prince de Bulgarie and Maryland. The Killarneys are temporarily on a back seat; so are Richmonds. A few new crop carnations are in, but they are short-stemmed yet. Flowers of the old crop are not worth sending in while there is an abundant supply of asters. There is a fair call for lilies; both speciosum and longiflorum are good. Valley sells fairly well. Callas are over for the season. A few dahlias and Golden Glow chrysanthemums are to hand. There is the usual supply of gypsophila, candytuft, cornflowers, snapdragons and other outdoor flowers. Cattleyas are in moderate supply and there are sufficient gardenias to go around. Sprengeri, plumosus and adiantum are not selling well. There is a fair sale for cut nephrolepis fronds.

Various Notes.

The Boston delegation to the Baltimore convention left under pleasant climatic auspices on the evening of August 13. Among those in the party were W. A. Hastings, E. Allan Peirce, William Sim, F. N. Sanborn, W. E. Cahill, F. E. Collamoin, J. McCormick, H. T. Meade, C. H. Barrett, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Bartsch, Eber Holmes, Joseph Fuller, Thomas Stock, Thomas Roland and two sons, R. C. Bridgham and S. J. Goddard. Others joined the party at Fall River, Newport and New York. P. Welch and W. J. Stewart left August 14. W. A. Hastings, the state vice-president, worked indefatigably to secure a good representation and deserves much credit. The idea of going south in August seemed to be too much for many to overcome, however.

A. A. Pembroke, of Beverly, has just sown a house 36x400 with sweet peas. He finds Burpee's reselected Earliest of All and Earliest White excellent varieties. He plants 25,000 carnations; one house of these is 38x330 and another 36x220. He will grow vegetables also this season, on a large scale. Seven houses, each 36x220, will be filled with lettuce and followed with cucumbers. Mr. Pembroke, who is a recent addition to the ranks of our commercialists, will this season have 90,000 feet of glass planted. The quality of the productions here is of the highest. Already some excellent carnations of the new crop are coming in.

Pittsburg's Picnickers.

(J. W. Jones, foreman of Schenley park, with his co-workers.)

A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, purchased the five greenhouses at the auction sale of Lemoine Bros., August 9. The field-grown carnations were all secured by Mr. Powers, of Cochituate, who will again start in commercial floriculture.

The E. Sutermeister estate, of Readville, is handling a magnificent lot of Gladiolus America, the best seen here this season. Augusta is equally good. They are also cutting quantities of scented geranium and lemon-scented verbena shoots, which are popular.

A. F. Scott, of the Willow Hill Greenhouses, West Roxbury, markets 1,000 or more of the lavender colored Centaurea moschata daily, which sells readily at Thomas Pegler's stand at the Boston Flower Exchange.

Both the wholesale flower markets have started house-cleaning, preparatory to the annual auction sales of stalls, which occur in each case September 2.

W. A. Riggs, of Auburndale, is one of the few growers producing first-class antirrhinums through the hot months. Mr. Riggs is busy on additions and improvements to his greenhouses.

Among growers who are already sending in nice new crop carnations are B. P. Winch, of Framingham; James Tulis, South Sudbury; William R. Nicholson, Framingham, and A. A. Pembroke, Beverly.

A. S. Parker, who is a noted aster grower, cultivating them by the acre, is sending in some excellent shipments to the Boston Flower Exchange. In spite of the late drought, his crop is good.

W. R. Findlay has an excellent and attractive flower store on Federal street, near the South station, which many of the thousands of daily passers-by patronize. He keeps a first-class assortment of seasonable flowers on hand.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club will hold a field day August 26 at the Cedar Acre gladiolus fields of B. Hammond Tracy, in Wenham. The party will journey via electrics. The ride, occupying one and three-fourths hours, is an enjoyable one.

Walter H. Knapp, of Newtonville; W. J. Cain, of Newton, and B. P. Winch, of Framingham, are all sending in fine lots of cosmos to the Boston Flower Exchange.

N. H. Silverman, the up-to-date Winter street florist, is making gladioli a leading feature in his window displays this week. He carries cattleyas and all other choice flowers in season.

Matthew F. Roane, the popular salesman for Peirce Bros., has been enjoying his vacation at York Beach, Me.

Johnson Knight, the courteous manager at the Boston Coöperative Flower Market, is spending part of his well-earned vacation at Lake View, Lowell.

The many friends of J. M. Cohen, the popular salesman at the Boston Cooperative Flower Market, were sorry to hear that his summer cottage at Winthrop had been broken into in the early hours of August 10 and cash and valuables to the amount of $1,100 stolen. No trace of the burglars has Binghamton, N. Y.—C. H. Wilbur is planning to build an office and show house at the entrance to the plant which passed into his possession recently. The fact that he had been sixteen years with the late owner gives him a splendid opportunity, of which he has taken advantage. The King Construction Co. has the plans for the building mentioned and also for a new range of glass.

Bangor, Mich.—A. E. Davis, proprietor of the South Side Greenhouses, is establishing a business also in Hartford, Mich. He has purchased four lots on Linden street, in that town, and is building a greenhouse there, 25x100 feet. He believes the opportunities for development there are good, as there is already a steady demand for flowers, all of which have heretofore been shipped into town.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1911: President, George Asmus, Chicago; vice-president, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.
Annual convention, Chicago, Ill., August 13 to 16, 1912.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them. We both have them.

This issue of The Review contains 140 pages, including the cover, and is the largest Convention Special Number ever published in the horticultural trade.

E. Allan Peirce, treasurer of the National Flower Show, sent out checks August 9 for ten per cent dividend to guarantors. The S. A. F. and the guarantors divided the profit.

The smallest edition of The Review during the present summer has consisted of eighty-four pages, and the smallest number of copies printed of any edition has been 10,000. The steady growth of the paper, in size and circulation, is parallel to the expansion in the horticultural trades; anything less than The Review is doing would be a failure to keep in step with the times.

The W. E. Kirchhoff Co., of Pembroke, N. Y., has sent to The Review some splendid spikes of Gladiolus Princepine, for which it is offering a gold medal for the best amateur display at the meeting of the American Gladiolus Society. The Kirchhoffs, who are gladiolus specialists, are the originators and have this to say of it: "This variety is quite popular with all who have the pleasure of seeing it, and more so yet with those who grow it, as it is a thrifty grower, keeps its color and is an excellent shipper."

RETAIL TO WHOLESALE.

The success with which florists doing a local business have moved surpluses at wholesale through advertising in The Review has resulted in a number changing from local retail to the wholesale branch of the business. The tendency is shown in the following letter:

We have sold all our carnation plants that are large enough at present, but will have more in two or three weeks. We are very much pleased with The Review and regret we are not able to fill orders for 100,000 plants, as your paper would bring fine returns. Our greenhouses would be equal to a gold mine if you could develop it for us.—C. B. Flick Floral Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., July 29, 1911.

Sydney B. Wertheimer was at the convention, fresh from Switzerland, having landed at New York August 14.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Business was decidedly quiet last week and it shows little if any improvement this week. Convention week is proverbially a dull one in the wholesale market, but this year the convention is so far away and there are so few Chicago people there that the convention is a negligible factor. The aviation meet is doing something to increase the local demand for flowers, but both local and shipping calls are decidedly light. There is too much stock in the market; clean sales are impossible.

Asters and gladioli are the dominating flowers. Since we have had some good rains the quality of the asters, injured first by dry weather and then by wet, is much improved. Also, quite a few growers have excellent asters under glass. It is well within conservative statement to say that the Chicago market never had better asters than have been coming in recently and its supply never has been larger. There are all sizes, types and colors, but hardly any of them have realized prices that compare with the true value of such stock. Gladioli also have improved in quality and, although the supply has been large for some time, it has been especially heavy in the last few days, so that the finest varieties in perfect condition have realized no more money than the poorest glads realized at this time in July.

There is an abundance of roses and the quality is first-class for the season. Beauties continue in good supply and Killarney, both white and pink, and My Maryland are equal to all requirements, with something to spare. Last week rose prices were most unstable, the buyer who was willing to clean up a quantity being able to dictate his own terms. This week there is little change, especially on the short stock, which is in even heavier supply than the longer grades, for most of the roses now being cut are from young plants.

Carnations are in light supply, but are not missed. A few are being cut from old plants, a few short ones from new plants, and a few from the field.

Lilies have occupied a conspicuous place with some of the wholesale houses, there now being a number of growers shipping large quantities, giganteum, auratum and rubrum. Prices have had to be moderate to move the goods. Few orchids are arriving and not many sweet peas are seen, the best of these selling quite well. The valley growers are going easy, anticipating a better market later on and having, apparently, no oversupply of pips.

Such garden flowers as rudbeckia have sold only at cheap prices, for window decorations, etc.

There is an abundance of greens, with little demand.

Various Notes.

Fred Stielow has his new place at Niles Center completed, all except the heating apparatus, and planted with 35,000 roses. His son is in charge here. The old range also is replanted. It contains 35,000 carnation plants.

The daily papers last week reported the marriage of N. O. Gilpatrick and Gertrude May at the La Salle hotel. The

WE HAVE SPLENDID

BEAUTIES

Plenty of the popular medium lengths

Our present cut of Beauties is largely from young plants and runs largely to medium stems, the lengths that are in greatest demand. This is excellent stock, grown by the grower whose summer crop has given such perfect satisfaction to our customers in other years. Those who are not ordering their Beauties of us should try this stock without delay.

KILLARNEYS

Pink or White—Large Supply

Buyers who have not tried our Killarneys should do so at once, for Chicago never has seen anything like so large a supply or such fine quality. We are furnishing buyers all the Killarneys they need, in any length up to 18 to 24 inches. The color of the pink is something wonderful—better than it is in winter. These roses are business-builders. Once tried, you will use no others.

ASTERS

The Late and Fancy Varieties

While we have had a great many Asters, and very fine Asters, we never have handled the like of these. They are the finest Asters that ever have come on this market. All colors, all sizes. Try some of them. You surely will buy as long as they last.

GLADIOLI

Can supply in thousand lots.

The quality never was better. Mrs. Francis King (red), America (light pink), and Augusta (white). These are the three buyers want in quantity, and we have them. Note the low prices. You can use large lots at these figures.

Lilies

We can furnish Easter Lilies, Rubrums or Auratums, best quality, in any quantity.

Valley

Order Valley of us and you will draw on a never-failing source of supply.

HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL GREENS

Here you get the best Fancy Ferns, all the Smilax and Asparagus strings you want, Sprengeri and Plumosus bunches, Mexican Ivy and Galax. No order too large for our facilities and no order too small to receive our careful attention.

groom said he is a florist at Plano, Ill., but his name does not appear in the trade records.

Wietor Bros. report an extremely brisk demand for field-grown plants of White Perfection carnation this season.

Miss Marie Olmest has returned from her vacation, permitting C. W. McKellar and wife to make the trip to Baltimore.

Fred Gall, an employee of Bassett & Washburn, at Hinsdale, was detained by the police the other day because he had in his possession a quantity of cyanide of potassium. The police feared he meant some serious harm and would not at first accept his statement that he was going to fumigate the greenhouses.

The Muir store on Michigan avenue has had a thorough renovation and looks fine, in its summer array of window boxes.

O. W. Frese says the Chicago Flower Growers' Association has completed the work on its new store until such time as florists' supplies are added to the stock.

C. M. Dickinson is again at his desk at E. H. Hunt's after an outing with his family at Pelican Lake.

Frank Banning, Kinsman, O., is shipping cut spikes of Gladiolus Niagara, cream yellow, to the A. L. Randall Co., where Frank Johnson says it is realizing higher prices than the buyers will pay for any other variety.

Joe Beaver has returned from a vacation at Put-in Bay and is in charge of the A. I. Simmons store for ten days, while Mr. and Mrs. Simmons are away.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has finished the new ranges of houses that constitute this years' addition and all are planted, except four houses that are to be in sweet peas in solid beds. Benching of carnations in the older houses is being completed this week.

Max Awizzus, who has charge of the Killarney department for the E. C. Amling Co., has returned from a trip east. Ed Schultz is away this week.

Mr. Beaumont, of Friedman's, is on vacation, O. J. having returned.

A. Henderson & Co. received their Formosa lily bulbs August 11 and are busy filling advance orders.

Sam Pearce went to the convention via the Pennsylvania Limited, accompanied by the head gardener at Lincoln park. They started August 11, to have a few days in New York before the opening at Baltimore.

Your Fall Trade

will soon begin in earnest, and unless you have your supplies ready in advance you may find that you are badly in need of some article that isn't in stock. Look to your supply of baskets. Is it complete? Aren't there a few styles missing that you would like to have? Your plants and cut flowers may be far superior to any others in town, but unless they are set off with the proper accessories the sales are apt to be unsatisfactory. It's really surprising what a big difference an artistic basket makes. Try it this year—we have baskets in all sizes, brought direct from our own factories in Germany, and can supply

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Various Notes.

Practically all the florists in Washington dropped their various tasks August 15 and took a special car to Baltimore, wearing badges to designate their affiliation with the business. They numbered some eighty or more. At Baltimore the program was for the local florists to meet and escort them to the convention hall.

It is hoped by the Washingtonians that they will have the privilege of entertaining a large number of the visitors to Baltimore. They will try to make such visitors feel that this is a good place to come to, and that it would be good to come again.

Trade, the retailers say, is quite satisfactory for this time of year. At Gude's, which is a sort of floral thermometer, there is no complaint. In fact, Mr. Gude says that for the first time in his twenty years' experience here, there were three weddings August 2, and he would like to see the record broken many times in the future. He also finds it unprecedented for a debutante to make her bow to society as early as August 18, which is to happen at White Sulphur Springs. This is another precedent which the florists to a man will approve of. Although the florists are not complaining, it is noted that many of them find time to go to the ball games, and the secretary of the Washington Florists' Club, O. A. C. Oehmler, has taken a month's vacation and with his family is enjoying the salty breezes at his cottage, Duquesne, at Colonial Beach.

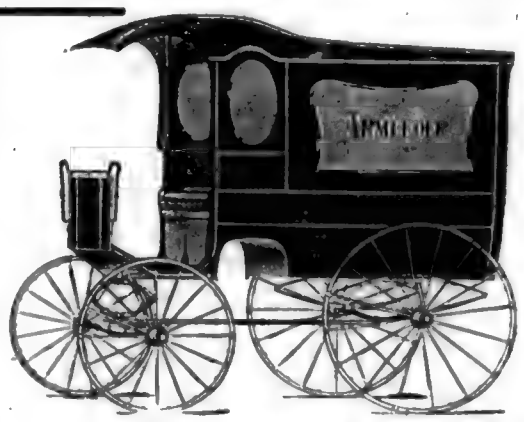
The single-stem aster is proving popular and, as a substitute for the chrysanthemum, is seemingly a great success. Stock is decidedly improving and the florists look more cheerful when they receive orders, for it is less difficult to fill them to the satisfaction of their customers.



Hydrangeas are beginning to make their appearance plentifully. The first cuttings were welcomed as a desirable addition to the rather scanty stock. They are especially useful in funeral work.

The Florists' Exchange is receiving the first new carnations. They come from Maryland and are meeting with a ready sale. Asters are extra fine. They are bringing up to $2 a hundred for the longest stems. Dahlias are not showing up well as yet, but they will be in better form every week up to September, when they should be in full perfection. They are quoted at 75 cents to $1. Roses are in good supply. Kaiserins and Carnots are fine and are selling at $3 to $5. Killarneys and Marylands are fairly good, going at PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Business is flatter than at any time this summer. While the supply of good flowers is light, there is not enough demand to take them every day. Some days they go; some days they go not. The poor flowers are more numerous and more difficult to market. The aster crop has been damaged by rain and sun. Few good asters are arriving. Some fine branching ones brought $5 per hundred—an extraordinary price. Mrs. Francis King, the finest gladiolus today, has brought $8 per hundred. The ordinary garden sorts of asters and gladioli can be had at low prices. Cattleyas are almost out of the market. A hail storm in the sweet pea district cut off the supply August 10, 11 and 12. The supply gradually increased on the following days. Eastern Beauties are the best roses. Easter lilies are the best value in white decorative flowers. A few dahlias have come.

Norwood.

It is probable that Robert Craig has more friends among the florists than almost any other man in Philadelphia. I do not mean by this merely more acquaintances or business friends, but more real friends—friends who would go to any length for him. The reason is plain; the kindnesses that Robert Craig has shown to those who needed his help are legion—kindnesses that no one but he could have rendered, because of his large knowledge of matters floricultural and his broad view. For this reason there will be widespread interest in just what he and his sons are doing at Norwood, their new place in Delaware county. It is generally known that the march of building improvements will soon reach Forty-ninth and Market streets, so that Norwood is destined to become the future home of the Robert Craig Co.; until the entire place is centered there, Norwood is being used as a trial ground under glass. Specialties are being grown in a way they have never before been grown in this country, probably in the world.

There are now five houses at Norwood. Four of them, the original plant, are 28x300 each; the fifth, finished last March, is 21x300. To these will be added, in a few weeks, four houses, each 44x150.

The features of Norwood today are the crotons, the dracænas and the ferns. The crotons are the most wonderful sight of their kind I have ever seen. There are said to be 30,000 of them, highly colored, in large and medium sizes. They cover a variety in form, shape and color that must suggest unknown possibilities to the floral artists. Some fifteen of the standard varieties are grown in quantity, so that 500 or more of each of these named varieties forms a stock not easily exhausted. Then there are the seedlings, the result of an accidental check to some stock plants at Norwood, when the heat was late the first fall, an accident of which William P. Craig promptly took advantage; the little camel's-hair fertilizing brush went from flower to flower, and today there are those thousand and one seedlings, so delightful to the heart of every true lover of crotons. It is absorbingly interesting to note their differences, their habits, their characteristics, to argue over their strong and weak points and to select the most beautiful, only to change once or twice before making that selection final.

Turning reluctantly from the seedlings back to the standard varieties,

Le Compte, with its distinct markings of green and gold, appears in quantity to me unknown; Edwin Lonsdale, with its magnificent coloring of every shade of red, commands deep admiration.

The dracænas have given great results this season, 7,000 from one propagation, all safely potted now, with trifling loss. Terminalis is the principal variety, with Lord Wolseley leader in the second division, followed by Mandaiana and some more, whose names escaped me. The success of the dracæna propagation has been remarkable, due, William P. Craig informed me, to intense culture of fresh canes. Dracænas in older stages were a fine sight, an immense number in 4-inch and 5-inch, ranging from eighteen inches high in the former to twenty-seven inches in the latter, above the pot, each size as even as a well kept lawn. Color, the final goal in perfect dracæna culture, must not be reached until growth is complete, for color is arrested growth.

The ferns come next in importance among the Norwood specialties. There are two immense blocks, one of Nephrolepis Scottii, the other of Nephrolepis elegantissima improved, representing the plain and crested types. Many of these ferns are growing in the standard medium size, 6-inch, giving promise of fine stock in no time. Most interesting was the propagating bench of each from which runners have been secured, now full to overflowing, suggestive of lots and lots of work in dividing and potting and growing.

There are other varieties of ferns, specimens of Grandpapa Boston among them. The list under glass is completed by a thrifty block of Areca lutescens that have grown and are growing with a vigor and rapidity convincing of the advantages of life at Norwood.

Outside are rows of American Pillar rose, showing magnificent growth; Juniata, the new Walsh seedling, and many more that have earned the growers' confidence.

There can be no doubt that the plants in the houses at Norwood prove that a higher level has been reached in cultivation. Robert A. Craig says this is due to improved conditions; modesty prevents his adding that this is also due to improved methods. Those who control the destinies of the place have courage and skill that are reflected in their work.

Those who have known William P. Craig as an irresistible precentor of choice products will be interested to know that he is quite as much in his element at Norwood, dressed in regulation greenhouse costume of a sleeveless garment that may be dignified by the name of Jersey, whose merit consists in its brevity, delightful where gentle bottom heat is given in August. Dressed, I say, in a sleeveless Jersey, most conducive to admiration of manly beauty, he descants in glowing terms on the merits of the Skinner system of irrigation for indoor culture, the reasonableness of the boiler just purchased and the individual drinking cups ranged by the new shower before Governor Wilson advocated their use.

THE MICHELL OUTING.

The Henry F. Michell Co. gave its employees and friends the first annual outing and athletic meet on Saturday, August 12. Four special trolley cars were engaged to convey the party to the Evergreen Gardens, at Andalusia, Pa., where the outing was held. Upon arriving at the gardens the official photographs were taken, after which the entire party of over 200 marched to the flag pole to take part in the flag-raising, and with uncovered heads sang the national anthem.

Athletic contests were next on the list. Young and old men and the women took part. Much amusement was afforded by the various races and other contests.

To end the sports, a baseball game was played by the representative teams of Henry A. Dreer and Henry F. Michell. This was the most exciting part of the day's program. The game was nip and tuck up to the seventh inning, when the Michell boys got in their usual batting rally and scored nine runs in one inning, making it a walk-over of the easiest kind, the final score being 19 to 2. The score by innings was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9—	R	H	E
Dreer	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	0—	2	3	2
Michell	1	0	1	0	1	2	9	5	0—	19	21	1

The umpires were Messrs. Roth and Bettz.

After the game refreshments were served on the lawn, and, needless to say, everybody did justice to the "eats." Then, to wind up the festivities, the young people enjoyed themselves at the dance, which was given in the spacious new building which will be used as a storehouse this fall. At eight o'clock the outing was brought to a close and all went home extremely tired and well satisfied that they had had the time of their lives.

The Michell ball team has one open date this season, which is September 4, and would like to arrange a game with one of the out-of-town seed houses, preferably in New York or Boston, for the inter-city seed championship.

MICHELL'S LILIES

PERHAPS in no other branch of our business have we been quite so successful in establishing an invincible reputation for "DISTINCTIVE" QUALITY goods. MICHELL'S LILIES are sought by growers from the Atlantic to the Pacific, intuitively and without solicitation, because no argument in the world could convince them that there are better ones in the market. The kind of publicity that we are aiming for, and which we esteem most highly, is not the one gained through paid advertising space in journals, but by supplying "REAL QUALITY" to reach the good will of the grower and incidentally his recommendation for our lilies.

LILIUM HARRISII

Our stock of these lilies was received only a few days ago and is without doubt superb in appearance. Not for ten years back have we seen such splendid-looking bulbs. A limited quantity of each size to spare. Sizes: 5 to 7, 6 to 7, 7 to 9 and 9 to 11. Write for special quotation today and state quantity desired.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

Hot weather prevailed during the greater part of the first half of August and there was rain enough to keep vegetation moist, so flowers of all kinds are at their best at present, with the exception of roses, which are always affected by the heat. Beauties seem to have been put out of commission entirely, for they are scarce here and bring a big price. My Maryland and Radiance stand up best under the trying weather; however, Radiance is the better of the two, for it remains in bud longer and Maryland is wide open and falling in a few hours. Kaiserin Augusta is exceptionally fine at present and is our only white or cream rose to be depended upon. Summer trade has gone wild over the Ward rose, for the summer crop consists of small buds of good color and fairly good stem. The size and color of the rose is so unusual that it sells much better than Killarney or Richmond. Then, too, it is a comparatively new rose. Bride and Bridesmaid are defunct. Killarney and Richmond are poor, indeed.

Gladioli are at the height of perfection in pink, red, salmon, lavender and white, but the pure white is superbly handsome and commands a big price. The superabundant supply of asters reminds us that fall is approaching and that the fall flowers have come to stay for a few months at least, for here in Rochester asters usually last from August 1 to December 1, and are of unfailing resourcefulness in design work, etc. Sweet peas have been unsatisfactory all through the summer and now they are getting scarcer right along and poorer in quality. There are no carnations to speak of. Orchids are worse than scarce and we are obliged to send to New York or Philadelphia for them. Needless to say, they are expensive. Valley is still coming into the market in fine shape and the wholesale price is $4 per hundred. Lilium speciosum is plentiful and is used a great deal in funeral work.

New arrivals in garden flowers are euphorbia, statice and boltonia, also Hydrangea paniculata, which is effective where long-stemmed flowers are desired. All garden flowers are still in great demand. As fall comes on there is a demand for Boston ferns and palms and local florists are selling quite a number of them. Gloxinias are better than ever and are having quite a run. Trade has been much better than it was at the previous writing, but the greater part of the work was on funeral orders, with a few weddings of little consequence.

Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are plentiful, also adiantum.

Zanesville, O., was received by J. B. Keller's Sons last week.

John Vollmer begins a two weeks' vacation this week.

H. E. Wilson has had the interior of his store made fresh and clean by several coats of white enamel. He has put in new cases and shelving and also new plant racks. Mr. Wilson recently put in a fine registering clock for the clerks, in order to get a more accurate account of their arrival and departure. Several days last week they were desperately busy with funeral work, having to work until late at night.

R. E. Hall, of Reed & Keller, New York City, called on Rochester trade last week.

Jacob Thomann is growing some splendid pure white gladioli of great beauty, which are bringing him a big price.

The cascade with rocks, gravel walks, ponds with goldfish in them, miniature canoes and dwarf shrubbery in Keller's window on North Clinton avenue is drawing crowds, who stand and stare at the cool and refreshing scene during the hot weather.

Several houses are finished, with the exception of putting in the benches, at the Lamberton memorial conservatory. The entire conservatory will be completed in about three weeks.

George J. Keller is in Canada on a fishing trip.

Miss Margaret Howe left August 14 for a two weeks' stay in the Adirondacks.

After much planning and hustling to get a large delegation for the florists' convention in Baltimore, there are but three men in attendance, George B. Hart, Al Vick and W. L. Keller—not a specially good showing for the Flower City.

The latter part of August J. M. Keller will go to the Muskoka Lakes, Canada, to fish.

We have been expecting a florists' picnic this summer, but no plans have been made as yet. Perhaps it will materialize after the convention.

H. & D. FLORISTS' BOX

Universally used for shipping cut flowers and designs. The dead-air cells form a perfect non-conductor of heat and cold, thus preserving contents much longer than ordinary wood box.

H. & D. Florists' Box can be used several times. Is much lighter than the ordinary box, thus saving in express charges.

BOSTON NOTES.

been secured. Mr. Cohen has been a flower salesman for twenty-two years and has the respect of everyone who knows him.

B. J. McGinty, for William R. Morris, of Wellesley Hills, is handling some excellent Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond roses. Mr. Morris has this season added a large new house for roses, which he grows well.

At Galvin's Tremont street store, August 12, one window contained an attractively arranged tank of aquatics, with large vases of splendid gladioli interspersed and with foliage plants as a background. Another window was devoted to palms, ferns and miscellaneous foliage plants.

William H. Carr, at the Boston Flower Exchange, is handling asters in quantity from W. F. Eaton, of Haverhill, also good Asparagus Sprengeri. Mr. Carr has just returned from a pleasant trip to Montreal, where he thinks New England growers would find an excellent market for much of their produce.

Henry M. Robinson is enjoying a hard earned vacation in Canada. No members of the firm were able to attend the S. A. F. convention.

Crotons and gladioli made a good window feature at Julius H. Zinn's, on Park street, last week.

William Sim has thrown the tomatoes out of several of his large houses, preparatory to filling with sweet peas and violets. His large acreage of sweet corn brought excellent prices and is being followed by a crop of string beans.

J. J. Casey, of the Rosary, on Clarendon street, will relocate on Boylston street this fall, in an up-to-date store.

At all the seed stores early bulbs have been received in quantity. The high price of timothy and other grass seeds is considerably unsettling business for fall seeding. Vacations have been enjoyed by the various staffs and nearly all are now back, ready for the fall campaign.

John J. Fee, of Jamaica Plain, is now one of the heaviest shippers of Lilium longiflorum. Mann Bros., of Randolph, also have these, as well as auratums and speciosums, in quantity.

The J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., of Auburn, R. I., have large daily shipments of Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond and My Maryland roses at the Boston Flower Exchange. The quality, for August, is good. This firm has a fine double white sport of Killarney, which will be heard from later.

M. L. Tirrell, of Randolph, is one of the few growers who are able to pick fine sweet peas with excellent stems still.

William R. Nicholson reports cutworms as working some damage among chrysanthemums under glass and, from the unusual number in the soil still, expects some trouble from them this winter.

Peter M. Miller spent a few days in Lenox last week. This week he is enjoying the ocean breezes at Bar Harbor, Me. W. N. Craig.

Titusville, Pa. — Lee J. Rowe has leased a building on West Spring street and will open a downtown store there about September 1, to be operated in connection with his greenhouses in the east end of town. He will build a greenhouse at the rear of the store.

Murphysboro, Ill.—Claude Wisely has installed an irrigating system in his greenhouses. He has also been putting in new steam pipes and making other improvements.

This is The Florists' Manual

By William Scott

SECOND EDITION

THOROUGHLY REVISED AND BROUGHT UP TO DATE

NO SCIENCE, BUT LOTS OF PRACTICAL COMMON SENSE

"I have several times been consulted by those who would make a beginning in the Florists' business. In each case I have said that the first step is to subscribe for a Trade Paper, and the next to procure a copy of the Florists' Manual." —J. A. VALENTINE, Pres. Park Floral Co., Denver, Colo.

"Find enclosed $5 for the Florists' Manual, by William Scott. It is the best book of the age on commercial floriculture and should be in the home of every gardener."—CONRAD FORBACH, Buffalo, N. Y.

No dry-as-dust botanical classifications, but tells you just how to produce marketable plants and cut flowers in the best and cheapest way.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; First Vice-Pres., M. H. Duryea, New York City; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

SWEET peas undeniably are a light crop, but everybody will be able to get some.

THE first car of the 1911 crop of Formosa lily bulbs, via Yokohoma and Seattle, reached Chicago August 11.

HOWARD M. EARL, of Philadelphia, was in Chicago Monday on his way home from the Burpee Seed Farm, Lompoc, Cal.

THE La Provence, which arrived at New York August 5, brought forty-five baskets of French bulbs shipped via Havre, consigned to O. G. Hempstead & Co.

SOME of the French bulbs held up by quarantine in Italy arrived at New York August 10, only to meet a fresh embargo, for the health authorities are keen on the cholera scare.

To seedsmen the most interesting feature of this week's S. A. F. convention at Baltimore was the demonstration of seed testing in the exhibition hall, by J. Bolgiano & Son. It is said that Bolgiano has the most complete equipment for testing purity to be found in the United States, outside the Department of Agriculture.

HARRISII BULBS.

The boat from Bermuda which arrived at New York August 7 brought the following consignments of bulbs:

Consignee.	Cases.
Bart, W. D.	5
Crossmond, L. D.	2
Henderson, Peter & Co.	39
Pierson, F. R. Co.	186
Vaughan's Seed Store	17
Ward, R. M. & Co.	54
Wells, Fargo & Co.	13
Total	316

DUTCH BULBS.

Although a few cases of Dutch bulbs had previously reached New York, what was practically the first shipment for the current season arrived August 8 on the Steamer Ryndam, consigned as follows:

Consingee.	Cases.
Van Embden, J.	23
Von Bourgondian, K., & Sons	5
Stumpp & Walter	6
Maltus & Ware	10
Boddington, A. T.	2

Hollister is the mail address, the ranch is really in the San Juan valley. Nearby is the sleepy town where stands the old mission of San Juan Bautista and the fine old adobe residence built by General Castro in the days when California was a province of Mexico.

C. C. Morse & Co. are now established on their great new seed farm in the San Juan valley near Hollister, Cal. Here they have 900 acres in one piece, as level as a floor and having a frontage of two miles on the county road. This is to be the "home farm," and though operations were started only last September, a large number of buildings have been completed, including offices, warehouses, roomy and comfortable quarters for the large force of men employed, barns for the hundred head of horses, blacksmith shop, garage and a village of other buildings, including a fine residence for Superintendent Landrum. The harvest of the seed crops promises to be a good average, aside from sweet peas, which are not up to the mark. An interesting sight here is a block of 130 acres of radish, nearly all Long Scarlet. A few miles away the firm has 450 acres more in the various staples, all in good shape. They still hold 650 acres at Gilroy, but that point is no longer headquarters.

The Kimberlin Seed Co., with headquarters at Santa Clara, Cal., has a total of 650 acres in seed crops this season, of which 470 acres are near Milpitas. The larger portion of this acreage is in onions and it presents a fine appearance. It has been well cultivated and the growth has been strong and vigorous. The remainder is mainly in lettuce, which promises a good yield, with the exception of Big Boston, in which there has been some loss from blight. The Kimberlins are well satisfied with the crop results this year, in view of the unfavorable conditions last spring. Though the father of the present members of the firm was one of the pioneer seed growers in the Santa Clara section, they now have no holdings near their home town. It is not exhaustion of soil that has driven them away, but the fact that the wild morning-glory has become such a pest there. This weed does not start growth until late in

NEW NASTURTIUMS

We are still adding new and distinct types to our Gorgeous Nasturtium List. You should by all means have the New Scarlet Geranium Leaf Nasturtium, beautiful as a flower and pronounced by an expert as one of the finest salad plants, the leaves being three to four times as thick as the ordinary Nasturtium and exceedingly mild in taste.

Burning Bush, its blooms a mass of fire; most striking. Other desirable varieties:

GOLDEN FOLIAGE TYPE.

A striking and most desirable type for bedding and potting.

Golden Rose, flower a true rose color.
Golden Pearl, flower a deep pearl.
Golden Blotched, flower mottled crimson on white and primrose ground.
Golden Midnight, flower darkest maroon.
Golden Mixed, containing all colors so far originated.

VARIEGATED FOLIAGE TYPE.

An exceedingly fine acquisition to the Nasturtium family.

Variegated Dwarf Orange, flower deep orange.
Variegated Dwarf Scarlet, flower deep scarlet.
Variegated Dwarf Crystal, flower primrose with maroon stripings.
Variegated Dwarf Lady Bird, yellow with blotched crimson.
Variegated Dwarf Queen, flower scarlet maroon.
Variegated Dwarf Mixed, all dwarf variegated colors mixed.
Variegated Tall or Trailing Scarlet, flower scarlet.
Variegated Tall or Trailing Croesus, primrose, striped with velvet crimson.
Variegated Tall or Trailing Salmon, flower salmon.
Variegated Tall or Trailing Crystal, flower primrose with maroon stripings.
Variegated Tall or Trailing Queen, flower scarlet maroon.
Variegated Tall or Trailing Orange, flower deep orange.
Variegated Tall or Trailing Mixed, all variegated-leaved mixed.

LILLIPUT TYPE.

The most dwarf of all dwarf Nasturtiums. Of compact growth and throwing the blooms in beautiful mass above the foliage, immensely fine for potting or bedding.

Lilliput Baby Rose, flower pure white ground, with deep rose markings; in Lilliputs, the most beautiful variety.
Lilliput Lady Cherry, an unusual, dark foliage, flower a deep rich cherry.
Lilliput Fairy King, flower ecru rose.
Lilliput Fairy Queen, flower light, with lavender markings.

IVY-LEAVED FOLIAGE TYPE.

A new and most desirable strain of the Nasturtium family. The leaves are of a delicate English ivy-leaved form, while the flowers are of a most delicate fringed formation.

Either for bedding or potting, a most desirable type.

Dwarf Ivy-leaved Othello, flower deepest maroon.
Dwarf Ivy-leaved Fairy, flowers primrose with purple lavender markings.
Dwarf Ivy-leaved Rose, flowers a light rose.
Dwarf Ivy-leaved Golden Butterfly, flowers a bright golden yellow.

the season, when the crops are too mature to be cultivated without injury, and it soon produces a mat of foliage that completely covers the ground. No satisfactory means of combating it have yet been discovered. Government experts are now at work endeavoring to discover some method of exterminating it or keeping it in check.

A most impressive sight was the Fair Oaks seed farm of the Braslan Seed Growers Co., San Jose, Cal., when the writer visited it August 2. The farm contains 850 acres and is some two miles long, the crops being mainly lettuce and onion. The land is perfectly level and the stand of lettuce was so uniform that the sweeping view gave somewhat the effect of a beautifully figured table cloth. Harvesting had already begun and though ninety hands were then in the field, the foreman was asking for forty more, as the seed was ripening so rapidly. To the writer crop results here seemed to be all that could possibly be desired, and the automobile ride through two miles of lettuce was an experience that will long be remembered. Several other farms of the Braslan Co. were visited, the acreage being largely onion for seed, and all promised a good average crop.

BULB AWARDS IN HOLLAND.

The following awards of merit were made at the recent meetings of the floral committee of the General Bulb Growers' Society of Haarlem:

Leucanthemum maximum excelsum, with pure white flowers of an extraordinary size, raised from seed, G. Leestraton & Sons, Oegstgeest.

Gladiolus Electra, new variety raised from seed, with brilliant vermilion flowers, size, form and color extra, P. Hopman & Sons, Hillegom.

Gladiolus Hohenzollern, new variety, raised from seed, flowers rosy salmon, spotted reddish brown, J. Barth Bos, Overveen.

Gladiolus nanceianus Willy Wigman, new variety, flowers rosy white, spotted purple, G. Leestraton & Sons.

Gladiolus Meteor, new variety, raised from seed, flowers scarlet shaded brownish red, form and color extra, J. Barth Bos.

Gladiolus nanceianus Golden West, new variety, originally from California, raised from seed, flowers orange brilliant spotted carmine, N. Dames, Lisse.

Gladiolus Gandavensis Ivorine, flowers creamy yellow, G. Leestraten & Sons.

Phlox decussata Asia, new variety, raised from seed, flowers orange shaded carmine, the truss is of an extraordinary size, C. G. Van Tubergen, Jr., Haarlem.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Business until two weeks ago was quite encouraging and a better trade could not be wished for. This, perhaps, was due to a scarcity of stock, there being until that time practically no outdoor stock, owing to the fact that the weather man had not favored us with much rain. Since then, however, the much needed rain has come, bringing in great quantities of outdoor stock, such as asters, gladioli, etc., which were only waiting for a little encouragement. This made the supply more than abundant; consequently prices were cut away down, and much of the stock found its way to the ash barrel.

The oversupply of outdoor stock more than killed the market for the indoor varieties. Rose crops are heavy in all varieties and stock is exceptionally good for the season. Few carnations from old stock are seen, but some good flowers are coming from the young plants and bring a good price.

Auratum and Melpomene lilies are abundant and while there is a good demand for them, still the supply is excessive. Giganteums are also of good quantity and the market for them is slow.

Various Notes.

The Miami Floral Co. is cutting some heavy crops of good roses in all varieties, but finds the market dull. Rather than give the ash barrel the benefit of the surplus, the company is sending large quantities to the hospitals and other places where they will do some good, thus giving many who have few flowers a chance to enjoy them.

Many of our local expressmen are seen wearing white duck caps bearing the inscription, "Matthews, the Florist."

Word has been received from Mr. and Mrs. George Bartholomew, who left for England July 17, that they arrived in Liverpool all O. K., their boat being two days late in landing, due to rough and icy seas. They intend to travel extensively through England, their trip covering most places of interest, and at the time they wrote they were taking in the sights of London and having a jolly good time.

M. Anderson has been on the sick list for the last week. Aside from his flower establishment, he has bought a restaurant in town.

William Kiefaber, treasurer of the Miami Floral Co., left August 10, accompanied by his wife and two sons, for a two weeks' trip to Atlantic City and other eastern points.

Word comes from H. C. Hood that he is now manager of P. Haussmann's nursery at Los Angeles, Cal.

Warren G. Matthews and Harry Altic left August 3 for Cincinnati to join the Cincinnati and Chicago delegations to the convention.

Herbert Bartholomew and Roy Ewings, both of the Miami Floral Co., have equipped themselves with a steel duck boat, a small tent and cooking utensils and intend to "paddle their own canoe" about September 1, when they will start on a trip down the Miami river to the Ohio river and from there to the Mississippi and down that stream until they get tired. They will then return to Dayton by rail and ship their outfit.

Mrs. B. Hendrichs has been out camping with friends at Shiloh, O., for the last two weeks. Arno Hendrichs left last week on a two weeks' vacation, in which he will visit Niagara Falls, White Haven and points of interest in Canada.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There has been no change for the better during the last week in the wholesale cut flower market. The continued drought has added to the general depression and abundant rain is badly needed, all the outdoor flowers depreciating daily in quality, asters especially being far below normal. The gladioli and carnations have also retrograded. Asters and gladioli are coming in a greater flood than ever before, and the retail market utterly refuses to digest them. Cellars are full of them and there seems to be no let-up in the daily shipments.

Cosmos is arriving. Next come the dahlias and goldenrod. Hydrangea paniculata is already abundant, and another week or two will see the new roses and carnations in evidence again. There are few good carnations arriving; $1 seems to be the high water mark at present and only a few tea roses go above the uniform rate of $3 per hundred for selected stock. Ten per cent of the asters are superb. These sell fairly well on arrival, but ninety per cent are mediocre and hardly salable at any price. The orchid supply is not overabundant and prices are steady at the quotations recorded. Lilies fell to 3 cents last week and were hard to clear out, even at this low rate. Valley did not rise above $2 per hundred.

The hot wave ushered in convention week a year ago. We are praying history may not repeat itself. If the temperature at Baltimore is anything like the hearts and the welcome of the sunny south, there will be a hot time in the Monumental City. As compared with the prices of cut flowers a year ago, it is interesting to note that roses' top was 3 cents, carnations were $10 per thousand and lilies $25 per thousand.

New York to Baltimore.

It was noon and warm enough for comfort when a jolly crowd, numbering 136, boarded the New York Florists' Club's special train on the Baltimore & Ohio for the Baltimore convention. The Boston boys were on hand, thirty-five strong, including Mr. Farquhar. The special dinner was the best ever furnished to a florists' gathering, and it was four hours before the last of the inner men and women were satisfied. Every detail was perfect. Messrs. Young, Rickards and Weathered dispensed liquid nourishment in unlimited quantity, while Chairman Traendly saw that the ladies had fruit in abundance. The dining car was handsomely decorated with asters and gladioli.

With us were the veterans of the society, James Dean, John N. May, Louis Schmutz, John Birnie, George Saltford, J. K. Allen, John V. Phillips, F. R. Pierson and John G. Esler. The company included the handsomest ladies of the east in floricultural circles, among them several of our champion bowlers. I. L. Powell, the author of "Millbrook," and a party of five were on hand. The Canucks sent us Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Robinson from Montreal. Jersey City, Hoboken and Long Island did nobly in attendance.

Various Notes.

Lilium Harrisii

(THE BERMUDA EASTER LILY)

LET US SUPPLY YOUR WANTS IN LILIES THIS SEASON

We think we can make it to your advantage to do so, as regards both quality and price.

The stock that we offer is not gathered indiscriminately from all kinds of sources, but is grown for us by a few selected growers whose stocks have been worked up from the true, original stock. In order to insure the health of the product, the bulbs are not grown on the same field oftener than one season, other crops being grown on the field the preceding year. The ground is thoroughly manured when the previous crop is grown, leaving it in a high state of cultivation, and when the lily bulbs are planted no fresh manure is used; this prevents disease and insures a crop of strong, healthy bulbs.

In addition to this, we do not dig our bulbs as early as they are usually dug, but leave them in the ground until they are thoroughly ripened and matured. When Harrisii is good it leaves little to be desired. There is very little, if any, stock obtainable as good as the stock that we are offering. We are supplying only this one grade of selected stock and when this is disposed of we shall have no more to offer.

While the quality of the stock that we offer is of the highest, our prices are as low as, or lower than, the prices of those who offer the ordinary stock gathered from indiscriminate sources. We are sure buyers will find our stock very satisfactory, and much more so than the Japan-grown Longiflorum, which has badly deteriorated in recent years.

Bear in mind that we were the original introducers of Harrisii in Bermuda, and that we have exceptional facilities for obtaining our present supplies. Also take note that the smallest bulbs that we offer are 6-7 inch bulbs, not 5-7 inch, as usually offered.

6- 7 inch bulbs,	335 to the case,	$15.00 per case;	full thousand lots, $ 40.00 per 1000
7- 9 inch bulbs,	200 to the case,	16.00 per case;	full thousand lots, 75.00 per 1000
9-11 inch bulbs,	100 to the case,	18.00 per case;	full thousand lots, 175.00 per 1000

FERNS

We have an exceptionally nice lot of ferns in the following varieties– good, bushy, well-grown plants that will please the most critical buyers. Plants have been grown in pots and are thoroughly well established and nicely finished.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and Piersoni, 6-inch pots	$0.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Piersoni, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 8-inch plants	$1.00 to 1.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 10-inch plants	2.50 each

Giant-Flowering Cyclamen

For the last 15 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed bearing Cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers, that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize-winner. Received first and second prizes at the Toledo Florists' Club meeting early in November, when blooming Cyclamens were scarce. Seed of this, my own grown strain, in five separate colors, $1.00 per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $25.00 per 5000.

FLORISTS' REVIEW
When Writing Advertisers

The other day I visited a small town not far from New York to see what business might be done. I concluded to visit the oldest establishment first, and when I arrived there an old, disgruntled disbudder came out of the house cleaning his teeth via the vacuum method, said he had bought for twenty years from one house and calculated they were good enough for him; besides, he used Callas since the Harrisii had gone wrong. I asked him if any other florist in town grew bulbs, and he said there was only one other and he was a young snip who knew nothing about the business, and used no lilies that he knew of. So, of course, I knew the young fellow must be of some account, since the old man had belittled him. Sure enough, I found the young fellow up and busy. He had more business about him in a minute than the old man had in a day, and after a five-minute conversation he bought what he needed and went about his work. Before I left I asked him about the old man and was told that he was a reliable man, who bought some bulbs, and was advised to see him. I thought to myself, "What a difference in humanity and between the old and the young in business!" but said nothing. The old fellow is a throwback from the Black Ages—and will never amount to a row of pins. The Good Shepherd knows we don't want any Horseshoe Brand boxes around his back yard, but the younger man we want and we will keep his trade, for he is worthy of respect and business confidence.—Ward.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

The wholesale markets were all overcrowded every day last week. There are so many flowers coming in now and the retail business is so dull that not half of the stock is consumed by the local trade. All outdoor stock is looking much better than a week ago. Asters have been a big glut and all grades are going begging at even the low prices at which they are offered. Gladioli, also, are much too plentiful for the demand and are offered as low as $2 per hundred in thousand lots. Single tuberose stalks are coming in now in large consignments from the Kirkwood growers; $2 in hundred lots is all they brought last week.

Carnations are coming in more freely, but there is nothing fancy as yet. There are plenty of roses in all varieties to be had, including a great many fancy Beauties. In order to dispose of them, cheap prices prevail. Plenty of lilies, valley and a lot of outdoor stock help to crowd the market.

Club Meeting.

The St. Louis Florists' Club held its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, August 10, with only twenty-five in attendance, owing to the fact that most of the regulars are away on their vacation trips. President Connon was away on an eastern trip, so Vice-President Frank A. Weber presided in his usual happy manner. All the other officers were present, and the trustees reported the expenses of the recent picnic and were given a vote of thanks.

An invitation from the Chicago Florists' Club to meet with them at Chicago October 5 was read and accepted. W. C. Smith, R. J. Windler and J. J. Beneke have the trip in charge. Send in your name if you want to go. State Vice-President F. H. Weber of the S. A. F. was present, explaining to the members the trip to Baltimore, and was promised a good delegation. They left Monday night, August 14.

Winkler, of St. Louis, and Mathew Schoenberge, of Belleville, Ill., were presented.

A great deal of enthusiasm was displayed in the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Robert J. Windler, elected by unanimous vote; vice-president, Frank Vennemann, of Kirkwood; secretary, J. J. Beneke, re-elected; treasurer, W. C. Smith, re-elected. The fun began with the election of the trustees. Frank A. Weber was chosen for a three year term and W. C. Young for one year, after several ballots had been taken. The tellers were E. W. Guy and A. S. Halstead.

This interesting meeting came to a close after a good discussion on several questions from the box. The next meeting of the club will be held Thursday, September 14.

Various Notes.

Henry C. Ostertag, head of the firm of Ostertag Bros., was badly bitten by a dog last week. The doctor pronounced the injury serious, but at last reports Mr. Ostertag was much improved and hoped that by the first of this week he would be able to make a short trip north for a rest.

Paddy Paddon, of the W. C. Smith force, says he thought sleeping on the floor these hot nights possessed certain irresistible advantages. Following up the idea, he made a bed and laid himself down upon it, neglecting, however, to turn out the gas. The window being open, a breeze blew in and extinguished the flame and the blow almost killed Paddy.

A. T. Griesa, for the last eight years manager for the Tingley Seed Co., has resigned his position to take effect September 1, when he will depart for Omaha to take charge of the flower seed department of the Nebraska Seed Co.

Mr. Nichols, of the St. Louis Seed Co., with his family, is summering at the northern lakes. They are expected home about September 1. Mr. Rau, the other member of the firm, says they ex-

PACIFIC COAST.

Loon Lake, Wash.—A greenhouse is being erected for Dr. E. T. Hein, on his irrigated tract southeast of town.

Lawndale, Cal.—Speakman Bros. are erecting a rose house, 27x335, on their First street property. It is said to be one of the largest single greenhouses in the southwest.

Garfield, Wash.—Scott Bros., of the Roselawn Greenhouses, say that business has been scarcely as brisk as usual this summer, though crops have been fairly good. The weather has been dry, but not especially hot.

Tacoma, Wash.—L. Ghilarducci, a Pacific avenue florist, was recently fined $10 and costs for obstructing the alley in the rear of his establishment with a large bay tree. He stated in his defense that the tree was in the alley only a short time, while awaiting transportation to the rose show at the Armory. He appealed the case.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

August business opened up somewhat quietly, falling slightly behind July, which was up to expectations. There is no overabundance of flowers. Asters are about the choicest stock obtainable, but gladioli are also coming in nicely. Carnations, roses and sweet peas are declining rapidly. Stocks, helianthus and perennial phlox serve the purpose as novelty flowers. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow is coming in nicely, and while they receive unlimited comments, they are a little ahead of usefulness.

Various Notes.

Dan Cupid has depleted the office force at Clarke Bros.' store. Karl Gardner, the bookkeeper, and Miss Ethel Campbell, the stenographer, decided to spend their vacation and honeymoon together at Long Beach, Wash.

John J. Stuppy, of St. Joseph, Mo., stopped over a few days to call on friends in the trade.

Herbert & Fleishauer, of McMinnville, are shipping some choice asters. A Crego sport in the white seems to be of unusual merit. E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Business, although not as brisk as one would like, shows a somewhat brighter aspect, and with the returning of most of the townspeople from the rural districts prospects are much better. The best quality flowers have advanced somewhat in price and with the continued cool weather stock generally is in good shape. Carnations in many instances are rather short-stemmed, but this condition will be remedied in a short while. Asters are now in their glory and while not produced in as large quantities as in former years, there are quite enough for all purposes and some to spare.

Outside flowers are moving slowly and never have they been in larger or better supply. Even the finest dahlias and gladioli, that sold so well last season, are not bought up as well as they deserve. Japanese lilies are at their height at this time and can only be said to be in fair demand.

Funeral orders are not overplentiful, and as there is such an abundance of colored stock there is a glut of almost everything.

Various Notes.

James Bell, for several years in the gardening trade in Portland, Ore., is in town.

The Leedham Bulb Co. has just completed a greenhouse, 25x100, at its place at Santa Cruz, Cal.

The directors of the California State Florists' Society held their regular meeting at Redmen hall, August 11.

George Forsyth, a well known gardener of this city who has long been foreman of La Fayette park, shot and dangerously wounded Mrs. Fred A. Decker at her home on Lyon street. Afterwards he turned the revolver on

Climbing White Maman Cochet

The most valuable acquisition to our Climbing White Roses in the past few years is Climbing White Maman Cochet. Identical with the older variety in size, form and color, it has further proven to be one of the most profuse and continuous bloomers, strongest growers, of clean habit, glossy foliage and the flowers are borne on long, stiff, straight stems. These excellent points together with its freedom from mildew make it one of the most noteworthy additions to that class of Roses of which there is never a surplus—Hardy, White, Everblooming Climbers.

With practically 50 years' experience and in that time having handled millions of Roses, we are always careful in recommending new varieties, but we have no hesitancy in emphasizing everything we claim for Climbing White Maman Cochet.

We offer a limited stock of hardy field grown plants that will be ready January 1, 1912, at $1.00 each; $9.00 per dozen. Orders filled strictly in rotation.

himself and committed suicide, dying instantly. It is probable that the woman will recover. G.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade is rather quiet as a rule, but some days there is quite a demand for funerals. Stock has been more plentiful in the last week, and roses have improved considerably in quality and quantity. White and Pink Killarney head the list, but there are quite a few good Brides and Maids coming in, and they are quite a relief, as Killarney pops open in a few hours and does not give the satisfaction generally obtained from Brides and Maids.

There are quite a few carnations still coming in from old stock and some have been of excellent quality; almost as good as winter stock. Enchantress is coming in from new stock, but is mostly short-stemmed; however, the quality is fine and before another week rolls around we will see good, fair-stemmed stock on the market. A few sweet peas are seen, but the quality is poor and the demand light.

Asters have improved but little since the last writing and it looks as though we will have to fall back on the old standby, carnations, although some growers are expecting some good blooms on the late cuts. Lilies are quite plentiful now, both Easter and rubrum. Gladioli are still in good supply and are one of the best sellers. Potted ferns are moving well, but the supply here is running quite low.

Various Notes.

The Columbus Florists' Club held its regular meeting Tuesday evening, August 8. On Saturday, August 12, the same club enjoyed an outing at Heimendale Grove. They had an auto parade and a band in a large truck decorated with palms, cedars, etc. The nine autos in the parade were also decorated with cut flowers and greens.

Mrs. E. M. Kraus has retired from the Riverside Floral Co. Ill health was the cause of the change, and the other members bought her interest and will continue the business. Robert Speers has accepted a position in the store and will look after that end of it.

The Columbus Floral Co. is still cutting some excellent carnations from old stock, but will soon replant.

Leo Miller is also cutting carnations from old stock and the quality is fine.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is getting some good carnations from the new plants, and although the stems are rather short, the quality is fine for this time.

Miss Jessie Watts, for several years with the Livingston Seed Co., in the flower department, resigned her position August 1, to enter into the bans of wedlock. The ceremony will be performed the latter part of August.

William Graff is in Chicago for a week or so, on business and pleasure bent. J. M.

Troy, N. Y.—Checks covering the first dividend, twenty per cent, have been mailed by the trustee in the matter of Josiah L. Young, bankrupt.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston, June, 1912.

Of the peonies, Mme. Forel, clear rose pink, is in special demand.

The Texas Nurserymen's Association will hold its annual meeting in September at Waco, Tex. The exact date is to be announced later.

The peony specialists are hoping for some good rains, to put the soil in condition for digging early in September. Most of them have had a dry season.

W. P. Stark, ex-president of the American Association of Nurserymen, says that apples this year will be more plentiful, of better quality and lower price than they have been for several years.

The peony experts are dropping Richardson's Rubra Superba from their lists of varieties. In spite of its splendid bloom and its lateness, it is too shy and unreliable to be recommended.

PARK SUPERINTENDENTS MEET.

The thirteenth annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents was held at Kansas City, Mo., August 8 to 10, and was pronounced one of the most successful meetings the association has yet held. The opening session was held at the offices of the Kansas City Board of Park Commissioners, where Mayor Darius A. Brown and Henry D. Ashley, member of the Board of Park Commissioners, extended the visitors a cordial welcome to the city. Vice-president Charles E. Keith, of Bridgeport, Conn., presided, in the absence of President Wm. J. Zartmann, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Keith referred sympathetically to the absence of W. H. Dunn, general superintendent of the Kansas City parks, and a vice-president of the organization, who was detained at home by sickness. President Zartmann's annual address was read by J. B. Shea, of Boston, Mass.

Secretary-treasurer F. L. Mulford reported that the membership, including active, honorary, associate and special members, was 134, to which a number were added during the Kansas City meeting.

Boston was chosen for the 1912 meeting, with several invitations already entered for 1913 and 1914. The opinion seems to prevail that the meetings should alternate between the east and west.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President—W. H. Dunn, Kansas City, Mo. Vice-presidents—C. E. Keith, Bridgeport, Conn.; J. B. Shea, Boston, Mass.; F. C. Green, Providence, R. I.; J. W. Thompson, Seattle, Wash.; W. R. Adams, Omaha, Neb.; G. Champion, Winnipeg, Man. Secretary-treasurer—F. L. Mulford, Washington, D. C.

HOLLAND NOTES.

The total surface around Naarden devoted to nurseries contains over 100 hectares (about 247 acres). The Society of Nurserymen has thirty-six members.

Mr. Smit, of the firm of Smit & Co., Naarden, returned last week from his annual business trip through America. This firm exported last season 1,200 boxes of nursery stock to the United States. In the export season there is a special boat for transporting nursery stock to Rotterdam.

Nearly all seeds will be high in price next season.

Round spinach growing crop is handling at present at good price, and rising. Prickly is in lower demand. Chervil, extra big prices with great demand and rise sharply; undoubtedly it will come over 200 francs per hundred kilos. Turnips rising. French growers quote big prices. Rape seed, new crop on the market, quality not dry, price 18 shillings 3 pence per hectolitre, or 2⅝ bushels.—Horticultural Advertiser.

Established 1850.

PITTSBURG, PA.

The Market.

Business conditions have changed slightly since last week's report. The demand at this writing, August 14, is equal to the supply, but prices remain nearly the same.

Asters, which have been so plentiful the last two weeks, are now rather scarce and few really good ones are arriving, due to the fact that the early varieties are just about over and the late ones not quite ready to cut.

America gladioli are apparently grown by every florist in quantity. Every one of the out-of-town florists grows enough for his own use, and the larger city retail establishments plant quantities of this variety with the other pleasing shades. This leaves the commission houses with only a limited territory to supply on this, one of the best and most satisfactory summer blooms.

Carnations are seen at the wholesale places; some really good white for so early in the season. Roses are good and are sold at reasonable prices. A limited quantity of Melody and Mrs. Ward, good quality, are arriving. One of our large growers has taken up Bon Silene again and is now sending in a good supply of choice blooms of this pretty little rose. Beauties are not plentiful; there are not enough good blooms to fill the demand. Good Killarney and White Killarney, My Maryland and Richmond are offered in 500 lots at $1 per hundred.

Various Notes.

Charles Koenig, of Millvale, Pa., is sending the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. quantities of choice valley and giganteum lilies.

The Albert Lorch Floral Co., Allison Park, has about completed planting carnations; the plants are in good condition and should produce the usual fine stock for which this company has the reputation.

Work is progressing rapidly at Henry Meuschke & Sons' establishment at Castle Shannon, where many novelties in cut flowers are grown, with the usual new varieties of roses and carnations.

Paul Randolph is head over heels in work on his new range of plant houses, which Lord & Burnham are erecting for him near Verona, Pa. Mr. Randolph will devote most of his space to the growing of flowering and foliage plants.

The Florists' Club held its annual picnic at Keystone Park, Tuesday, August 8, and a delightful day was spent, with quite a fair sized attendance.

Baseball, dancing and cards were indulged in, and the committee is to be complimented for the successful arrangement and good time provided. The baseball game between the Growers and Wholesalers was won by the Growers; score 7 to 3. E. C. Ludwig was the donor of the prizes, which were imported disbudding knives, and, needless to say, they were appreciated. The game between the married and single men resulted in the single men walking away with the cash prize donated by De Forest Ludwig; score 14 to 1.

John Wyland has all his carnation plants housed and is devoting his attention now to the laying out of his farm into bungalow sites, which he is disposing of at profitable figures.

W. A. Clarke and family are spending their vacation at Chautauqua Lake, N. Y.

DENVER.

The Market.

There is little to say about the market. Some days there is plenty of stock, such as it is, and again there is a decided shortage. Carnations are scarce. The new plants are just beginning to bloom, and the flowers are few and of poor quality. Nearly all the tea roses are badly mildewed, some being worse than others. The aster crop has turned out better than was at first expected; some good early varieties are seen, and the prospect for a good crop of late sorts is bright. Gladioli are in fine condition and dahlias are good.

It is difficult to give a true report of business conditions. It is dull, of course; that is understood during August, but there have been one or two good days, when it has been impossible to buy enough stock to fill orders. On the day of Alfred Mueller's funeral there was not a flower of any kind for sale. Out-of-town orders for shipment that night had to be turned down, with regrets.

Apparently there are some who are not discouraged, and it is a delight to the eye to see how attractively some of the show windows are arranged. Quantities of new stock are used every day, and while it takes some grit and much capital, still it makes a good impression and can well be charged to advertising.

Various Notes.

Dreer's Specials in Palms For August

The high quality of our Palms is so well known to the trade that we do not feel it necessary to elaborate on same. Our stock this season is even more extensive than in previous years, a large part of our new nursery at Riverview, consisting of more than two and one-half acres of glass, now also being devoted to this class of stock. The quality is fully up to our established high standard.

ARECA LUTESCENS

A splendid lot of well-shaped plants, of good color.

2¼-in. pots, 3 plants in a pot	$0.85 per doz.;	$ 6.00 per 100;	$50.00 per 1000

GERANIUMS

We have no hesitation in claiming that our collection of Standard Varieties stands preëminent among such collections in the country. As far as only distinct and useful varieties are concerned, it is the result of the most careful selection from hundreds of varieties from the foremost European and American introducers, and comprises only those sorts which years of experience have taught us are the very best in their several different classes, and which can be depended on to produce the most satisfactory results, and which represent the highest Standard of development yet obtained in their special class or color.

In keeping our list up to this high standard, we are continually adding many of the newer introductions and discarding some of the old sorts, which have been favorites but are now superseded by others, which are more beautiful in form, greater in substance, more exquisite in color, more satisfactory in growth.

We have prepared to propagate these in large quantities, having added thousands of plants to our already large stock. If you can use them in large quantities, write us, and we may be able to make you a special price.

We are booking orders for DAHLIA AND CANNA Roots for Fall delivery.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business remains good considering the time of the year. Stock is plentiful at present; in fact, there is an overabundance of gladioli and asters. So far good asters have been few and far between, this being no doubt one reason so many remain unsold at the wholesale houses, as the demand for good asters has not been supplied.

Roses are quite plentiful and of good quality. A good supply of Beauties in different lengths are taking the place of red roses, the latter being quite scarce. Sweet peas are short of stem.

Various Notes.

Ernest Sullivan has just returned from a tour through New York state.

Indications are that begonias will be rather scarce on this market this season.

Robert Klagge, of Mount Clemens, and a staff of assistants, are busy planting thousands of bulbs.

J. Carey, of Mount Clemens, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rahaley, of Detroit, left Wednesday, August 16, for Atlantic City. Mr. Carey expected to spend some time at the S. A. F. convention.

When interviewed by the writer last week, August Von Boeselager, of the Bath City, was busy planting carnations. Many improvements have been made by Mr. Von Boeselager on his already most modern place, one being the forming of an immense cistern under the whole potting shed. Into this cistern empties all the rain water, which is then pumped into the watering pipes by a gas engine. Mr. Von Boeselager intends to have no trouble with sulphur in the water.

From present indications the supply of chrysanthemums from Mount Clemens this coming season will be the best ever. J. Carey has a bench of exceptionally fine October Frost, which will soon show color.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Scribner are attending the S. A. F. convention.

An heir to the throne arrived at the home of our president, George E. Browne, Tuesday, August 8. Both mother and child are doing well.

Fred Graessle, of Schroeter's, is away spending two weeks' vacation and, incidentally, several weeks' pay.

B. Schroeter's Buick delivery car, which has already covered over 15,000 miles, has been repainted and looks like new. H. S.

REMEMBER

Araucarias Are Our Specialty

We have them by the thousands—front, sides, back, everywhere.

Araucarias! Araucarias!! Araucarias!!!

Fresh and Green.

No one can beat us in this line.

WARNING.

DON'T BE DECEIVED! Now, as well as for the last 25 years, we hold the ground as leaders in the importing, growing and shipping of our specialty, the Araucaria.

The Home  of Araucarias.

ARAUCARIAS. 6000 just received from Antwerp, Belgium, more coming by next steamer. Araucaria Excelsa, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, palms, etc. Florists, you know we are leaders for the last 25 years in importing, growing and shipping this so well known evergreen decorative plant, the Araucaria, more in favor now than ever. Almost every florist knows our Araucarias, therefore no argument is needed for our goods. We know what our customers want and need, and have provided for them and set aside special specimen plants of the Spring Importation 1910. These specimen plants will stand the climate everywhere and are especially adapted for decorating lawns, porches, verandas, bungalows, private summer residences, hotels and boarding-houses at the seashore or elsewhere. Our prices are very low for fine stock.

Our so well-known Christmas Begonia Erfordii, a constant bloomer for the fall holidays, and during the whole winter is never without a flower; in light pink, pink, dark pink and turning gradually into a bright red (big trusses of flowers), 2½-in. pots, $5.00; 3-in., 8c; 4-in., 12c.

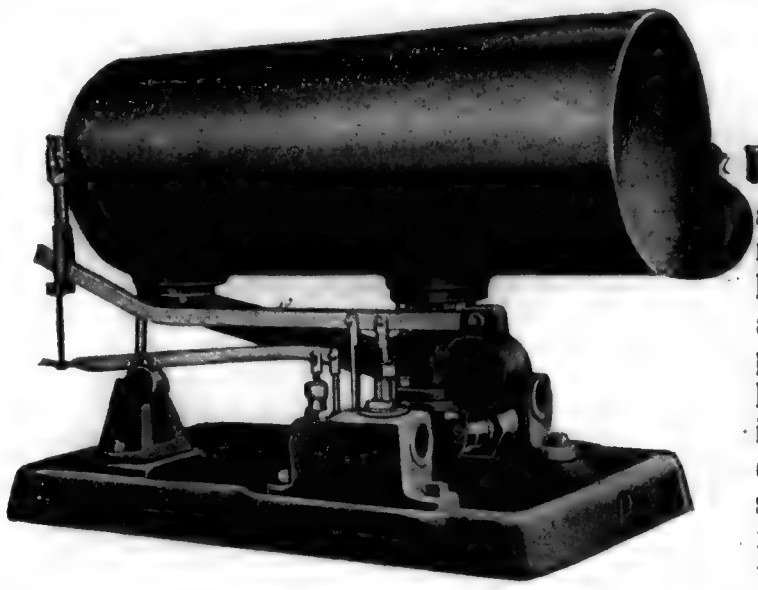
Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each article advertised in this department of The Review is good, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

RETURN PIPE UNDER WALK.



Kindly enlighten us as to the following: We have two houses, and, on account of soil conditions, are not able to sink the boiler below the ground level. We have a hot water heating system, with a Kroeschell boiler. We do not wish to run the return pipes across the walks at the boiler end of the houses at a height where they would interfere with walking through the houses, and we are in doubt whether it would be satisfactory to drop the return pipe to the ground and raise it again to get it into the boiler. W. R.

While it would be better to avoid the trap in the return pipe, yet if the system is run downhill to the point where the rise in the return is made, there should be no difficulty in securing a good circulation with the return dropping under the walk as described.

TWO IOWA HOUSES.

I am building two connected greenhouses, each 21x75. The houses run east and west, with the boiler house at the east end. The exposed sides of the houses are six feet high, with three feet of glass and board siding below. The west ends are exposed. I will grow carnations in the north house, and will use the south house for all kinds of pot plants, with some roses and palms. The boiler pit is five feet below the level of the ground and the ground slopes one foot to seventy-five feet toward the east. I will have two 5-foot benches in the middle and two 3-foot benches on the side in each house. Will you please tell me how much piping is needed and the proper way to put it in? The boiler is a tubular hot water boiler, nine feet long, fifty-two inches high and forty-two inches wide.

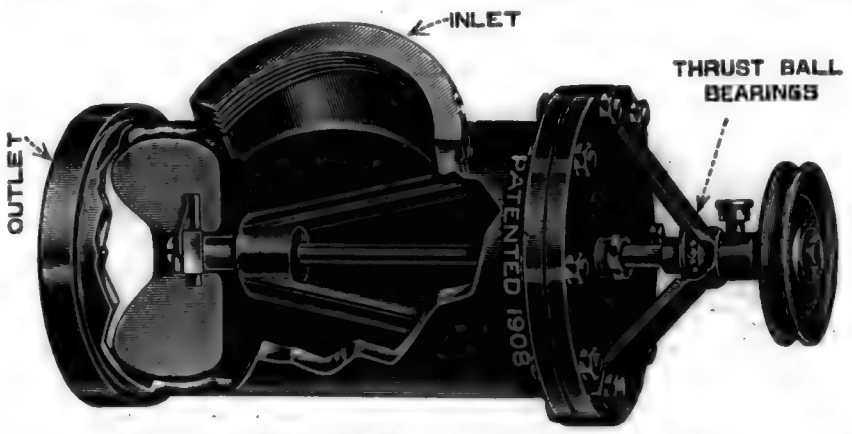
I have let the heating job to a local plumber and he will furnish everything, leaving the job complete, but I think he is using too many pipes. These are his figures: One 6-inch tap from the boiler, about ten or twelve feet long; one 4-inch overhead flow in each house; four 2-inch returns under three benches and three 2-inch returns under one bench in each house. J. L. M.



For the carnation house one 4-inch flow and twelve 2-inch returns should be sufficient to maintain a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees, but it would be better to substitute two 2½-inch flow pipes for the single 4-inch flow, though the latter is, of course, large enough to supply the returns. In the rose house use three 2½-inch flow pipes and fourteen 2-inch returns. If the 4-inch main is to be used, sixteen returns would be needed. The above radiation is considerably larger than would be needed unless the thermometer is lower than 15 degrees below zero, with high winds.

A HOUSE FOR GENERAL STOCK.

I am building a Lord & Burnham house, 28x50 feet, for general stock. Please tell me the amount of piping required and how to locate it to best advantage. In this part of Maine the outside temperature occasionally drops to 20 degrees below zero for several days at a time. I am planning to use one bench for chrysanthemums, to be followed by geraniums and bedding

The "Ideal" Hot Water Circulator

THE "IDEAL" is the Original Automatic circulator, and is the simplest and most efficient circulator on the market.

Sectional Cut of Improved Circulator No. 6.

Some Advantages of the "Ideal" Circulator

(1) Improves to perfection the circulation in hot water plants that are defective.
(2) Enables present hot water systems to be extended to a very large extent without increasing the size of the pipes or the height of the circulating head.
(3) Owing to the reduced size of the main piping required, it considerably reduces the first cost of installation.
(4) Gives an even temperature in the pipes throughout the system.
(5) Reduces the amount of radiating pipes required.
(6) Enables smaller piping to be used.
(7) Piping may be placed below boiler level as well as above.
(8) Effects a large economy in cost of fuel.
(9) Requires a very small amount of power to operate (1-10 of one horse power being sufficient for 5,000 sq. ft. of heating surface).
(10) Can be used as an auxiliary to gravity system, and does not impede the flow of water at times when forced circulation is not required, as its action is perfectly automatic.

Great Grates.

As fast as old grate bars are burned out many growers are putting in the Martin rocking grate. The call for this grate is largely increased by the fact that the growers who have used it for one or more seasons are almost without exception equipping other boilers with it. The grate costs considerably more than the stationary bars, but is figured to make a decided saving in fuel, and that is what all the growers are after.

stock. Next to this will be a carnation bench; then a solid bed for asparagus, sweet peas, etc.; then a bench for ferns, and last a propagating bench. I now have a No. 225 Hub water heater. It is rated at 1,000 square feet and has a 25-inch grate. Would another heater of the same size be sufficient, joining the two? G. W. H.

If there is no glass in the side walls, there should be no difficulty in maintaining a temperature of 50 degrees in a house 28x50 feet with 600 square feet of radiation. The exact arrangement of the piping would depend upon the construction of the houses, but if there are no posts in the houses a simple method of piping would be to run a 2½-inch flow pipe on each of the walls and connect them with coils of 2-inch pipes on the walls, each containing eight 2-inch returns. Another method would be to run a third 2½-inch flow a couple of feet below the ridge and then have five returns on each wall and five others under one or two of the benches. While we have had no experience with the Hub heater, the size of the grate is about right for the rating given and the present heater should be sufficiently large to heat a house of the size described.

IF YOU SHOULD VISIT ... well-known "Kroeschell Boiler," you ... boilers finished on orders and ready for shipment. Recently there were sixty odd of these ... boilers finished awaiting ... der construction.

One of their latest models, the No. 16, was being shipped. This is claimed to be the largest ... boiler ever built, having a capacity of 80,000 square feet of glass for carnations at zero.

The economy of a large single unit as compared with several ... is ... t, not alone in fuel consumption and the original cost of the boiler, but also in the way of labor in attending to the ... are installing one large Kroeschell Boiler to do the work of two or more smaller boilers, and the large sizes have become ... Eastern demand being extremely heavy. Recently a number of these large sizes were shipped into the Northwestern territory ... B. C. and neighborhood. They have a very large trade in these boilers in the cold northwest territory, where they are also ... Office Buildings, Hotels, Stores, etc.

The demand for smaller boilers than the No. 1 Kroeschell Boiler for small ranges, ... has induced them to add to their list four smaller sizes, "A," "B," "C" and "D," ranging in capacity from 2,250 square feet of glass to 4,500 square feet of glass. They now build twenty-two sizes of their Hot Water Boiler, ranging in capacity from 2,250 to 80,000 square feet of glass, enabling them to furnish boilers for ranges of any conceivable size.

It is very interesting to note the great care that is taken by this firm in the selection of the material, the construction of the boilers, and the excellent workmanship put on all their work.

The demand for Kroeschell Boilers has been very heavy, and during the past four years, the Kroeschell Hot Water Greenhouse Boiler has been installed to heat over 9,000,000 SQUARE FEET OF GLASS. This does not include the Kroeschell Steam Boilers, of which they also sold many, to be used in greenhouses.

Their records show sales very much in excess of last year at this time, and at the present rate their business will ... increase of fully fifty per cent over last year's sales.

"WHAT THE USERS SAY"

The No. 9 Boiler we bought of you is heating 15,000 square feet of glass. We have no trouble to keep up temperatures of 60 degrees for rose houses and 52 degrees for carnation section in the coldest weather. Your boiler has given entire satisfaction. We also have a cast iron 9 sectional boiler, but prefer the Kroeschell. This has been the coldest winter we have had in years and we burned less coal than usual. We use your Generator and believe it helps the circulation.

Junction City Floral Co., Junction City, Kan.

The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 square feet of glass; I think it can take care of 16,000 feet. I do not have any trouble to keep up temperature of 50 degrees in the coldest weather. I fire only once after 12 o'clock midnight. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers—like the "Kroeschell" the best of all. If any one wishes to inquire about your boiler, let them write me, for I think your boilers are good ones.

a hot water boiler which had been used in a dwelling house. The boiler has a 16-inch grate and is rated at 450 square feet of radiation; it is of the Gurney make and consists of four sections, one above the other. It has a 3¼-inch opening at the top and two 2-inch openings at the bottom, besides a ¾-inch supply tap.

I propose to build a house out of the sashes, by using the 8½-foot sashes for the roof. The house will run east and west. The north wall will be four feet high, of boards. The south wall will be built of the 6½-foot sashes, set on edge, so that the plate will be four feet above ground. The north half of the roof will consist entirely of the 8½-foot sashes, but in the south half every third sash will be a 6½-foot one, with a ventilator to cover the other two feet of space. The ends of the house will be mostly of glass. The house will be about fourteen feet wide and eight feet to the ridge. It will contain solid benches and I intend to use it for cool-growing stock, such as lettuce, violets, sweet peas, etc.

size and number of heating pipes should be used? I am located twenty miles northeast of Boston, near the seashore. Sometimes the outside temperature is a few degrees below zero for a day or two, but it generally runs from zero to 12 or 15 degrees above. The boiler will be in a pit, in a shed at the northeast corner. If there is anything wrong with my plan, please tell me, as I am a beginner and have everything to learn. P. S. H.

A boiler such as described would heat a house fourteen and one-half feet wide, with thirty-two inches of glass in the south wall, and 100 feet long, to 50 degrees in a climate where the thermometer drops to 10 or 15 degrees below zero. A 3-inch flow pipe, with seven 2-inch returns, will maintain the temperature needed for lettuce and similar crops. It would be a good plan to run the flow pipe one foot under the ridge, with a slight fall, and, at the farther end, connect with two 2½-inch pipes to join it with the 2-inch returns. While it would have been better to have two 2½-inch connections with the boiler for the returns, it will answer if the returns are connected with 2½-inch pipes and these are carried to the boiler, where they should be reduced to two inches each.

To-Bak-Ine Products

Are not the cheapest insecticides on the market (in point of first cost), but in point of results there's nothing to compare with them. Users who are led to try something "cheaper" find there's nothing "just as good," and the next order is for "the old reliable" To-Bak-Ine. Why listen to the "cheaper" salesman? The Market.

Business has been at a standstill for several days, owing to the extreme heat and the small number of funerals. Previous to this falling off in trade, business was excellent for the month of July.

Early asters were a failure, due to the dry, hot weather, but the late crop will be better. The new crop of roses, which is just coming in, is quite good. Carnations are gone, but it will not be long before some will be cut from the new plants.

Various Notes.

Julius Niednagel & Sons have finished planting carnations and the plants are in excellent condition and breaking nicely. This year they have planted only the three varieties of Enchantress and Beacon, having discarded all others. The roses are looking fine, both the young stock and the old plants, which have been dried off and started into good growth again. There are five benches of Ivory that are beginning their fifth year. The young plants of White Killarney are already producing good flowers on stems of nice length. There are several plants of the climbing Pink Killarney which originated here about six years ago. The mums are in fine shape, with not a yellow leaf on them, and prospects are good for some fine flowers. The early asters are giving lots of flowers and the late ones are beginning to show color. Mr. Ede, their carnation grower, has left them, and Curt Niednagel has charge of the carnations and mums till a new grower arrives. This firm has 30,000 feet of glass on hand and will probably build next spring.

Ben Kramer says business has been slow.

Henry Seymour has his carnations all planted and is cutting a few flowers from them.

Nellie Goodge reports poor business.

Louis Fritsch is busy with outside and inside work. He has his carnations all in the benches.

Royston & Fenton have their roses all dried off and started up again.

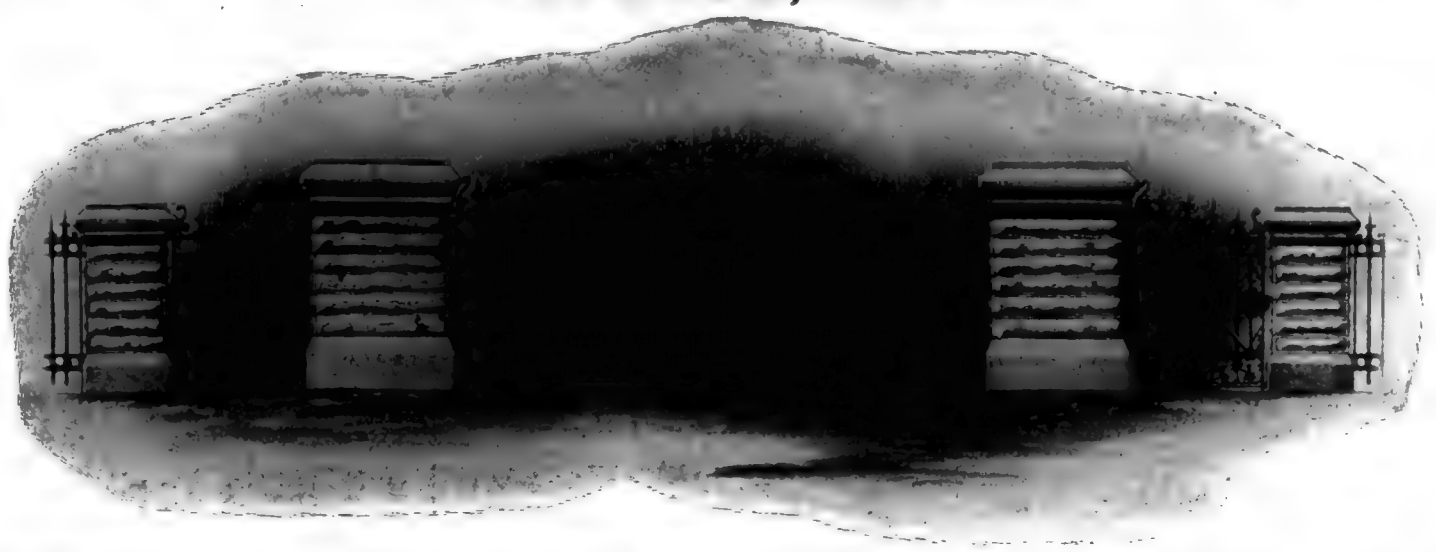
Support Your Carnation Plants Properly and They Will Support You

Now is the time to put in some of our Carnation Supports, to show you how much more practical, economical and serviceable they are above other makes. Note our reasons.

They are easily put up and just as easily taken down; no tangled mess of wire to store away.

They pay for themselves quickly by the additional and superior blooms gained with the proper support of your plants.



Our No. 1 needs no overhead wires or strings except one thin wire, which locks on the clamp in the support, holding it upright and in place.

Our No. 2 Support acts as a stool for your plants, allows no sagging. With this support you use overhead wires or strings to keep blooms growing erect. It opens on both sides so all side shoots can be put in easily at all times. Note the low prices.

THE GODFREY CALLA.

Please give me a little advice on growing the Godfrey calla. If I should buy bulbs from 2½-inch pots and replant in 5-inch pots, when should they be planted and started to grow, to get a good winter crop? Should they be plunged in ashes or placed in saucers when they are through flowering next spring? Should they be dumped out of the pots, or should they be kept in the same soil year after year? If they are planted directly into solid beds, how far apart should they be each way? Do they carry as big a flower as the Elliottiana calla? G. S.

If you purchase plants of the Godfrey calla in 2½-inch pots, it would be well to pot at once into 4-inch and later into 6-inch, in which they will give you a fine winter crop of flowers. They will even flower in 3-inch pots, but to secure large flowers 5-inch to 6-inch pots are necessary. They flower more freely in pots than if planted in benches. Of course, they want liberal feeding and enjoy top-dressings of sheep manure and bone meal. The flowers are as large as those of Elliottiana and the common Æthiopica, and purer in color than the latter. They also produce twice as many flowers as the common calla. Lay the pots on their sides outdoors for a rest about June 1 and start up again in six or seven weeks. New soil, consisting of fibrous loam, cow manure, sand and some fine bone, should be used each year. The plants do particularly well on a side bench, in a carnation house temperature. C. W.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

The summer dullness is upon the city and the florists are suffering the usual dearth of business. A majority of the flower buyers are away at the seashore or the country and, except for the demand for funeral work, the retailers might just as well close their places. Many of the growers have done but little, on account of the excessively hot weather, few having yet benched their carnations, believing that they will thrive better in the field than if transplanted.

Various Notes.

Michael J. Leach, of Pawtucket, was a recent visitor in Boston.

Peter Byrnes, of Wickford, has been especially busy with decorations for functions at Narragansett.

Frederick Harrington, employed by the Everett Forestry Co., which is trimming the big elm trees in Main street, Manville, fell from one of the trees recently and was bady shaken up. He sprained one of his ankles.

Henry C. Neubrand and daughter have returned from a visit with his parents at Webster, N. Y.

Frederick Dietz, 24 French street, is having a new greenhouse erected in addition to his present range.

Frederick C. Greene, superintendent of parks of this city, attended the annual convention of the Association of Park Superintendents at Rochester, N. Y., last week and was elected vice-president from Rhode Island.

The Greystone Horticultural Society will hold its first annual flower show in the social club hall, September 9.

A meeting of those interested in the formation of a market in this city is to be held in a few days, for the purpose of organizing and getting everything in readiness for the opening of the fall season.

Frederick B. Luther, of Oxford street, has the sympathy of a large circle of acquaintances in the death of his mother last week.

Max Viller, with Johnston Bros., is spending all of his spare time this summer at a camp at Oakland Beach.

A. Battinille has opened a retail flower store at 192 Atwell's avenue.

E. A. Johnston, who opened a retail store at Narragansett Pier for the season, has closed it again.

J. Frank Parker and T. S. Ware, of the Rhode Island Nursery Co., have been working in Westerly and vicinity for several days on outdoor work.

William H. Tarbox, of Pawtuxet valley, reports having had much difficulty in saving his dahlia and aster crops this season on account of the drought.

"HAMILTON-MADE" GREENHOUSE HOSE

What our mark on hose means

"Hamilton-Made" means superior quality in general and one thing in particular. The "one thing in particular" is this:

On every length of "Hamilton-Made" hose you will notice a mark not found on any other hose—"Guaranteed 750 pounds pressure," or 700 or 500, etc., according to the grade. On our "Hamilton" brand every length has been tested under pressure of 750 pounds to the square inch. Any piece showing defect is rejected. 750 pounds is five times the usual pressure in steam boilers. Think of it! Do you wonder that this hose is strong; that it is stiff and will not kink?

"Hamilton" brand, our highest grade hose, selling at 25 cents a foot, will last three to five years under ordinary greenhouse use; it will stand three or four times as much wear as common hose. As often happens, the high grade is the cheapest.

Under the same brands and of the same excellent qualities, we make Hose for Suction, for Steam Service and for Spraying.

All made especially for the service to be done and satisfaction guaranteed.

Here are some of the leading grades of "Hamilton-Made" Greenhouse Hose. Note that every label bears the words "HAMILTON-MADE"

How to get the best hose that is made

SOME jobbers in Florists' Supplies do not sell the highest-grade Greenhouse hose. They argue that everybody wants low-priced hose. We know better, for we know that our stiff, strong, tough "HAMILTON" brand hose is really the cheapest of all, and that many wise buyers will be glad to get it. We therefore make this offer to all who cannot buy it of a dealer:

If your dealer does not keep it, we will deliver to you anywhere in the United States, PREPAID, 50-foot lengths of ¾-inch "HAMILTON" brand, our highest grade Greenhouse hose, complete with standard brass couplings, for the regular price, $12.50 EACH LENGTH.

This splendid hose stands a pressure of 750 pounds to the square inch, and while it is our highest-priced Greenhouse hose, it lasts so long that it is really the cheapest hose made.

If hose of such extremely high resistance is not required, we will send ¾-inch KENMORE (guaranteed 650 pounds) at $10.50, or ¾-inch CYGNET (500 pounds) at $8.00 for 50-foot lengths. Shipped same day order is received.

STAMFORD, CONN.

The Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society held its regular meeting in the Royal Arcanum hall, Friday evening, August 11. President Stuart occupied the chair and there was the usual large attendance. One honorary and nine active members were elected.

Many prizes have been donated for the first annual exhibition of the society, to be held here November 3 and 4, and the exhibition committee is busy with the final schedule, which will soon be ready.

The judges' awards were:

Cultural certificate: James Stuart, Amaryllis Belladonna; Ewen MacKenzie, bunch of grapes.

Vote of thanks: M. J. Quirk, sweet peas; A. Whitelaw, asters in variety; Carrillo & Baldwin, Cattleya Dowiana; Eugene Blondin, Cucumber North Pole; A. Peterson, Tomato Liberty; J. B. Andrew, ornamental pomegranate; P. W. Popp, basket of cut flowers.

Each exhibitor gave a short, interesting talk on the culture of his exhibit.

J. B. M.

NEW BEDFORD.

The Market.

Trade was good last week, principally funeral work, which used up plenty of stock. Carnations are about all gone and some of the growers are now planting their carnations from the field. Asters retail at 35 cents per dozen; carnations 35 cents per dozen; roses $1 and $1.50 per dozen; gladioli $1.50 per dozen; sweet peas 50 cents per dozen. Sweet peas are blooming quite freely now. Asters are in full bloom and the early varieties are still on deck, while the late ones will be in bloom in a week or so.

Early closing is still the rule, and a good many of the stores close Wednesday noon. We need some good rains to freshen up things a bit. Carnations from the field are fairly good, although the dry spell in July gave them a little setback, so they are only of medium size. We are having nice weather now.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Business is better than is usual in August, and as one or two of the working force in most of the stores is away on vacation, this keeps the stay-at-homes pretty busy. There is plenty of stock, of its kind, to meet the demand. The gladiolus is the most prominent flower of the season and some pretty varieties are on the market; Niagara and Panama are probably the largest flowered and the the most popular as to color. A few short-stemmed carnations are being sent in.

Various Notes.

Frank J. Ritzenthaler spent his vacation at St. Clair Flats.

Walter Witthuhn, son of Fred Witthuhn, had a narrow escape from being fatally shot on the evening of August 11. Three young bandits held him up as he was returning home at a late hour, and he, seeing an opportunity, started to run. One of the outlaws attempted to fire at him, but the gun failed to explode. It was with this same gun that a policeman was shot, probably with fatal results, on the following Sunday night, according to the confession of one of the trio.

Frank Friedley is spending his vacation as the guest of H. P. Knoble, who is also taking a month's rest at his summer home.

The J. M. Gasser Co. had a window last week of Golden Glow chrysanthemums ,the first of the season. They were fine specimens and attracted a great deal of attention. This firm is now located in its new store, on Euclid avenue. It is one of the most attractive flower stores in the city and the style of fixtures and finish elicits much favorable comment. Not a piece of white enamel is to be seen in the store, the color scheme being a grayish green, with gold leaf.

C. D. Fell, of Knoble Bros., and John M. Carey, of Mount Clemens, Mich., will open a retail flower store on Woodward avenue, Detroit, about September 1. Mr. Carey was employed by the Jones-Russell Co. about a year ago.

We are having warm weather and outdoor flowers have suffered a great deal. Roses are good and speciosum lilies and sweet peas are splendid. Pretty pans of Vernon begonias are seen in some of the stores, but with that exception there is a scarcity of blooming potted plants. It was a case of limited ground space and a side hill to contend with. CONVENTION AFTERMATH

THE CLOSE AT BALTIMORE.

End of a Fine Convention.

Last week's big convention at Baltimore was reported up to Thursday afternoon in the issue of The Review for August 17. It was a fine meeting in every way. The interest was keen in the business sessions, and it grew from day to day. The trades' display was the largest yet held and the local management and hospitalities certainly left nothing to be desired. The work of the closing session was as follows:

President's Recommendations.

The president's address had been referred to a committee consisting of W. N. Rudd, P. Welch, F. R. Pierson, W. F. Kasting and F. H. Traendly for consideration. Mr. Rudd reported that the committee unanimously endorsed the recommendation for the appointment of a permanent flower show committee of six, the president, secretary and treasurer to be members ex-officio, the committee to be appointed at once and the executive committee to fix the details and limitations of its duties. The committee endorsed the proposition to have the secretary appointed by the board instead of being elected, as now. The committee endorsed the proposal to have the secretary act as superintendent of the trades' display. The committee hoped that at no far distant date it would be found that the society is in condition to pay the secretary for his whole time. It was recommended that the proposal that the society guarantee half the fund for the next national show be referred to the new flower show committee, with the request that a report be made at Chicago. The report was adopted.

Resolutions for Mr. Birnie.

President Asmus called for a rising vote on H. A. Bunyard's motion to adopt resolutions on the death of John Birnie, and the convention, as a further mark of respect, stood silent one minute. The resolutions were as follows:

Whereas, We, the Society of American Florists, assembled in the city of Baltimore for the twenty-seventh annual convention, have been grievously touched by the sudden death of our fellow craftsman, John Birnie, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the S. A. F., feel keenly the loss of one so well beloved, one who has been an ardent representative of our profession in advancing all its interests. Be it further

Resolved, That we present this resolution as a token of our sympathy and sincere affection for him and condolence with his family in this their sudden and sad bereavement, and that we submit to them a copy of these resolutions, and that the society forward a suitable floral tribute.

Leonard Barron,
J. C. Vaughan,
R. Vincent, Jr.,
J. Otto Thilow,
Committee.

Miscellaneous Business.

The committee to which were referred the state vice-presidents' reports reported that the twenty-six reports sent in showed there is no falling off in the interest and endeavor of these officers, and recommended that they be given a vote of thanks. Adopted.

Mack Richmond, superintendent, reported that the sale of space in the trades' display totaled $3,796.

The report of Prof. H. H. Whetzel, the society's pathologist, was received and ordered printed.

The report of the school gardens committee, by Benjamin Hammond, was read by title and ordered printed.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar made a report for the committee on life members' badges, submitting a design, and on his motion the matter was referred to the executive committee for further action.

W. N. Rudd reported that the accounts of the National Flower Show had been checked so far as seemed needful and the auditing committee found them correct.

The amendment to the by-laws raising the life membership fee from $25 to $50, notice of which was given in the program, was voted down, 25 to 32.

A resolution was offered by F. R. Pierson for the purpose of putting into effect the recommendations of Mr. Gude in the matter of the parcels post. After setting forth the necessity for the parcels post, it urged that every member get in touch with his own representative in Congress and make his wishes known. Adopted. The tariff and legislative committee was instructed to draft a letter on the subject, to be sent by the secretary to all the members.

Final Resolutions.

The committee on final resolutions presented the following report:

Whereas, The twenty-seventh annual convention of the S. A. F., held in Baltimore, has proved in all ways a successful and satisfactory meeting, all promises and pledges by our Baltimore members having been carried out to the letter, so that we shall leave the Monumental City with the fondest recollections of our sojourn here, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we tender to the florists of Baltimore and its public-spirited citizens our warmest thanks for the many attentions shown us and the hospitable treatment accorded. We also wish to mention by name R. L. Graham, president of the Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club, and N. F. Flitton, its secretary, and its various committees as represented by their chairmen, as follows: Wm. Feast, Robt. Halliday, Geo. Morrison, P. B. Welsh, G. O. Brown, I. H. Moss, J. J. Perry, W. J. Johnston, F. C. Bauer, Jas. Hamilton, J. J. Towner and Mrs. I. H. Moss. We also tender our heartfelt thanks to States Attorney Williams, representing the governor of Maryland, and to his Honor, Mayor Preston. We further desire to place on record our appreciation of the efforts of the various supply houses that made attractive displays at the convention and sent representatives here, also the advertisers in the souvenir. We note with pleasure the rather unusual feature of the general display of banners and other decorations throughout the city of Baltimore.

J. C. Vaughan,
F. H. Traendly,
W. J. Stewart.

This was adopted by a rising vote, and H. A. Bunyard moved "Three cheers for Baltimore," which were given with a will.

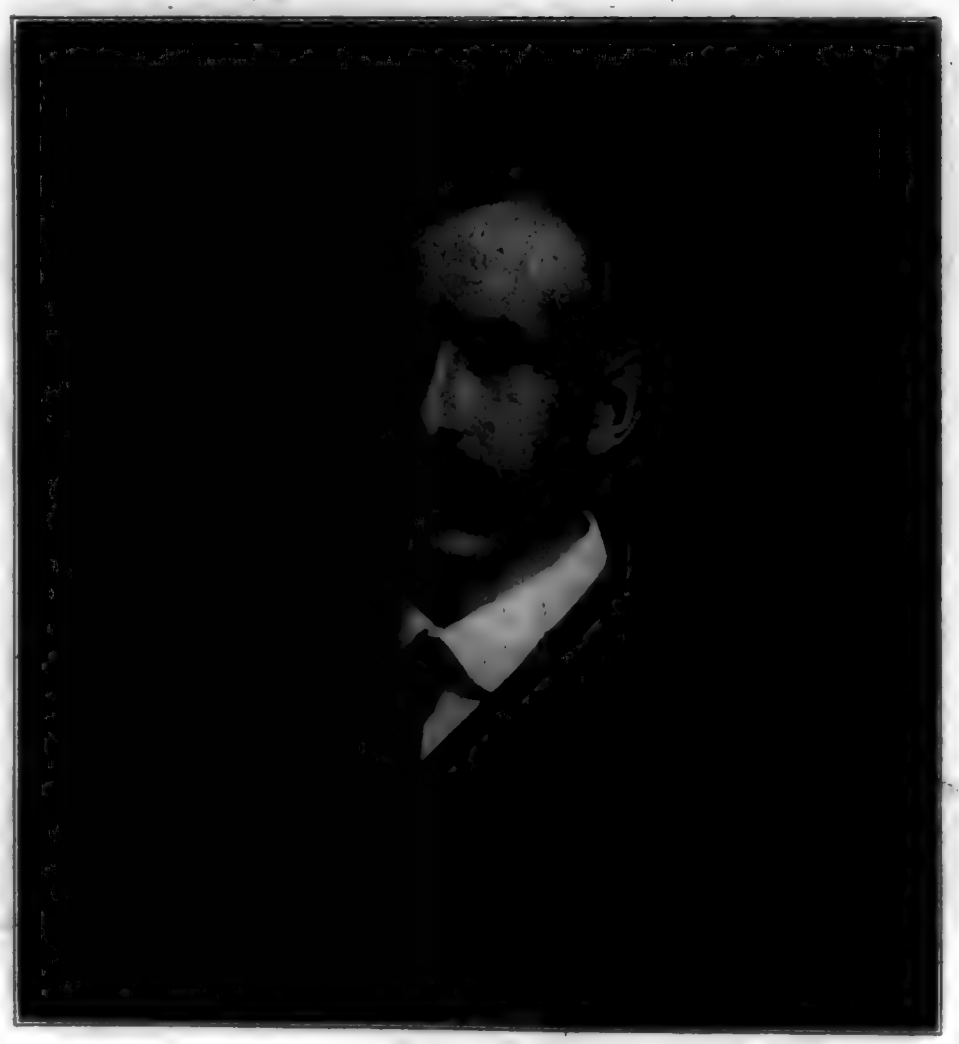
Convention Notes.

At its meeting to ratify the proposal for a joint meeting at Detroit, January 10, 1912, with the American Carnation Society, the American Rose Society, on motion of J. K. M. L. Farquhar, awarded a gold medal to M. H. Walsh in recognition of the meritorious collection of seedling rambler roses of his own raising exhibited at Boston and in recognition of his sucessful work as a hybridizer.

For the reception Thursday evening at the Belvedere the ladies of Baltimore furnished the splendid program of music and recitations and the Ladies' S. A. F. provided the refreshments. While Mr. Graham was presenting the trophies to the lady bowlers he also presented jewels to Mrs. Phillips, president, and Mrs. Maynard, secretary, of the Ladies' S. A. F., on behalf of the members. For the ladies' bowling team of Baltimore he presented an elegant vase to Mrs I. H. Moss.

The lecture on "Ornamental Horticulture Abroad," by J. K. M. L. Farquhar, was postponed to Thursday evening, when a large audience was entertained. Later some excellent views of the Boston show, from photographs by J. H. Pepper, were shown by the stereopticon.

"Our Day."



When the Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club printed the program of entertainments for the convention, they designated Friday, August 18, as "Our Day"—and printed the words in big type. It was a big day. It took two steamers to carry the crowd the Baltimoreans took twenty miles down Chesapeake bay for the outing. Just after starting, the steamers passed fire boat quarters, where the Deluge lay waiting to give an exhibition of its strength. With all eleven of its streams turned on, it was a great floating fountain, making a picture none who saw it ever will forget. It seemed the boat must fairly burst with its pent-up power, but some of the growers wanted to take it home to syringe with. A box lunch was served going to Tolchester beach, and on arrival there the sports were started at once. While the gunners were busy on the bluff and the ball game was in progress back in the field, a sudden, fierce squall blew up, lashing the bay until its wide, dark blue water was covered with white caps, presenting a sight that remains one of the dearest memories of the day. The wind was followed by a torrent of rain, but there were plenty of shelters, and in a few minutes the sun was out again. The gunners went back to finish their match and the races were run on a somewhat slippery field, but the ball players did not go back to finish. When interrupted the score stood: S. A. F., 4; Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club, 0. The teams were:

S. A. F.		Baltimore.
E. Ludwig	s s	Graham
D. Scott	c	Ekas
C. Graham	p	Wagner
H. Carney	1 b	Christy
Ludwig	l f	Eberle
Adgate	2 b	Perry

Notable Photograph Taken at Baltimore Tuesday Afternoon, August 15, 1911.

(From left to right: W. F. Kasting, Treasurer of the S. A. F.; Charles H. Totty, ex-President F. R. Pierson, ex-President F. H. Truendly, Patrick Welch, Secretary-elect John Young, President-elect Richard Vincent, Jr.; the late John Birnie, whose death occurred two hours after the photograph was taken; President George Asmus.)

The winners of the other games, which took place in the afternoon, were:

Men's Running Race—For men 25 years and over. First prize, Harry Wagner, of Baltimore; second prize, W. Stauffel, of Baltimore.

Young Men's Running Race—Ward Perry, of Baltimore.

Fat Men's Race—Robert Schoch, Philadelphia.

Married Women's Race—Mrs. William Robertson, of Washington.

Boys' Potato Race—Master R. Thaw, of Govanstown.

Girls' Potato Race—First prize, Miss Grace Erdman, of Baltimore; second prize, Miss Helen Richmann, of Baltimore; third prize, Miss Fannie Lachner, of Baltimore.

Single Ladies' Race—Miss May Dodds, of Washington.

While at Tolchester, which is Baltimore's Coney Island, J. K. M. L. Farquhar called the crowd together to listen to a little speech he wished to make in presenting a chest of silver to President and Mrs. Asmus. It was the gift of the S. A. F. members, and Mr. Asmus responded suitably, saying in conclusion that he was delighted that the convention was going to Chicago next year, and that then he hopes to greet everybody in his home town. He called on R. Vincent, Jr., the president-elect, for a speech and that popular gentleman expressed his appreciation of the honor done him.

Later in the day Mr. Vincent chose a time when the crowd was largely together to present a silver loving cup to Robert L. Graham, president of the Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club. It came from the members in recognition and appreciation of the magnificent way he, as head of the club, had handled the preparation for and consummation of one of the most enjoyable conventions in the whole history of the S. A. F.

Supper was served on the steamers, returning to the city at 10 p. m. after a sail on the bay.

CONVENTION BOWLING.

The bowling matches aroused something like old-time enthusiasm. The alleys were fine and the Baltimore gentlemen were hosts to a big crowd, supplying all the concomitants with a lavish hand. The team scores were:

The Whilldin cup went to Washington, as did the Bayersdorfer cup for best score in first two games and the Kasting cup for best single game. The Michell trophy went to Cleveland. The Bauer cup for most spares and the Barnard cup for player coming the greatest distance went to P. Olsem, Joliet, Ill. Each Washingtonian got one of H. Lehr's stickpins, each Clevelander $5 from Pennock-Meehan Co., and each Philadelphian $5 from the local finance committee. The Patterson prize, fruit knives, for the man making highest score in three games, went to Elker, of Washington. The mirror for second high score went to McLennon, of Washington.

The individual bowling, two games, brought out a big lot of competition, with results as follows:

cheers for Baltimore," which were given with a will.

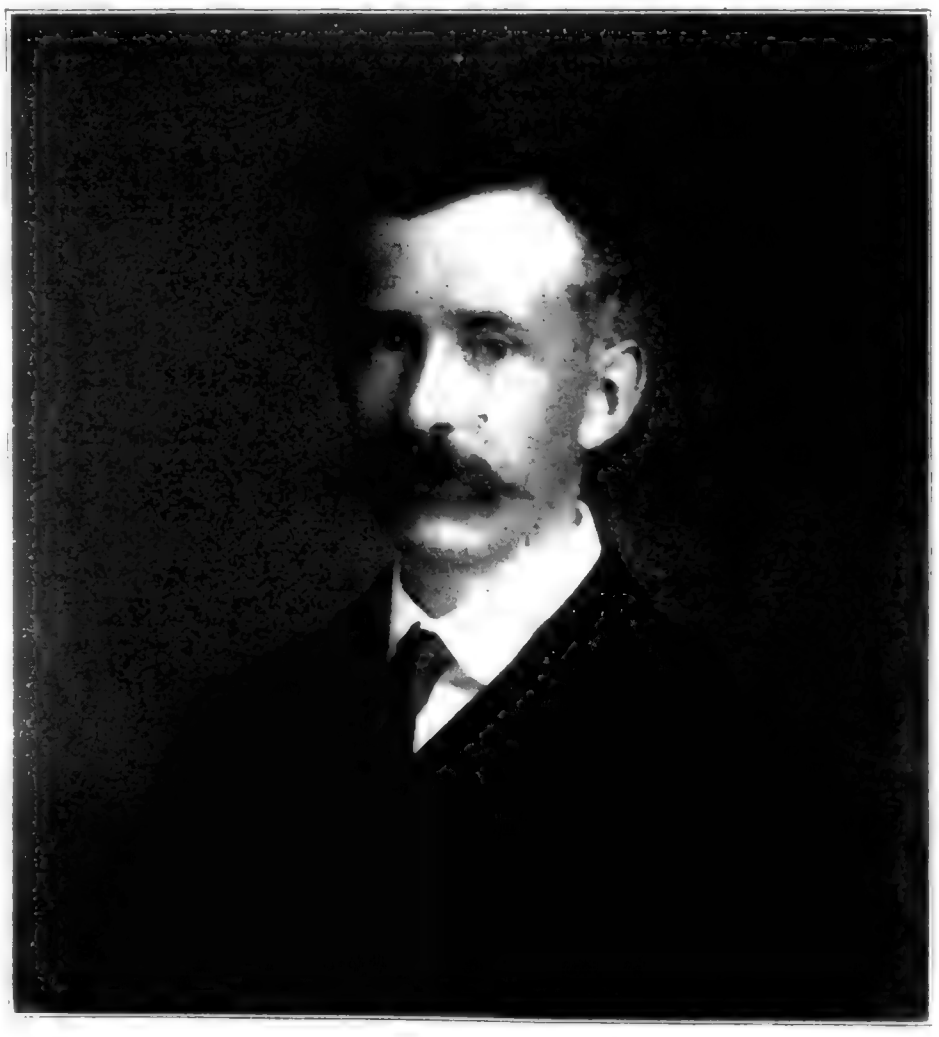
Convention Notes.

At its meeting to ratify the proposal for a joint meeting at Detroit, January 10, 1912, with the American Carnation Society, the American Rose Society, on motion of J. K. M. L. Farquhar, awarded a gold medal to M. H. Walsh in recognition of the meritorious collection of seedling rambler roses of his own raising exhibited at Boston and in recognition of his sucessful work as a hybridizer.

For the reception Thursday evening at the Belvedere the ladies of Baltimore furnished the splendid program of music and recitations and the Ladies' S. A. F. provided the refreshments. While Mr. Graham was presenting the trophies to the lady bowlers he also presented jewels to Mrs. Phillips, president, and Mrs. Maynard, secretary, of the Ladies' S. A. F., on behalf of the members. For the ladies' bowling team of Baltimore he presented an elegant vase to Mrs I. H. Moss.

The lecture on "Ornamental Horticulture Abroad," by J. K. M. L. Farquhar, was postponed to Thursday evening, when a large audience was entertained. Later some excellent views of the Boston show, from photographs by J. H. Pepper, were shown by the stereopticon.

"Our Day."



When the Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club printed the program of entertainments for the convention, they designated Friday, August 18, as "Our Day"—and printed the words in big type. It was a big day. It took two steamers to carry the crowd the Baltimoreans took twenty miles down Chesapeake bay for the outing. Just after starting, the steamers passed fire boat quarters, where the Deluge lay waiting to give an exhibition of its strength. With all eleven of its streams turned on, it was a great floating fountain, making a picture none who saw it ever will forget. It seemed the boat must fairly burst with its pent-up power, but some of the growers wanted to take it home to syringe with. A box lunch was served going to Tolchester beach, and on arrival there the sports were started at once. While the gunners were busy on the bluff and the ball game was in progress back in the field, a sudden, fierce squall blew up, lashing the bay until its wide, dark blue water was covered with white caps, presenting a sight that remains one of the dearest memories of the day. The wind was followed by a torrent of rain, but there were plenty of shelters, and in a few minutes the sun was out again. The gunners went back to finish their match and the races were run on a somewhat slippery field, but the ball players did not go back to finish. When interrupted the score stood: S. A. F., 4; Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club, 0. The teams were:

Notable Photograph Taken at Baltimore Tuesday Afternoon, August 15, 1911.

The winners of the other games, which took place in the afternoon, were:

Men's Running Race—For men 25 years and over. First prize, Harry Wagner, of Baltimore; second prize, W. Stauffel, of Baltimore.

Young Men's Running Race—Ward Perry, of Baltimore.

Fat Men's Race—Robert Schoch, Philadelphia.

Married Women's Race—Mrs. William Robertson, of Washington.

Boys' Potato Race—Master R. Thaw, of Govanstown.

Girls' Potato Race—First prize, Miss Grace Erdman, of Baltimore; second prize, Miss Helen Richmann, of Baltimore; third prize, Miss Fannie Lachner, of Baltimore.

Single Ladies' Race—Miss May Dodds, of Washington.

While at Tolchester, which is Baltimore's Coney Island, J. K. M. L. Farquhar called the crowd together to listen to a little speech he wished to make in presenting a chest of silver to President and Mrs. Asmus. It was the gift of the S. A. F. members, and Mr. Asmus responded suitably, saying in conclusion that he was delighted that the convention was going to Chicago next year, and that then he hopes to greet everybody in his home town. He called on R. Vincent, Jr., the president-elect, for a speech and that popular gentleman expressed his appreciation of the honor done him.

Later in the day Mr. Vincent chose a time when the crowd was largely together to present a silver loving cup to Robert L. Graham, president of the Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club. It came from the members in recognition and appreciation of the magnificent way he, as head of the club, had handled the preparation for and consummation of one of the most enjoyable conventions in the whole history of the S. A. F.

Supper was served on the steamers, returning to the city at 10 p. m. after a sail on the bay.

CONVENTION BOWLING.

The bowling matches aroused something like old-time enthusiasm. The alleys were fine and the Baltimore gentlemen were hosts to a big crowd, supplying all the concomitants with a lavish hand. The team scores were:

The Whilldin cup went to Washington, as did the Bayersdorfer cup for best score in first two games and the Kasting cup for best single game. The Michell trophy went to Cleveland. The Bauer cup for most spares and the Barnard cup for player coming the greatest distance went to P. Olsem, Joliet, Ill. Each Washingtonian got one of H. Lehr's stickpins, each Clevelander $5 from Pennock-Meehan Co., and each Philadelphian $5 from the local finance committee. The Patterson prize, fruit knives for the man making highest score in three games, went to Eiker, of Washington. The mirror for second high score went to McLennon, of Washington.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

[A paper by Patrick Welch, of Boston, Mass., read before the Society of American Florists, in convention at Baltimore, August 15 to 18, 1911.]

You will observe, when reading the program of the convention for this day, that Mr. Mepsted, of Ottawa, is to talk on reciprocity from the Canadian standpoint, and that I am to submit some remarks from the American standpoint.

I am free to say that I have no authority from any number of horticulturists in this country to appear before this convention, give my views on this question and have them set forth as American principles and policies. What I may have to say on this subject is simply an expression of my own personal views and is to be taken as such, until given full sanction by a vote of the convention.

I will take only a few minutes of your time while I refer to a question of importance to this society, as to whether all horticultural products of the United States be admitted into Canada free of duty when imported from the United States, and, reciprocally, whether the horticultural products of Canada be admitted to this country free of duty when imported from Canada. This cannot be brought about except by the aid and support of the Canadian florists on one side and the Society of American Florists on the other.

Correspondence with Mr. Esler.

When the commissioners appointed by the United States and Canadian governments met in the city of Washington last winter I wrote to John G. Esler, chairman of the legislative committee, as follows: "At present a commission appointed jointly by the Canadian and United States governments is in session at Washington, D. C., having under consideration the question of reciprocity. It seems to me that it would be a benefit to the growers of flowers to have the Canadian duty on cut flowers imported from the United States removed. This is especially true as to New England, because of its proximity to Quebec and the lower provinces, where there are no large establishments devoted to the growing of cut flowers. Climatic conditions are against them, and therefore no special benefit can be obtained by maintaining a tariff of twenty per cent on imports."

Mr. Esler, in replying to this letter, stated that there was a diversity of opinions among the members of the committee as to the advisability of making any effort at that time to include horticultural products in the reciprocity list.

I am in favor of absolute free trade on all horticultural products between this country and Canada. I am strengthened in this view by the friendly relations that now exist, and have existed for several years, between members of our society and those of the Canadian Association.

Reasons for Reciprocity.

We ought not to overlook the fact that the proximity of the two peoples, of the same language, customs, habits and needs, having similar resources and equal abilities for normal advancement, would enable them to supplement each other, in the same manner as growers in the different states of the Union.

No valid reason can be given why any citizen, whether American or Canadian, engaged either in the wholesale or retail cut flower business, should be compelled to order goods to come from a distance of 500 miles or over, simply to patronize home products, from a spirit of patriotism, when similar goods can be obtained across the border much nearer home.

The perishable nature of flowers and plants would be a strong reason why they should be secured as near the source of production as possible, thereby saving expense of freight and express charges and avoiding injury to goods while in transit, and other dangers which must be carefully guarded against if such transactions are to be profitable.

One other reason why it would be good policy to abolish all duties: Any business man having experience in shipping goods into the United States from Canada or from the United States into Canada realizes the many diffi-

I am in favor of absolute free trade on all horticultural products between this country and Canada. I am strengthened in this view by the friendly relations that now exist, and have existed for several years, between members of our society and those of the Canadian Association.

Reasons for Reciprocity.

We ought not to overlook the fact that the proximity of the two peoples, of the same language, customs, habits and needs, having similar resources and equal abilities for normal advancement, would enable them to supplement each other, in the same manner as growers in the different states of the Union.

No valid reason can be given why any citizen, whether American or Canadian, engaged either in the wholesale or retail cut flower business, should be compelled to order goods to come from a distance of 500 miles or over, simply to patronize home products, from a spirit of patriotism, when similar goods can be obtained across the border much nearer home.

One other reason why it would be good policy to abolish all duties: Any business man having experience in shipping goods into the United States from Canada or from the United States into Canada realizes the many diffi culties to be surmounted and obstacles to be conquered in order to avoid the delays incidental to the customs regulations imposed by both governments.

The Trade in Cut Flowers.

It must be clear to the mind of any man who may investigate the trade in cut flowers between the United States and Canada covering a period of five years ending June 30, 1910, that we have little to lose by placing flowers on the free list, as the following table will show:

	Sold to Canada	Bought from Canada
1906	$3496.00	$5929.00
1907	2550.00	5128.00
1908	1784.00	2192.00
1909	3568.00	3721.00
1910	8856.00	4308.00
	$20254.00	$21278.00

These figures show only a small business done in cut flowers. It is to be remembered, however, that imports and exports of nursery stock, decorative plants, orchids, etc., are much larger.

A Quotation from President Taft.

I believe there is a strong sentiment in this society in favor of closer relations. We all know this sentiment is strong throughout the land, as proved by the vote of both houses of Congress at the present session. The President of the United States, in a message to Congress recently, stated the following: "We have reached a stage in our own development that calls for a statesmanlike and broad view of our future economic status and its requirements. Ought we not, then, to arrange a commercial agreement with Canada, if we can, by which we shall have direct access to her supply of natural products without an obstructing or prohibitory tariff?"

Therefore, Mr. President, I am in favor of this question being submitted to the convention for consideration, and would suggest that, after a reasonable time has been given to debate, the matter be referred to the proper committee of the Society of American Florists, with instructions to prosecute further negotiations with the Canadian florists so that the prohibitory tariff may be removed.

I believe it will not materially change the price of any article on our list, but instead will open the way for a larger and more profitable intercourse between the producers of plants and flowers in this country and their brethren in Canada.

THE PRIVATE GARDENER.

[A paper by William Duckham, of Madison, N. J., read before the Society of American Florists, in convention at Baltimore, August 15 to 18, 1911.]

I was much surprised and pleased to receive from your secretary an invitation to read a paper on the subject of "The Gardener." I am also glad to note that your society has honored my profession—the first time, I believe, in the history of your organization that it has been directly and distinctly recognized. This may partly account for the lack of interest of the gardeners in your society and their failure to become members in large numbers. Not to my knowledge has there been a general appeal to the gardeners to join the S. A. F.

For some reason or other only a few gardeners hold membership in the S. A. F., although the idea prevailing in the minds of some, that they are not wanted, is erroneous. Fundamentally the society is a trade organization, and the mere addition of "Ornamental Horticulturists" to the society's title has added but few members.

The national flower shows held in the past have been well supported by the gardeners, and their exhibits have been much appreciated by your society. These exhibitions should be well supported by every one in the allied trades and professions in which we are so much interested, and I trust that many such exhibitions will be held in the future.

Gardeners Who Became Florists.

The relation between the private gardener and the florist is intimate, and is easily traced, for you have only to look in any direction and you will find some of the most successful florists of this country who have graduated from the ranks of private gardeners. It is not my intention to enumerate all of them, any more than it is to omit any names, but a few come to my mind who started their careers as private gardeners, and such training as they then received is admitted by them to have always been a help to them in their business.

Their names, as they come to me at this time, are J. N. May, E. G. Hill, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Thomas Roland, Peter Fisher, F. L. Atkins, A. T. Boddington and C. H. Totty, and, unless I am mistaken, the late Peter Henderson started his career as a private gardener and perhaps gave more and better advice to young men than any one else, and many today, whether florists or gardeners, owe to him a large measure of their success, and all over this broad land his influence is still felt.

The private gardener has done his part in the development and advancement of this country, both directly and indirectly, for, in looking after an estate, he generally takes a keen delight in having his place well kept, growing and producing flowers, vegetables and fruits, and endeavoring to have all this a little better than his neighbor. Then, again, where there are places of this kind the community in general and the trade benefit by it. I have never yet heard any one say that he did not love flowers, no matter how much he might dislike some other things, and those who can not have a large garden can at least imitate those of larger proportions; therefore I claim the work of the gardener has a most refining and broadening influence in every locality, and has done much toward making this a better land and a better world.

Lack of Interest in Hybridizing.

Though the private gardener has done much for horticulture, there remains much he could do, and I refer to the most interesting branch of hybridizing. Something has been done, I admit, but in my opinion he has neglected his opportunities. The cause of all this I am unable to explain, but it occurs to me that the most of it can be laid to indifference or lack of interest, for surely a number of gardeners have the time and conveniences and it can not be said he does not know how. There might have been some excuse for this some twenty or thirty years ago, but conditions have greatly changed since then. I do not mean by this that gardeners are any better today, but there are many more large estates where opportunities present themselves that were-not in evidence at that time, and I urge the gardeners to give this more consideration and do their part toward the advancement of horticulture.

George Talbot.
(Financial Secretary B. F. and G. C.)

One has not to look far to see what can be done. For example, the roses raised by W. H. Walsh in the last few years have startled the world. I am unable to say how much time and thought Mr. Walsh devoted to this work, but if he spent his whole life in it he would feel well repaid in giving to the world varieties of roses that otherwise might never have been born. All honor to the man who raised Excelsa, Delight, Lady Gay, Hiawatha, etc., and who at this time, I believe, is in the ranks of the private gardeners. Then let us take courage and set our minds to doing something that will be a joy and pleasure to others as well as to ourselves.

Grasping Opportunities.

Novelties always attract the gardener and you will find him among the first to try or test these. No matter whether flowers, vegetables or plants, he is ever eager to secure them. Hence the lack of interest or utter indifference which I have mentioned seems inexplicable and almost criminal. Then let us create or at least try to improve some flower or plant.

Since the gardener has become better known and more generally appreciated by his employer, a mutual good-feeling has sprung up between the two. This is true in a great many ways and is as it should be, and comes as the first aid to our social and moral status. In our profession let the man who has the opportunity endeavor, by precept and example, to exert over the less informed, and particularly over the young men under his charge, that moral influence that is so necessary for the upbuilding of our honored calling. For they are the men who will be called upon to carry on the work when we are compelled to lay it down. Whether we be florists or gardeners, let us beware that we grasp more of our opportunities and take our stand where we rightfully belong.

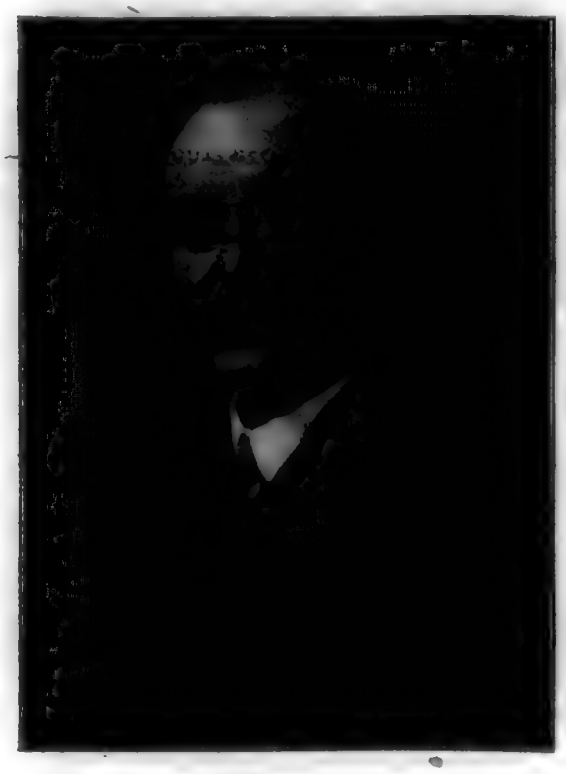
The need of the times seems to be a scheme or scope of operations in which all interests should unite for horticultural advancement. For instance, a national society such as we have might be enlarged to the extent of founding and maintaining a garden after the manner of the Royal Horticultural Society of England, at Wisley, and previously at Chiswick, gardens that for over fifty years have done excellent work, such as we need to have in this country. Instead of pleading with state legislatures for appropriations and greenhouses at state experiment stations, could not more and better work of this kind be done in a garden belonging to our society, with a staff of practical men?



A Training School for Young Men.

And consider what a training school for young men such a garden would be, and the beneficial results that would follow as efficient, well trained men would become available for positions in private or commercial places. Our ranks are being constantly recruited by importations from Europe, because of the degree of efficiency these recruits possess. We lack the facilities to give our young men practical training in a manner that appeals to them, with the assurance of an endorsement upon proved competency; this would also be a substantial aid to material advancement.

The working staff of the Royal Horticultural Society's garden is largely composed of students, who, for a small remuneration, work and study with facilities not to be had in the ordinary private and commercial place. Perhaps the best testimony to the efficiency of the Royal Horticultural Society's work along these lines is that it has been continuous for over fifty years, that the trials of fruits, vegetables and flowers conducted therein have been most beneficial to horticulture and a large number culties to be surmounted and obstacles to be conquered in order to avoid the delays incidental to the customs regulations imposed by both governments.

The Trade in Cut Flowers.

It must be clear to the mind of any man who may investigate the trade in cut flowers between the United States and Canada covering a period of five years ending June 30, 1910, that we have little to lose by placing flowers on the free list, as the following table will show:

	Sold to Canada	Bought from Canada
1906	$3496.00	$5929.00
1907	2550.00	5128.00
1908	1784.00	2192.00
1909	3568.00	3721.00
1910	8856.00	4308.00
	$20254.00	$21278.00

These figures show only a small business done in cut flowers. It is to be remembered, however, that imports and exports of nursery stock, decorative plants, orchids, etc., are much larger.

A Quotation from President Taft.

I believe there is a strong sentiment in this society in favor of closer relations. We all know this sentiment is strong throughout the land, as proved by the vote of both houses of Congress at the present session. The President of the United States, in a message to Congress recently, stated the following: "We have reached a stage in our own development that calls for a statesmanlike and broad view of our future economic status and its requirements. Ought we not, then, to arrange a commercial agreement with Canada, if we can, by which we shall have direct access to her supply of natural products without an obstructing or prohibitory tariff?"

Therefore, Mr. President, I am in favor of this question being submitted to the convention for consideration, and would suggest that, after a reasonable time has been given to debate, the matter be referred to the proper committee of the Society of American Florists, with instructions to prosecute further negotiations with the Canadian florists so that the prohibitory tariff may be removed.

I believe it will not materially change the price of any article on our list, but instead will open the way for a larger and more profitable intercourse between the producers of plants and flowers in this country and their brethren in Canada.

THE PRIVATE GARDENER.

[A paper by William Duckham, of Madison, N. J., read before the Society of American Florists, in convention at Baltimore, August 15 to 18, 1911.]

I was much surprised and pleased to receive from your secretary an invitation to read a paper on the subject of "The Gardener." I am also glad to note that your society has honored my profession—the first time, I believe, in the history of your organization that it has been directly and distinctly recognized. This may partly account for the lack of interest of the gardeners in your society and their failure to become members in large numbers. Not to my knowledge has there been a general appeal to the gardeners to join the S. A. F.

For some reason or other only a few gardeners hold membership in the S. A. F., although the idea prevailing in the minds of some, that they are not wanted, is erroneous. Fundamentally the society is a trade organization, and the mere addition of "Ornamental Horticulturists" to the society's title has added but few members.

The national flower shows held in the past have been well supported by the gardeners, and their exhibits have been much appreciated by your society. These exhibitions should be well supported by every one in the allied trades and professions in which we are so much interested, and I trust that many such exhibitions will be held in the future.

Gardeners Who Became Florists.

The relation between the private gardener and the florist is intimate, and is easily traced, for you have only to look in any direction and you will find some of the most successful florists of this country who have graduated from the ranks of private gardeners. It is not my intention to enumerate all of them, any more than it is to omit any names, but a few come to my mind who started their careers as private gardeners, and such training as they then received is admitted by them to have always been a help to them in their business.

Their names, as they come to me at this time, are J. N. May, E. G. Hill, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Thomas Roland, Peter Fisher, F. L. Atkins, A. T. Boddington and C. H. Totty, and, unless I am mistaken, the late Peter Henderson started his career as a private gardener and perhaps gave more and better advice to young men than any one else, and many today, whether florists or gardeners, owe to him a large measure of their success, and all over this broad land his influence is still felt.

The private gardener has done his part in the development and advancement of this country, both directly and indirectly, for, in looking after an estate, he generally takes a keen delight in having his place well kept, growing and producing flowers, vegetables and fruits, and endeavoring to have all this a little better than his neighbor. Then, again, where there are places of this kind the community in general and the trade benefit by it. I have never yet heard any one say that he did not love flowers, no matter how much he might dislike some other things, and those who can not have a large garden can at least imitate those of larger proportions; therefore I claim the work of the gardener has a most refining and broadening influence in every locality, and has done much toward making this a better land and a better world.

Lack of Interest in Hybridizing.

Though the private gardener has done much for horticulture, there remains much he could do, and I refer to the most interesting branch of hybridizing. Something has been done, I admit, but in my opinion he has neglected his opportunities. The cause of all this I am unable to explain, but it occurs to me that the most of it can be laid to indifference or lack of interest, for surely a number of gardeners have the time and conveniences and it can not be said he does not know how. There might have been some excuse for this some twenty or thirty years ago, but conditions have greatly changed since then. I do not mean by this that gardeners are any better today, but there are many more large estates where opportunities present themselves that were not in evidence at that time, and I urge the gardeners to give this more consideration and do their part toward the advancement of horticulture.

One has not to look far to see what can be done. For example, the roses raised by W. H. Walsh in the last few years have startled the world. I am unable to say how much time and thought Mr. Walsh devoted to this work, but if he spent his whole life in it he would feel well repaid in giving to the world varieties of roses that otherwise might never have been born. of the R. H. S. men hold positions of prominence in all parts of the world; one of them is a director of the S. A. F. at this time and another is prominently mentioned for your presidency.

This, it seems to me, at some future time could be started in some good and practical way by the members of this splendid organization. There are men who would be willing to finance such a project; there are plenty of them in the S. A. F., and it would greatly help the florist and gardener in the ever increasing and perplexing question of securing efficient help.

Some may say, "While there are plenty of men coming from the other side, what is the use of all this?" But it must be remembered that a good deal of chaff gets in with the wheat.

Amalgamation with the S. A. F.

I have failed to know the reason why so few gardeners are members of the S. A. F. Perhaps it is because each locality has its own local society and they think that membership in it is all that is necessary and feel content with local conditions, but the effects of such a course are soon evident and their usefulness is likely to be narrowed rather than broadened. If it were possible for all the societies to amalgamate with the S. A. F.—and I see no reason for not doing so—then I believe our local societies would also be incorporated with it and then perhaps the gardeners would become a part of the S. A. F., as in my opinion they should be.

Several attempts have already been made, I believe, to form a gardeners' society and one has been organized, but with what degree of success I do not know. At any rate, I believe the time to be opportune for such a consolidation of florists and gardeners for the best interests of all, and one that would make of our S. A. F. such a national organization as would easily become the greatest of its kind in the world.

In conclusion I might say that I will do all in my power to advance the interests of your society, and will also endeavor to interest as many of my profession as possible and explain to them the broadness and scope of your organization and the good work it is carrying on.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Show Pelargoniums.

The old plants of show pelargoniums which have had several weeks of rest should have been pruned before now. If not already cut back, do so at once. Do not immediately commence to soak them with water, or the chances are that some will rot off altogether. Spray several times a day. When they have commenced to break nicely shake them out, loosen the soil well, cut back the long roots and repot into pots about two sizes smaller than they have been growing in. They can stand outdoors for some time yet, but are better if placed so that sashes can be stood over them in case of drenching rains. A suitable compost is one consisting of two parts fibrous loam and one part old cow manure or spent mushroom manure, with the addition of some sharp sand. Cuttings put in when the plants were headed back root and grow quickly. Keep these potted along, so that they will not become too matted with roots.

Bouvardias.

Bouvardias are somewhat tender winter-flowering plants and they should be lifted and repotted before there is any danger of frost. Do not attempt to lift a large ball, as you will only break off more roots in doing so. It is well to get all possible roots, to pot firmly and to keep sprayed and shaded for a few days, when they will soon strike out new roots and stop wilting. B. Humboldtii flowers naturally outdoors in August and September and some plants can be left out to provide an early crop of flowers, but it is better to stake them up a little; otherwise heavy rain storms will soil the flowers. This bouvardia can be benched in a warm house, and when thus planted it can be relied upon to give a fine crop of flowers on excellent stems until Christmas and will also, if left, give another spring crop. This variety flowers more persistently than any other variety and is sweet scented. Its flowers, also, are larger than those of any other bouvardia.

Rambler Roses.

Do not neglect the watering of rambler roses that are being grown in pots. Remember that they are now growing and rooting strongly, and liquid manure, in addition to copious water supplies, is necessary to finish their growth satisfactorily. Keep the shoots tied up. This is particularly necessary with the pink varieties, which are naturally of a prostrate habit in most cases; at least, Lady Gay, Dorothy Perkins and others are of this class, while Tausendschon is more erect in habit. Even where the ramblers are planted out in the field it pays to tie up the shoots, as the wood then ripens much better. Light fences are as simple a method of support as I have used; this, of course, means a little additional work, but it pays in the long run. Keep rubbing off the surplus shoots which will continue to start from the pink ramblers of the Dorothy Perkins class. Three to five shoots per plant are ample; rub away all others.

French Trumpet Majors.

If you are growing the trumpet narcissi and want a batch for the Christmas holidays, do not depend on the Dutch grown bulbs. These may be had, of course, but it is doubtful whether it pays to force them unduly, as many will not flower, and even at 5 cents and 6 cents per flower, wholesale, they do not pay so well as they would at half these prices three weeks later. The French bulbs have been here for some days and there is no trouble at all in flowering Trumpet Major, Golden Spur and Emperor for Christmas. They are rather shorter stemmed than the Dutch bulbs, but flower satisfactorily and are well worthy of a trial by any who have not yet grown them. They have been imported in larger quantities than usual this season.

Sweet Peas.

Probably sowings of sweet peas have already been made by growers who want an early indoor crop. I have found that while there is an avalanche of mums these do not sell well, but if a crop is timed to come in after Thanksgiving the flowers will be in much more active demand. Judging from inquiries which come to hand from time to time, some beginners in indoor sweet pea culture are yet uncertain as to the best varieties to plant. The Spencer peas are not adapted for early forcing at all; do not plant any of them unless you have ample head room for them and are prepared to wait for a spring crop. Neither are any of the outdoor reliables, such as Dorothy Eckford, Helen Lewis, Frank Dolby, Lady Grisel Hamilton and King Edward VII, of any value to sow now. The race of winter flowering sorts, of which Mont Blanc and Earliest of All were among the first introduced, are what should be sown.

A suitable list has been given many times, but so many new growers are this season essaying sweet pea culture indoors for the first time that it may be well to give a select list of reliable winter bloomers. In white there is Mont Blanc, Christmas White, Florence Denzer and Watchung. In clear pink of varying shades we have Christmas Pink, the most popular variety of all; Mrs. W. W. Smalley, of a satiny shade, and Mrs. Wm. Sim, of a lovely salmon color. Wallacea and Mrs. A. Wallace are splendid lavenders and Flamingo is a good scarlet. Pure white, clear pink and lavender are the shades most in demand.

Sweet peas can be flowered successfully on raised benches, and in the dead of winter they flower satisfactorily if they have the needed head room. Solid beds are, however, what they do best in. They should have a foot of good soil, liberally enriched with cow or stable manure, well decayed. The drainage should be good. If sowing in drills, thin out the seedlings to four inches apart. If they are left unthinned the result will be weak flower stems. Many growers sow in flats and transplant. I prefer this method to sowing in drills. It gives an even row and there is little waste. The rows can be anywhere from three to six feet apart, preferably lengthwise of the house; the more head room, the better. In the case of the wide rows allowance is made for other crops, such as violets, which are pulled out in late winter. Where peas only are grown the rows can be closer.

The question is often asked, "Do winter sweet peas pay well?" Much depends on how the plants are grown and on whether there is a ready retail market for them or not. When they have to be wholesaled, it is doubtful whether they return as much money as some other crops. There is undoubtedly the most money in sweet peas that are sown to flower from the end of February until the outdoor crop comes in. The demand is stronger then, the quality is better and the plants seem to flower much more freely; so, personally, if I were growing sweet peas for a livelihood I would prefer to have them follow some crop which would be cleaned from the end of November to the end of January.

"What temperature should they have?" is an almost every-day query now. They can be grown as low as 40 or 42 degrees at night, but to do their best should have a temperature 5 to 8 degrees higher, and while flowering they should be kept as near 48 to 50 degrees at night as possible. I would not advise anything above 50 degrees, for while they will bloom well in such a temperature they will also run out more quickly and fall a more easy prey to mildew, spider and aphis, all of which must be guarded against.

Freesias.

Most of the freesia bulbs are now at hand. They need not all be planted at once, but the bulbs not potted or placed in flats should be spread out in a cool, dry shed. It does not pay to keep freesias out of the soil very late. Probably you have noticed how much longer and stronger the stems are on the early planted ones than on those started, say in October. Be careful not to overwater after potting. There are many bulbs irretrievably ruined every year by too much water in the early stages of growth, and incidentally many of these failures, due to ignorance of cultural requirements, are charged to the dealers, who are blamed for selling diseased stock.

Calceolarias.

The nights are now getting cooler, and calceolarias, which stand practically still during the torrid weather, are commencing to make some growth. Keep them in a coldframe, with air on the top, bottom and sides. Fumigate or spray to keep aphis in control. They should never really be allowed to get any foothold, as they soon ruin a batch of plants. Take off the sashes in the evening; the heavy night dews at this season are just what they revel in. They have some other enemies, besides green aphis. If snails attack them, use lime. Hand-pick any caterpillars, as poison cannot be used without disfiguring or burning the leaves.

Lilium Candidum.

Lilium candidum usually arrives from August 20 to September 1. Do not leave them in the boxes or baskets a day after receiving them. If you can not pot or plant at once, stand the bulbs in single layers in flats and place them in a cool room. Remember that the Madonna lily, as this is commonly called, started to root and make leaves quite early; not infrequently they will be found in active growth when unpacked. Do not put single bulbs in a pot, as you would Harrisii or longiflorum. Use three to an 8-inch and four or five to a 10-inch pot. Use a compost that is fairly rich, with plenty of sand. Give one soaking of water; then let the soil become quite dry before applying any more. Do not put them in a cellar or under the greenhouse bench. Keep outdoors, but where they can be protected from rains until they are well rooted. Leave them outdoors until they have had several good freezings. Herein lies much of the secret of successful candidum culture. When ordering, insist on being supplied with north-of-France bulbs only; they are the true broad petaled type. The brand commonly offered is a narrow petaled and miserable sort, sufficient to discourage anyone from growing them a second time.

John Cook.

(Rosarian and Dean of the Florists of Baltimore, from a Photograph by Fred Lautenschlager.)

Berried Solanums.

About the last of the month is a good time to dig up and pot the berried solanums, or Jerusalem cherries, and Christmas peppers. Try to retain a little soil on the roots. Soak well with water after potting and give some shade, with abundant spraying, until they stiffen up, which will not take long. Owing to the dry season, the plants may run a little smaller than usual and, except in the more northerly states, the lifting can be delayed until the middle of September if desired. Plants which were pot-grown over summer and which are, or should be, plunged, will want lots of water, and now that berries are becoming numerous and there is more of a drain on the soil, they should have liquid manure twice a week.

ROBERT PYLE IN EUROPE.

[Recollections of an interview with Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., as reported by Phil, The Review's correspondent. Mr. Pyle gives an account of some of his recent experiences in France and England. The illustrations are reproduced from photographs taken by Mr. Pyle himself.]

We sailed June 3, going directly to Paris, where we arrived June 12, in good time for the judging of the roses, June 14. You know I was selected as one of the judges of new roses sent to the Bagatelle for trial, and went at that particular time to keep the appointment. There were twenty-five judges in all—one each from England, Germany, Luxemburg, the Netherlands and America, the remainder from France. The English representative was Arthur William Paul, present head of the firm of William Paul & Son, and son of the founder. The German representative was Peter Lambert, the largest rose grower in Germany. The French rose growers were mostly expert rosarians. The rules provide that one of their number shall be a member of the Chamber of Deputies and that he shall be president of this commission of judges. The American representative was chosen vice-president. But while the commission is organizing I want to tell you something about these rose gardens.

Rose Gardens of the Bagatelle.

Marie Antoinette, the beautiful queen of France, selected about six acres of the Bois de Boulogne, which she set apart for her own use. This tract was laid out and improved and named by the queen "Le Bagatelle." After the downfall of royalty the Bagatelle was sold, but was finally bought by the French government.

Here Monsieur Jules Grevereau, who is one of the present commission of judges, came upon the scene. M. Grevereau is a man of wealth who made money on the Bon Marche before retiring from business. At his invitation Mrs. Pyle and I spent a whole day in his rose gardens and rose museum at L'Haye, ten miles from Paris. This garden is wonderful. It contains a great number of varieties, carefully arranged in groups of families. Then there were standards, pyramids, trellises, arbors, every known way in which the rose can be grown. Marble fountains, with roses, lent their charm to this perfect garden. The museum nearby was also devoted to the rose, showing the part played by the queen of flowers in the arts and sciences; showing, also, the history of the rose, famous pictures of roses (Paul de Longpre was among the artists), the uses to which roses have been put, botany and chemistry in so far as they apply to roses; color, its causes, combinations and possibilities — in short, everything pertaining to the rose. M. Grevereau's office was in the museum. It was evident that he was a busy man.

A Pleasant Surprise.

But the greatest treat of all came as a surprise. When M. Grevereau invited us he indicated a preference for a certain day. We changed our plans to meet his wish, but the reason for his preference was not apparent until some time after he had left us to roam through the garden, when we heard a clapping at one end. We followed the sound and came suddenly on a theater. The stage was of turf elevated to the proper height. Terraces led to the orchestra. In front were rows of velvety turf seats, filled by dainty French ladies in Parisian costumes. There were at least 400 in the audience. Overhead were tall trees, shading the whole theater, while at the side were the lovely trellises of roses; dark evergreens behind the stage completed the picture of rare beauty.

But to return, M. Grevereau, evidently realizing that his own garden would become too small to test the new roses that came out each year, induced the French government to undertake the work at Le Bagatelle. Here new roses are received each year from the introducers. Carefully tested, the good are honored and the poor discarded. The labeling is most carefully burnt on porcelain, clear and enduring; name, date, history and introducer are all shown. Good judgment has been used in the laying out and planting of beds.

When the commission was organized we all went out to judge the roses. They were divided into two groups—those presented in 1910, brought there the year before and now on their second year's trial, and those presented this year for the first time; they were brought here a year ago. The work was a little difficult, as I do not speak French, nor could they speak English, but they were most courteous, and by the aid of an interpreter and close study of the numbers we got on pretty well.

Rose Judging, as Done in France.

The French manner of judging is different from ours. Ten is their highest number of points. These points are awarded on general impression. When opinions differ a vote is taken. For instance, someone proposes that the rose under consideration shall receive eight points; someone else suggests seven; a vote is then taken on the spot. There were from three to six plants of each variety. The awards were made on their appearance on that fourteenth day of June only, although anything that was said by anyone familiar with the variety was listened to with interest. I understand that the French judges assemble once again later in the season, for examination, but not for awards.

When we had finished outdoors, we returned to the Orangery to make the awards. The gold medal was given to two varieties presented this year: Beaute de Lyon Pernetiana, ten points, and Jonkheer J. L. Mock, hybrid tea from Holland, ten points. Two certificates of merit were awarded: To Rayon d'Or Pernetiana, nine points, and to May Miller, hybrid tea, E. G. Hill Co.,

M. Lemoine, of Nancy, France, at the Bagatelle Gardens.

Richmond, Ind., nine points. Some of the varieties were not in bloom and could not be judged.

The English Shows.

We visited three of the leading flower shows in England: The Crystal Palace, the Botanic Gardens and—best of all, from a rosarian's point of view—the Olympic show of the Royal Horticultural Society. The interest taken in them was amazing. The Crystal Palace opened at noon. At ten minutes past twelve there were 2,000 in there. Twenty minutes later there was a row of carriages, motors and buses a square long waiting to discharge their occupants at the entrance. The price of admission was 7 shillings. The crowd at the seedling rose tent in the Olympic show was in double line of twenty-five all day; that is, fifty people were waiting to get into the tents all the time. When inside they walked around a table twenty feet long and then out again. This was only one small tent in a large show.

The exhibits were numerous and fine. At the Olympic show there were twelve entries in the class for seventy-two varieties, and as many entries in the classes for thirty-six varieties and in in the class for twenty-four. Most of the varieties shown were garden sorts. Visitors frequently took down notes, while many of the exhibitors did a thriving business.

The arrangements were interesting. Carter had a Japanese garden in which every detail was thoroughly carried out. A table decoration with a single bowl of Lyon roses was effective.

You know the shows present an unusual opportunity for advertising, which the large firms use to the utmost. Many of them keep a dozen men constantly employed on exhibition work during the show season. Hugh Dickson told me that he had crossed the channel eleven times in fourteen days, taking flowers from his nurseries near Belfast, Ireland, to the English shows.

Preparing Roses for Exhibition.

I was surprised at the labor that is expended on the roses that are to be shown. At some of the nurseries the men go out as early as 4 o'clock in the morning to cut and prepare the roses.

William Paul, Waltham Cross, England, and his Juliet Rose.

A piece of candle wick is often wrapped about a promising bud that is likely to be ready ahead of time. This holds the bud firmly without squeezing it. It is allowed to remain on after the flower is cut and is removed five minutes before the judges begin work; so the rose is judged at its best. Another device used is a cone-shaped cover that will transmit light, but not heat. By the aid of a spring and stick this shade can be adjusted at any height desired over the bud that is intended for exhibition. Everything that is fit is cut by the men. Then it is brought before the head of the establishment, who decides whether it shall or shall not go to the exhibition.

I was impressed by the love for and knowledge of plants shown by the English people. The man of business who has a half holiday often works in his garden. He goes there when he is through with his work in the evening. I was asked questions by amateurs that showed me that they knew more than I did about the plants in their gardens. I am inclined to think that there are ten amateur gardeners in England today to every one in this country.

STEM-ROT OF ASTERS.

Having read the communication of D. R. in The Review of August 3, page 14, I wish to say that I had about the same trouble as D. R., except that my asters are outdoors. They are of the American late branching type. They were doing well up to the time of the opening of the buds, when the buds commenced to wilt. On pulling up the plants I found that the stems just at the surface of the soil on some, and on others about two inches above, had the appearance of dry rot. They were planted in good, rich soil and received good cultivation from the time of starting. Would you kindly tell me the cause of the trouble?

A. A.

The stem-rot with which your plants have been troubled is undoubtedly caused by a fungus, the origin of which is not properly known, but it is generally believed to have its inception in the seed bed. The asters thus attacked wilt and finally die. An examination of the stems shows them to be discolored and rotten just above the soil. From the fact that experiments made have shown outdoor-raised asters to be almost immune from this disease, the theory which is the most plausible would seem to be that seedlings raised under glass contract the trouble in the seed flats or benches, or even after transplantation. Overcrowding in the seed flats, a too long delay in pricking off the little plants and burying the stems too deeply will all undoubtedly tend to promote stem-rot.

It is perhaps curious that plants affected with this trouble in the seedling stage should fail to show signs of it until so far advanced in growth, but other plants besides asters act in just this same way. I regret inability to suggest any remedy for stem-rot when once it has appeared, but think it can be avoided if great care is taken with the seedlings. Sow rather thinly in coldframes or outdoors. Do not let the seedlings become drawn or crowded and give them, whenever possible, fresh ground each year. Never plant asters a second time on ground on which stem-rot has appeared. C. W.

ROBERT J. WINDLER.

Robert J. Windler, who was elected president of the St. Louis Florists' Club, August 10, is one of the young hustlers of the club and deserves the high honors bestowed upon him by the members.

He was born in St. Louis twenty-seven years ago. Fifty years ago his grandfather built a greenhouse for his own private use, which his father afterward turned into a commercial place and which became the nucleus of what is now a good-sized plant, conducted by his brother, George. Robert J. is, therefore, a born florist. His retail store, which he opened six years ago at 2300 South Grand avenue, is one of the leading flower stores in that part of the city.

In selecting Mr. Windler as presiding officer of the club for the coming year, the members made no mistake, as he has already demonstrated his executive ability, and there is no doubt that the affairs of the club will be wisely and successfully directed by him, as they have been for the last twenty-five years by his predecessors.

PANSIES FOR SPRING TRADE.

Improvement in Size and Beauty.

As bedding plants, pansies seem to be steadily increasing in popularity. This is not at all surprising. They are easily raised from seed; they are either winter hardy or can be carried over with the aid of coldframes; they flower early, soon after winter's snows have melted, and if given a reasonable amount of care will flower more or less all summer. The plants, also, are floriferous and the improvement in the strains has not only given us larger flowers, but the increase in size, so far from giving us coarser blooms, has rather made their appearance more refined. Some there are, and the numbers of such are on the increase, who do not love the pansies as they do the violas. The latter are smaller, it is true, but they are splendid to use as a groundwork for bulbous plants, and anyone who has seen them in the public parks of London, Glasgow or Edinburgh must have been carried away with their beauty and have wished that it were possible to flower them in the same way here.

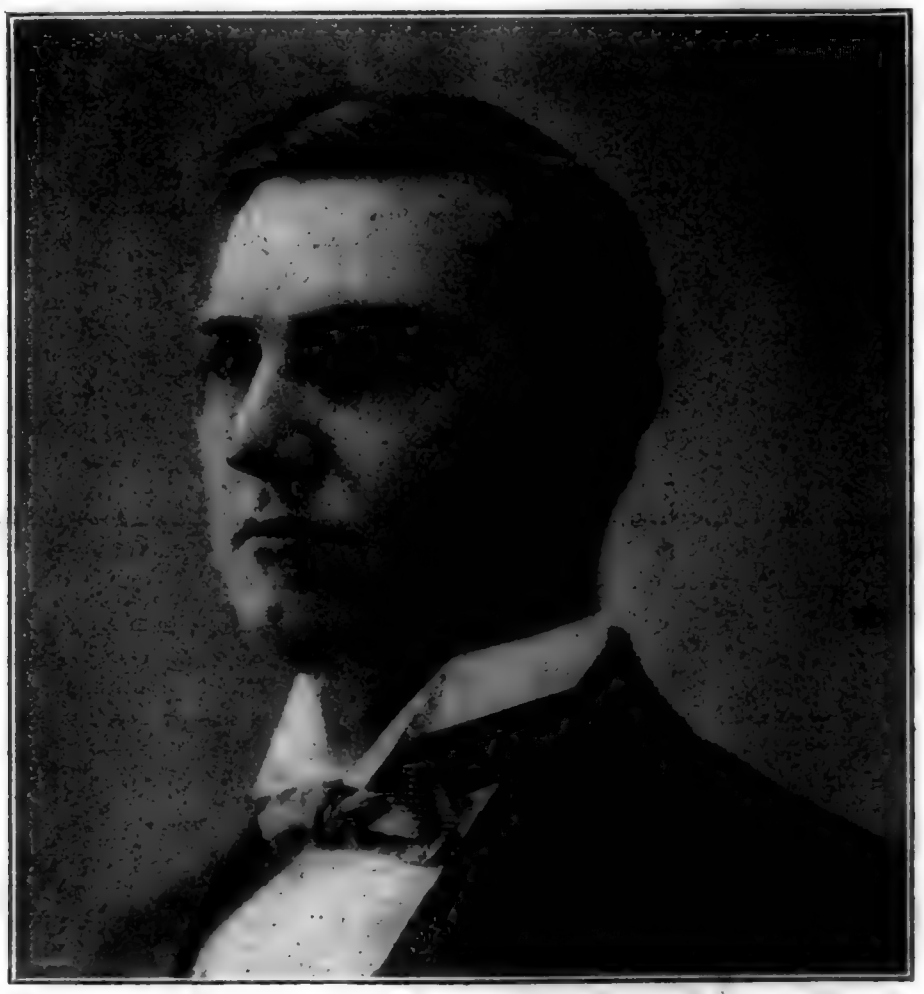
There are a good many people who, if they purchase any flowering plants at all in spring, will select pansies, and the retail florist who can grow a few thousands of them and put them up attractively in little baskets for his customers will have little trouble in disposing of them. While there are some who would buy baskets of one special color, there are probably ten times the number who would prefer a mixture of colors, and for this reason nearly all the big specialists in pansies grow mixtures principally. It would, however, pay to grow separate shades, where the grower could use them in beds for special color effects.

Sowing the Seed.

Seed will have been sown before now in nearly all sections, but if there are any who have omitted doing so, there is still time to get nice little plants before fall, especially in states south of New York, for pansies are cool and moisture-loving subjects and make their most rapid growth after the end of August, when cool nights with heavy dews are our lot. Reference has been made in previous issues of The Review to the best varieties of pansies to grow, and if seed is secured from a reliable dealer little fear need be felt on this score.

Some growers, especially those who want at most a few thousands of plants, sow in coldframes, but the big specialists, who handle many hundreds of thousands, sow outdoors. Excellent plants can be produced by either method if care is taken in the preparation of the soil and the soil is artificially watered, shaded, or, better still, moistened from the skies. It pays to mulch the seed beds with straw or hay when they are outdoors, removing the covering gradually as the seeds germinate. Straw is better than hay, as it gives fewer weed seeds. If the beds are kept moist and the soil has been well pulverized in advance, the little pansies should be nicely up in ten to fourteen days.

Culture in the Field.



Even in the cold northern states on the Atlantic seaboard pansies can be successfully wintered outdoors, and noted specialists, like the late D. Zirngiebel, who was one of the pioneers in pansy culture on a large scale, and all others who raise them in large quantities, sow outdoors and also winter their plants in the open, except in the case of some choice, special strains.

Some there are who sow thinly and do not transplant, but if strong plants are wanted they must be given a reasonable amount of room to grow in. Where space is limited, well enriched beds three and one-half feet wide answer well. Each bed can contain six rows and the plants can be four inches apart in the rows. Grown thus, they have a chance to develop into strong flowering plants. If field space is more abundant, rows fifteen inches apart, to permit the use of a hand cultivator, answer well. Wherever transplanted, it is safest to use ground with at least a gentle slope, where water will not stand. The plants should be kept stirred while the growing season lasts, and the winter covering should not go on until the ground is hard frozen. Do not mulch heavily. For covering, straw, meadow hay, leaves and pine needles are all excellent. Where the two latter are abundant and can be held in place with brush of some kind or with corn stalks, there is nothing better, but straw or hay is generally used on big plantings.

Wintering Them in Frames.

It is far better, however, for the small grower to winter his plants in coldframes. By using soil well enriched with rotted manure, grand plants can be obtained with trifling care. Transplant them to the frames when of sufficient size. A sash 3x6 will give ample space for 200 plants. Keep them weeded and watered and exposed to the weather until sharp frost tightens the ground. Then give a light covering of perfectly dry pine needles or leaves and put on the sashes. If a warm spell occurs in winter, air out a little, but in the colder states they will need no attention until early in March, when the covering can be removed, the soil loosened and the beds soaked with water. The plants will be as fresh and green as when covered up, unless the mulch has become wet, which causes them to damp off.

The man who wants an early lot of pansies can lift them from his frames and plant them in a cool house. He always has an advantage over those whose stock is outdoors. Climatic conditions can not affect his plants in the least and he will have plants in flower considerably earlier than when they are outdoor grown. Also, if his beds have been properly enriched, he will have larger and more luxuriant plants. The pansy loves a cool, moist and rich soil, and if fancy flowers are desired a lot of water must be given. No fire heat is needed for them at any time, unles winter flowers are wanted.

Robert J. Windler.
(President-elect St. Louis Florists' Club.)

There are probably more pansy plants sold than of geraniums, coleus and alternantheras combined. They are not likely to wane in popular favor, as anyone can grow them, and the fact that their flowers come so soon after winter has passed makes them appeal to every flower lover, and the florist who stocks up heavily on pansies for 1912 will make a most excellent investment.

RAWLINGS' PANSIES.

Doubtless the bulk of the pansy seed still comes from Germany, but at many widely separated places in the United States florists are building up a profitable side line in growing pansy seeds for sale to the trade. In the majority of cases the seed industry has grown from the business of supplying pansy plants in spring. Thousands of florists sell baskets of pansy plants at planting time. Many buy these baskets, ready for sale, from a grower who produces pansy plants in quantity. Where a florist is supplying a large list of other florists with these baskets of pansy plants, and when he works up a first-class strain, he begins to receive inquiries for the seed. Pretty soon the sale of seed becomes almost as important an item as the sale of plants. It was thus with Elmer Rawlings, of Olean, N. Y. He has been twenty years at it.

One of the accompanying illustrations shows a partial view of one of Mr. Rawlings' field beds of pansies, from a photograph taken June 26, which was a little late for the best showing of bloom. The other picture shows his dark strain. Mr. Rawlings grows quite a list of named sorts and has worked up several private strains through the testing of everything new that appears in the pansy world.

WINTERING DUTCH BULBS.

If Dutch bulbs are kept over winter in a dry cellar, how deep should they be covered with ashes or soil? Will they not start too early if wanted for Easter? Is it best to keep them outside until cold weather sets in? I live in New York state. M. B.

Easter Sunday comes April 7 next year. If you wish to keep hyacinths, tulips and narcissi until that time, they must be held quite cool. It is a common practice to stand them outdoors after placing them in pots, pans or flats, to keep them well watered and stand them in a frame, where they can be covered sufficiently deep with ashes or loam to exclude frost, with the assistance of a covering of straw. This plan may answer well, but there are some objections to it. You can not tell in what condition your bulbs are, either in growth or in regard to moisture, and it is sometimes disagreeable to take them out. If you have a cold, dry cellar, I would advise placing them there, in preference to outdoors. Do not cover them too soon with ashes or soil. Keep them well watered until covered. You can hold your bulbs in such a cellar perfectly well in your latitude. C. W.

GIGANTEUM PLANTS DIE.

Will you please tell me the best way to handle Lilium giganteum? I have planted them the last two years and have grown them as high as two feet, when the foliage would start to turn yellow and the whole plant would decay. On digging them up, I would find them full of little white lice. I have noticed the same lice on the imported bulbs before being planted. Is there any way of killing them, without hurting the bulbs? A. A.

Lilium longiflorum giganteum is now much the most widely grown form of the Easter lily. The bulbs do not arrive as early as the other types, and when we get an early Easter they need quite hard forcing to flower them on time. The lice referred to I do not know about. Should you see them again, I would advise rolling the bulbs in flowers of sulphur before potting. Should they appear in spite of this, water the plants with tobacco water. You can soak tobacco stems and use the liquid, or dilute one of the special nicotine preparations.

Pot the giganteums as soon as you get them. Use 5-inch and 6-inch pots, according to the size of the bulbs; generally 5-inch ones are used. Do not make the mistake of starting them too cool. Place them in a temperature of 55 degrees at night in a cellar, in a shed or under a greenhouse bench, clear of drip. After the first watering keep them on the dry side until the pots are nicely filled with roots, and shoots are appearing; then give them a mimimum temperature of 65 degrees right along, and even more if necessary after the buds show. Do not try to grow giganteums cool. They like plenty of heat and half the failures are due to a lack of a proper realization of this fact. C. W.

A WIND STORM IN INDIANA.

Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., reports that on Saturday, August 12, a cyclone struck his place and wrecked a greenhouse 42x300, built this summer. The two accompanying illustrations, reproduced from photographs submitted by Mr. Rasmussen, show the effect of the storm. The glass, however, had been removed before the photographs were taken.

"We saved," Mr. Rasmussen says, "about 125 boxes of the glass and about seventy-five per cent of the wood and iron work. This house was built with concrete walls, with 1½-inch pipe posts imbedded in the concrete, and also with three rows of 1½-inch posts supporting the roof, and truss work supporting the purlins. The 1½-inch posts were also braced both ways with 5-16-inch iron rods. You will notice, from the pictures, how the posts and everything else were bent and twisted. The storm took in only a narrow area, but uprooted large trees in its path. We are thankful that it struck only a corner of our place. We will rebuild at once and replace the one house destroyed with two houses, 35x300 and 31 x300. We figure our loss in building and stock at from $2,500 to $3,000, with no insurance. We have repeatedly tried to get cyclone insurance, but can get no company to take the risk on the glass."

HARDY ANNUALS.

For Winter Flowering.

European visitors who were here at the time of the Boston S. A. F. National Show commented on the immense ranges of glass they had seen that were devoted exclusively to the culture of roses and carnations, and while speaking in terms of the highest praise of their splendid culture they spoke at the same time of the overwhelming proponderance of those two flowers and the lack of variety in cut flowers, as compared with the European markets. We are yearly growing a wider variety of flowers in winter, however, and the growers in many cases would be willing to try batches of what are still practically novelties if the retailers could be depended upon to purchase them, push their sale and give them proper encouragement. There are certain progressive retail florists who are constantly on the lookout for something out of the beaten track, but still many seem unable to see beauty or profit in any flowers beyond roses, carnations, mums, violets and bulbous stock.

Tender annuals fill an important place, especially as pot plants, but for bench culture the so-called hardy annuals, varieties such as are commonly cultivated in summer outdoors, give us quite a wide range of selection. Of these, sweet peas, mignonette, ten weeks' stocks and one or two others hardly need mention, as they are already sufficiently known. In sweet peas alone what an advance has been made! A decade ago they were practically unknown as a winter flower in the big markets, while now they are purchasable every day in the year, and during at least half that period are more popular than even carnations themselves, and their culture is increasing with leaps and bounds.

A few of the annuals which are being grown to some extent for winter and spring flowering are: Antirrhinums, larkspurs, lupines, schizanthus, cornflowers or centaureas, calendulas, candytuft, leptosyne, salpiglossis, sweet alyssum, dimorphotheca and nasturtiums. To these might be added zinnias, chrysanthemums, godetias, clarkias and Drummond phlox, which are grown, but only to a minor extent and chiefly for Memorial day trade. A number of these annuals are now seen in the big markets and are eagerly purchased, but there is room for many more, especially in the early spring, when critical buyers demand a change from the ominipresent roses and carnations. For the benefit of growers who are looking for some desirable catch crop or for something new to try, I shall briefly refer to some of the more important of these hardy annuals.

Antirrhinums.

Comparatively few antirrhinums were grown under glass a dozen years ago. Now they are one of the staple winter and spring flowers, and the present season, judging from the numerous inquiries received, will see more of them grown under glass than ever before. Their culture has been often described in these columns, so it will suffice to say that they may be flowered inside from November until June, that they may be propagated from either seeds or cuttings, that they grow well in a night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees and need just such a soil as roses and carnations thrive in. Seed may be sown now. The plants will not give much bloom before February. For an earlier crop the plants should be bought. For a Memorial day crop sow seeds early in February and bench about the end of March. The tall varieties are the best for indoor culture. The popular colors are pink, white, yellow and scarlet.

Schizanthus.

Schizanthus has become quite popular of late years, especially for pot culture, for which it is well adapted. As a bench plant it cannot be recommended, as it seems to grow stockier and flower more freely with the roots confined. S. Wisetonensis is the popular pot variety. It is much dwarfer than grandiflorus oculatus and retusus albus. Sow in pans or flats. Pot off singly and keep pinched for some time, to get nice, bushy, stocky plants. Grow in a light and cool house. Schizanthus cannot be forced hard. They may be flowered from Christmas until June, and are especially useful in March and April. The flowers last splendidly when cut and are excellent for use in vases or for table centerpieces. A temperature of 45 degrees at night is better for these than 50 degrees.

Lupines.

Sown now in four to five inches of soil in a light, airy house, the annual pink lupine will flower for Christmas. A successional batch, put in near the end of October, will prove useful in February and March. This is a charming annual and its color makes it sell on sight. L. Hartwegii, white and blue, will not flower satisfactorily at Christmas. They need a longer season than the pink variety already named, and as they are of more robust growth should be sown more thinly. In midwinter, care in watering is necessary, as an oversupply will cause damping off, while mildew is sometimes caused by careless ventilation or spraying overhead. A temperature of 45 degrees at night and a rather dry atmosphere suit lupines. Their spikes may be arranged beautifully in vases. The Hartwegii section, after the first spikes are cut, will branch out from the bottom and throw a fine second crop.

Calendulas.

The pot marigold, Calendula officinalis, is a common and easily cultivated annual. There are few varieties which grow and flower more easily or more persistently. Orange King, deep orange, and Lemon Queen, clear lemon yellow, are the two best varieties. Sown in a bench now, they will be in flower for Christmas. Give the plants sufficient space, as they spread considerably. If the flowers are kept closely cut, the plants will flower the whole winter. The stems will not be long, but bunches have sold well during the last two winters and springs. One of the best benches of calendulas seen was at the cool end of a carnation house, in a temperature averaging 50 degrees at night, but they can be successfully grown a few degrees cooler.

Dimorphotheca.

The dimorphotheca, when introduced some two or three years ago, created quite a sensation. It is a native of Namaqualand, South Africa, and has a neat branching habit. The rich orange flowers and darker disks of D. aurantiaca, which is the best known variety, are marguerite-like and are conspicuous. Few annuals will flower more quickly from seed. In spring six weeks is sufficient to bloom it. The flowers last well when cut; the only objection to them is that they close on dull days and at night. When cut a couple of days, however, the flowers remain expanded and for so fragile looking a flower they last surprisingly. A narrow bench suits dimorphothecas. If a carnation bench is unavailable, try them for a catch crop. Keep the flowers closely picked and they will bloom a long time.

Larkspurs.

The annual larkspurs are not so well known, and hence are not so largely grown as their qualities would seem to warrant. Not even as an outdoor annual are they properly appreciated, while under glass they are still, with nineteen out of twenty, an unknown quantity. Their culture does not greatly differ from that of antirrhinums. Sow in flats, pot off singly and plant in beds or benches nine to twelve inches apart each way. Pinch out the first spike as it appears. This will give better branching plants. Under glass these annuals grow four to five feet high, or even higher, and give a wonderful amount of cutting. They are best in quality when flowered from February to the end of May. Sow now for a February crop. For Memorial day the seed can go in about February 20. Excellent colors to grow are pink, rosy scarlet, pure white and lavender. These annuals can be cut with long stems, last well in water and are decorative. They make an excellent crop for Memorial day.

Salpiglossis.

Salpiglossis is only seen on the markets to a limited extent during the spring season. It is more tender than other varieties already referred to and can be grown 5 degrees warmer, a night temperature of 52 to 56 degrees seeming to suit it. It is best to sow it in a temperature of 60 degrees and to prick off in flats or pot singly, rather than sow directly in the benches. The plants can be grown quite close together, as they are not of a branching or dense habit. The salpiglossis is a rather easily damaged flower and is not suitable for anything but short shipdents. It is attractive in a cut state and a vase containing a mixture of colors rivets attention at once. Most flowers look best in separate shades of color, but salpiglossis in mixture is quite pleasing, the colors not appearing to clash.

Nasturtiums.

Nasturtiums are everybody's flower outdoors, their ease of culture and floriferousness being great points in their favor. They are not much grown under glass, but they are easily grown and for a late winter and spring crop are quite acceptable. To flower early, the roots must be restricted. If planted in a bed or bench, they will not flower at all. If in pots and allowed to root through the bottom, they will bloom abundantly. They are better if propagated from cuttings, which can be taken now from the outdoor plants. Seedlings seem to run too much to growth. The brilliant scarlet variety is the best, but, of course, any other shade can be grown. Posts in the carnation or other houses, or strings run along the rafters, are suitable to tie them to. Of course, tall varieties only are worthy of culture. A temperature of 45 to 55 degrees at night is suitable, the latter for early flowering.

Centaureas.

The well known blue cornflower or bachelor's button, Centaurea Cyanus, is quite a familiar object in the flower markets, both in spring and summer. It is, in fact, to be seen nearly all winter in one or two cities, the demand for it being quite constant, and it is rated as a profitable crop. Both the single and double blue form of Emperor William are in favor; the double is considerably in evidence this season. This centaurea likes a light, airy and fairly cool house, 45 to 48 degrees at night suiting it better than the fifties. Sown thinly in benches, it does well. In winter it requires careful watering and should not be hosed overhead. Keep the soil sweet and often stirred, to prevent damping off. C. moschata, the sweet sultan, has been tried to some extent under glass during the last two or three years. It does well grown a little warmer than C. Cyanus. Under glass it is not stung by the tarnished plant bug, and while it will not bloom like the old cornflower, its flowers bring a more fancy price. Seed must be sown much more thinly than in the case of C. Cyanus. There are yellow, white and lilac colors, all of which sell well.

THE NEEDED NUMBER OF MEN.

Can you inform me how many men would be needed to run 75,000 square feet of glass, where a general line of plants is grown for commercial use? Of course, the number would be a little different at different times of the year.

J. T.

The number of men required for a place of 75,000 square feet of glass would vary considerably in accordance with the kind of stock grown and the nature of the trade—whether wholesale or a combination of wholesale and retail. If specialties are grown for the wholesale trade, eight to ten men could handle it readily, but if the trade is mostly retail several more hands could be used during the busy season.

Geraniums

GERANIUM STEMS EATEN.

I noticed in The Review of August 3, page 12, the inquiry by A. P. in regard to the wilting of his Alphonse Ricard geraniums. He says that on examining his plants to ascertain the cause, he found the stems eaten completely hollow and scores of little, white, ant-like insects in them. Now, whatever may be the name of the pests that have thus been eating the stems, The Review's reply to A. P.'s inquiry suggests remedies that will probably answer the purpose and my experience may not throw any additional light on the matter. However, last April and May I had the same trouble with my Ricard geraniums as A. P. had. Upon examination, I found some small white worms, about a quarter of an inch long, which work in the decayed boards of the wooden benches and also tunnel a passage down the posts to the ground. The worms that worked on my geraniums finally got wings. These pests have bothered me considerably, though they did not molest the plants a great deal till last year, but worked around mostly in the soil of the pots and in the sand on the benches. R. K. S.

DISEASED GERANIUM LEAVES.

Enclosed you will find some leaves of geraniums. Will you please tell me what is the trouble with them? They are from plants growing inside on raised benches, in soil composed of a clay loam mixed with a little thoroughly rotted cow manure, with some sand scratched into the top to keep the soil from crusting over. I have been over them twice and picked off all the affected leaves I could find, and they seemed to do nicely for a time, but after a little they commenced to show spots on the leaves and the affected leaves dried right up. I wish you would also tell me what is the proper distance apart in benches to set stock plants for cuttings. G. L. E.

It is difficult to diagnose the cause of the geranium leaves becoming so much diseased, without knowing something of the cultural conditions. Probably you have attended to them carefully. Even with the best of care these plants, considered so easy of culture, will sometimes give us trouble, both under glass and outdoors. Your soil would seem to be suitable and you have no doubt given water whenever needed. No great harm is done in allowing the soil to dry out well. This prevents the growths becoming too soft and cuttings from such wood root more freely. I wonder if you make a habit of hosing your plants overhead once or more daily, and especially of having them damp at nightfall. This is not good for them and will cause leaf-spot to develop quickly. Do any syringing early in the day. As a general rule, geraniums do not need any damping overhead, but under glass red spider and thrips will frequently attack them where this is not done at least two or three times a week during hot weather.

I do not look upon this as a serious trouble. Pick off the affected leaves. Give the benches a good watering with soot water, using soft coal soot, or use nitrate of soda, one pound to fifty gallons of water, to brace them up, or give a light top-dressing of fine bone, scratching it into the soil before watering. Ventilate freely, but during hot days the atmosphere will be better with the side ventilators closed, or nearly so, unless the house is a small one.

You will find 12x15 inches a suitable distance apart in benches for the stock plants, if you are taking cuttings as fast as they are sizable enough. If you take the cuttings closely, 12x12 should answer well. Where you allow them to develop for several months, however, without doing any propagating, as in the hot months, it would be better to allow them 15x15 inches. C. W.

WINTER IN MIDSUMMER.

During the scorchingly, stiflingly, overpoweringly hot weather in the early part of this summer, many sufferers undoubtedly sighed, with more or less sincerity, for "a lodge in some vast wilderness" of snow, for a temporary dwelling place near—but not too near—the arctic regions. Or they may have longed for a perch on some icy mountain peak, where change of altitude, not latitude, would produce the desired effect. Comparatively few, however, were able to gratify this wish as literally as did Sydney B. Wertheimer, of Wertheimer Bros., as shown in the photograph here reproduced. The scene, as pictured, formed a part of Mr. Wertheimer's experience last month, during his European trip. The peculiar mingling of summer and winter conditions in the incident are sufficient explanation of the mingling of summer and winter styles in Mr. Wertheimer's garb; the combination of overcoat and straw hat is exactly in accord with the circumstances of the case.

With reference to the photograph, Mr. Wertheimer writes: "Mer de Glace, Switzerland, July 30, 1911.—This is no pipe dream, but real ice. The intrepid explorer is seen crossing the glacier accompanied by Pierre, his faithful guide. (All moving picture rights reserved.) Pierre is a local florist; he gathers edelweiss. Will return in August and will be at the convention. Kind regards."

And, in accordance with his plans, he sailed for America a few days later, arrived at New York August 14 and attended the convention—fresh from the ice, as it were, and full of fresh ideas for the trade.

TIME TO WATER PLANTS.

Is it beneficial or injurious to water mums or carnations in the evening, say at 5 o'clock, at this time of the year?

J. A. & S.

During June and July the afternoon or evening is an excellent time to water carnations, mums and other crops under glass. The nights then are warm, with little moisture in the air. During August, while many of the nights may be warm, the average is considerably lower than in July; the nights are also damp from heavy dews and it is not good policy to delay watering any of the greenhouse crops until late afternoon or evening; morning is the best time to water. Whenever it is done, the foliage should be quite dry before nightfall. If the leaves lie wet over night on the mums, bacteria will appear on the foliage and similar trouble is more than likely on your carnations. C. W.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Joplin, Mo.—R. K. Troutman is successor to Edward Teas, on North Wall street.

Dalton, Ill.—Franklin B. Sears is building an addition to his greenhouses on Depot street.

Sheridan, Wyo.—Loucks & Caple will build a greenhouse on the land which they recently purchased on Badger street.

Mantorville, Minn.—W. E. Fryer, proprietor of the Dodge County Nursery, has become an iris enthusiast and now has over 500 varieties.

Moberly, Mo.—Mrs. R. S. Estill's new chrysanthemum house has been completed and stocked and there are prospects of an excellent crop in the fall. Her husband has now assumed the management of the growing end of the business, instead of Carl A. Claeson, her former greenhouse man.

Castorland, N. Y.—The Climax Manufacturing Co. has incorporated to manufacture and deal in florists' paper boxes, etc. Capital stock, $15,000. Incorporators: Samuel L. Hirschey, Urban C. Hirschey and Henry A. Einbeck. During the last year the plant has been materially enlarged and the business increased.

Eureka Springs, Ark.—Clayton I. Poor has removed his greenhouses to higher ground. He believes that in a hilly region, such as this, greenhouses should be built on an elevation rather than in a gulch, as the low places are damp, chilly and unsuitable for rose culture. He has added a vegetable house this season and is now growing carnations, roses, chrysanthemums and vegetables.

Elmira, N. Y.—Richard King, superintendent of the United States Cut Flower Co., has added two new carnation houses, each 36x300, furnished by the King Construction Co. and designed according to that firm's latest model, which includes the new iron-pipe bench, with 1-inch uprights and ¾-inch cross pieces. With these new houses, the total glass area here is 200,000 square feet and more building will probably be done next year.

Owego, N. Y.—A. J. Thomas & Sons is the name of the newly organized firm here, which consists of the two sons of the veteran founder of this flourishing business. Mr. Thomas, Sr., feels he can safely resign and give the boys a deserved chance. The boilers gave out just at the time the change was about to be made, so the first job was to look around for a good boiler, which is now being set up. The mums here look well, especially the early kinds.

Lee, Mass.—A greenhouse is being erected for C. S. Mellen, at Council Grove.

Goshen, N. Y.—George F. Richards succeeds to the business established by his father, and is preparing for a good season.

Waverley, Mass.—The W. W. Edgar Co. grows Begonia Lorraine to perfection and in large numbers. This is one of the up-to-date plant establishments.

Barre, Vt.—A. Emslie, on the Montpelier road, is renovating his greenhouses by tearing down the old walls and putting in iron posts, set in concrete.

Lincoln, Neb.—Work has been begun on the new five-story building for Chapin Bros. It will be a handsome structure, faced with buff-colored pressed brick.

Dalton, Mass.—Edward Dolby, gardener to Zenas Crane, has a choice collection of orchids, among which, it is said, is a specimen of Cœlogyne cristata that measures six feet across, grown oval in shape.

Houston, Texas.—Edward Teas, whose headquarters were formerly at Joplin, Mo., has removed to the Scanlan building, in this city. His successor at Joplin is R. K. Troutman. Besides the Westmoreland Farms, near this city, Mr. Teas has grounds at Joplin and at Pasadena, Tex.

Decatur, Ind.—E. S. Moses, of the firm of Ernsberger Bros. & Moses, has purchased the interest of his partners in the business and is at present sole owner and manager. It is stated, however, that about September 1 he will sell to his nephew, Dale Moses, a three-fifths interest in the establishment.

Bellevue, O.—R. C. Arlin has erected an iron-frame greenhouse, 24x125, with concrete walls, at his property on South West street, to take the place of some old houses that had been removed. Both Mr. and Mrs. Arlin are expert florists and they have built up an excellent trade since coming to this town.

Sheridan, Wyo.—L. M. Best, proprietor of the Best Floral Co., has opened a store on East Loucks street, west of the federal building. He handles flowers, fruits and vegetables, besides cigars, stationery and other side lines. He already has three greenhouses, including a radish house which was completed last spring, and the glass has been ordered for five more vegetable houses. Three of these will be used for lettuce, one for cucumbers and one for tomatoes.

Sharon, Pa.—C. B. Service has retired from the florists' trade and is now engaged in the insurance business.

Calumet, Mich.—Harper & Thomas, the florists and undertakers, are well equipped for business in both departments and their trade is increasing.

Chicopee Falls, Mass.—Frank Burfitt has purchased a fine plot of land, with the intention of erecting a range of glass for retail purposes shortly.

Peabody, Mass.—J. M. Ward & Co. are rebuilding and adding several houses, one of them for cyclamens, which are a specialty with this firm and cleverly grown.

Lincoln, Ill.—Otto Heimbreiker has built a 100-foot addition to his greenhouses, on West Tenth street. He is pushing rapidly to the front in the local field as a wholesale and retail dealer in plants.

Waynesboro, Pa.—Henry Eichholz has sold a scarlet carnation seedling to Philip B. Welsh, of Glen Morris, Md. Mr. Welsh had grown the variety for two years on his own place before purchasing it.

Champaign, Ill.—J. Landau, the landscape gardener, is looking forward to an especially busy fall season, as he already has contracts with the owners of various private estates, especially in the vicinity of Edwardsville.

Clinton, N. Y.—Kilbourn & Williams are adding to their plant a new greenhouse, 30x150 feet, which will give them a total of about one-half acre under glass. The new house is to be devoted exclusively to the growing of asparagus ferns.

Quincy, Ill.—F. W. Heckenkamp, Jr., has purchased a tract of ground at the corner of Fifth avenue and Jackson street and will cover 20,000 square feet of the space with glass. The necessary grading of the site will be done this fall and work on the buildings will begin in February. The glass is already on the ground.

Corning, N. Y.—A. H. Woeppel, when the writer called, was busy disbudding early mums to one and two shoots, making it the rule not to allow the center bud to set until August. Stock here is in excellent shape. The first cuttings of geraniums were being taken off. It is intended that a new house will be ready for this stock before the snow flies. Of roses, Richmond is in its fourth year and was breaking well; this, with Killarney, White Killarney and My Maryland, forms his quartet. With a 15-acre tract of choice fibrous loam, the soil problem is settled for a while.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1911: President, George Asmus, Chicago; vice-president, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Annual convention, Chicago, Ill., August 13 to 16, 1912.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

RED ruscus is having a big sale with the supply houses and promises to be widely popular the coming season.

WAS there even one plant, in the great Baltimore exhibition, of that old favorite, Latania Borbonica? If so, nobody noticed it.

WHAT city wants the third triennial National Flower Show? The question was asked in April, but has had no answer. No one appears to care for the job of equaling F. R. Pierson's record at Boston.

WHILE the S. A. F. was in convention the Director of the Census issued a bulletin giving the population of Baltimore and suburbs as 647,884. Baltimore is the Monumental City to the rest of the United States, but the people there prefer it to be called "the Metropolis of the South." The florists of Baltimore certainly have demonstrated that they do things in a metropolitan manner, as well as in open-handed southern style. All those who were at Baltimore last week agree that Baltimore and Baltimoreans are all right, all right!

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

As no objections have been filed, public notice is hereby given that the registration of the begonia, Betty Anderson, by S. A. Anderson, of Buffalo, N. Y., becomes complete.

OBITUARY.

Archibald Smith.

Archibald Smith, the English seedsman, died at Oxford, England, August 2, at the age of 51 years. He had suffered for some time from heart trouble. He was born at Stranraer, Scotland, where his father carried on a nursery and seed business. In early life he came to America, where he lived for many years and was widely and favorably known in the trade. He returned to his native island a few years ago and commenced business on his own account at Oxford.

Fred C. Chapman.

Fred C. Chapman, one of the pioneer florists of Grand Rapids, Mich., and one of the oldest residents of Madison Square, died August 17, at his home at Madison avenue and Crawford street, at the age of 75 years. He was born at Stamford, England, and came to the United States in 1880, making his home at Grand Rapids. He established the first greenhouses in that city, which were located on Madison avenue, on the site of the greenhouses of Crabb & Hunter. In 1882 he moved his place of business and residence to Madison avenue and Crawford street. The same year he opened a downtown retail store on Monroe street. He continued to be one of the most successful florists in the city until he retired from business about eight years ago. He is survived by a widow and a son, F. C. Chapman, of Madison, Wis.

Mrs. Jane Buxton.

Mrs. Jane Buxton, who for many years conducted the Riverside Greenhouses, at Bridgeton, R. I., died at her home in that place August 16, in the sixty-ninth year of her age. She was the widow of Reuben A. Buxton and had carried on the business established by him. She was taken suddenly ill in the morning and expired at 8 o'clock in the evening. She was active in social and religious circles.

S. A. Love.

S. A. Love, of Centerville, Ia., died at the home of his father in Washington township, August 8, after an illness of two or three months. He was born May 1, 1874, on the farm where his death occurred. He spent the earlier part of his life in that neighborhood, and was married in Washington to Miss Nellie Ewer, about nine years ago. After his marriage the family moved to Centerville, where Mr. Love engaged in the florists' business. Mr. and Mrs. Love were the parents of but one child, a daughter, Jessie, who, with the wife and mother, survives.

A. P. Kanotzor.

A. P. Kanotzor died of paralysis at his home in Centralia, Mo., August 14, after a long illness. He was 62 years old. He had formerly conducted a nursery and some years ago he laid out the Kanotzor addition to the city.

Herman Goertzhain.

Herman Goertzhain, of the Redwood City Nursery, Redwood City, Cal., died of heart trouble, August 12. Although he had complained of not feeling well, he had not been confined to bed and his sudden death was a severe shock to his family and friends. He had resided at Redwood City for twelve years and, in association with his sons, had carried on a prosperous business. He was a native of Germany.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Market conditions continue quiet; there is some improvement simply because trade scarcely could have been duller than it was in the early part of August, but the improvement is not great and wholesalers are looking forward to no sharp revival in business until something happens to the aster and gladiolus crops. These were slow in coming in this year, and as a result July saw an exceptionally good demand for stock, especially from out of town, but when the asters and gladioli once got under way they made up in quantity for anything that was lacking earlier in the season. In the aggregate the market is handling a great deal more stock this month than it did in August last year. Prices for small quantities of selected stock are as good as they were at this time last season, but the greater part of each day's receipts has for three or four weeks been moved only by offering tempting prices to the buyers, and even then it was impossible to clean up, with the result that averages have been extremely low.

WE HAVE SPLENDID

Killarneys

Pink or White—Large Supply.

Buyers who have not tried our Killarneys should do so at once, for Chicago never has seen anything like so large a supply or such fine quality. We are furnishing buyers all the Killarneys they need, in any length up to 18 to 24 inches. The color of the pink is something wonderful—better than it is in winter. These roses are business-builders. Once tried, you will use no others.

BEAUTIES

Plenty of the popular medium lengths.

Our present cut of Beauties is largely from young plants and runs largely to medium stems, the lengths that are in greatest demand. This is excellent stock, grown by the grower whose summer crop has given such perfect satisfaction to our customers in other years. Those who are not ordering their Beauties of us should try this stock without delay.

ASTERS

The Late and Fancy Varieties

While we have had a great many Asters, and very fine Asters, we never have handled the like of these. They are the finest Asters that ever have come on this market. All colors, all sizes. Try some of them. You surely will buy as long as they last.

GLADIOLI

Can supply in thousand lots.

The quality never was better. Mrs. Francis King (red), America (light pink), and Augusta (white). These are the three buyers want in quantity, and we have them. Note the low prices. You can use large lots at these figures.

Lilies

We can furnish Easter Lilies, best quality, in any quantity.

Valley

Order Valley of us and you will draw on a never-failing source of supply.

HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL GREENS

Here you get the best Fancy Ferns, all the Smilax and Asparagus strings you want, Sprengeri and Plumosus bunches, Mexican Ivy and Galax. No order too large for our facilities and no order too small to receive our careful attention.

FANCY GIGANTEUMS

EASTER LILIES Never finer. While we always have been well situated to supply Lilies, this summer we are in better shape than ever before. These Lilies are grown in a cool climate, giving keeping and shipping qualities exceeding anything we ever have had in Lilies. Cut half developed, so as to reach you in perfect condition.

GLADIOLI in All Colors

We are prepared to furnish Augusta (white), Mrs. King (red) or America (light pink), separate colors in any quantity, or mixed unnamed varieties if wanted. This is fine stock—much better than the Glads that brought much more money earlier in the season. Send along your orders—you can use this stock in quantity.

In addition to the asters and gladioli, Beauties, Killarneys, White Killarneys and Marylands have been and are in large supply, with quality excellent for summer. There also are increasing quantities of the newer roses, particularly Prince de Bulgarie and Mrs. Aaron Ward. These two appear to have appealed to the local growers much more strongly than other novelties offered last year. A few Double Pink Killarney are seen and also small quantities of Melody, but of the new roses Ward and Bulgarie are thus far the most conspicuous. The growers have not yet passed an opinion on them, but the buyers like them.

There are beginning to be larger supplies of carnations. The pick of flowers from the field does not cut so much figure as it did in years gone by. Quite a few growers who planted early are beginning to pick flowers from their earliest houses. Of course these are short-stemmed as yet, and with asters as plentiful and cheap as they have been, there is no special demand for carnations. A good many retailers, however, note that their customers do not prize asters highly even though fine; they call them cheap garden flowers and something else is wanted where good funeral work is called for.

All miscellaneous items continue in good supply, or at least in supply that is equal to the demand. With cut flowers as plentiful and cheap as they have been, the call for greens is decidedly limited.

Various Notes.

August Poehlmann states that the increase in the Poehlmann establishment this year is between twenty-one and twenty-two per cent. He has every confidence in the market for first-class cut flowers and thinks they will be able to increase their sales next year fully as much as the increase in glass area, if not more.

E. H. Hunt's is preparing to mail the largest catalogue of florists' supplies the house has yet issued. Paul M. Bryant had its publication in charge.

Howard Muir, youngest brother of John Muir, has been at the Grand boulevard store for several months and is taking hold of the flower business as though he likes it.

Otto W. Frese, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, says orders for Sunday's shipments are still being received in Monday's mail, in spite of the frequent warnings given buyers that there is no mail delivery in Chicago Sunday, except special delivery letters, and before noon.

Hans Rowaltz has resumed his duties with Kyle & Foerster after a visit at Hayden, Mo., where his parents reside.

Hoerber Bros. say they do not think asters are worth while to growers who have enough to do under glass, and will drop them next season.

Mrs. W. E. Horton, of Bassett & Washburn's office force, has returned from her vacation in Wisconsin.

Fred Sperry says that while August has not nearly held up to the July record for Vaughan & Sperry, he feels that the lull is no more than seasonable.

C. W. McKellar and wife visited the McKellar family home at Chillicothe, O., on their way back from the convention.

John Kruchten says that his indoor Butterfly sweet peas have been the best seller on the list the last few weeks.

C. A. Samuelson is rapidly completing a big, high, new conservatory that will add a great deal to his facilities.

John Zech and his partner, Matt Mann, returned from the convention via New York and Niagara Falls.

Charles P. Guelf, representing the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., of Cambridge, N. Y., has been calling on the trade this week.

Miss Edna M. Kindler, bookkeeper and cashier for the Raedlein Basket Co., and R. A. Graser, secretary of the American Shipping Co., were married July 27. Mr. and Mrs. Graser have been spending the last month on an extended honeymoon, but are expected home sometime this week.

A new electric lighting system, with all wires run in conduits, has been installed at Frank Oechslin's range. The new addition is now practically complete, including the heating system.

O. J. Friedman has artificial refrigeration in his Congress hotel store.

N. J. Wietor has been considering a motor car to bring the stock in from the greenhouses, but is told by his friends that the horses are more reliable.

At A. L. Randall's Frank Johnson says he looks for next season to break all records in this market. He can see nothing but rapidly expanding business.

One of the largest deals in acreage property in this vicinity was concluded August 16, when William A. Peterson, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, purchased eighty acres from the Lambert Tree estate on Lincoln avenue between Devon extended and Peterson avenues, northeast frontage. It is understood that the price paid was in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Although the Chicago bowling team did not cover itself with glory at Baltimore last week, P. Olsem, of the Chicago Carnation Co., managed to annex two silver cups.

It has developed as an obstacle to the big spring show that the Coliseum is under option continuously from February to April. With no certainty as to getting the hall when wanted for the spring show, and with the big S. A. F. convention coming here in August, it looks as though the spring exhibition would be abandoned.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says White Killarney has been the best selling item for several weeks.

Winterson's Seed Store has received a large shipment of French bulbs that were delayed by a quarantine at Genoa, Italy.

Otto Wittbold says that shipping trade at the Edgebrook greenhouses is picking up again, following a couple of dull weeks in the early part of August. He expects to receive the first shipments of early hyacinth, tulip, narcissus and Easter lily bulbs this week.

Early in the summer Ernest Oechslin added one house, 22x88, to his range at River Forest and he is now erecting a new service building and boiler room, 30x76. This will add considerably to his facilities.

Emil Buettner is one of those who lay plans far ahead. For instance, he is figuring on devoting next summer to a trip to Europe and the following summer, which will be 1913, to rebuilding and considerably enlarging his range of glass.

G. Swenson, at Elmhurst, has cut some splendid asters this summer, having been able to give his plants plenty of moisture through the dry weather because he has his patch covered by the Skinner irrigating system. But what Mr. Swenson says has been his greatest gain was in the ability to water his violet plants during the drought. He says his plants are rather better than usual, whereas unwatered plants are in a bad way. The watering system has been worth this one summer more than its total cost.

F. F. Scheel, the Shermerville grower, is preparing to erect a new range of Foley steel frame greenhouses.

A. Henderson & Co. are busy with bulb shipments.

Peter Reinberg is rapidly completing the benching of carnations at the farm. The recent rains were of great benefit to the plants still in the field.

Frank Kadlec, of Evanston, is around again, having survived four operations and four months' confinement in a hospital.

Visitors: H. M. Burt, of Jackson, Mich.; John Bauscher, Jr., of Freeport, Ill.

Savanna, Ill.—Lambert & Dunn are erecting another carnation house, 30x 200.

The Market.

The week opens cheerfully. The weather is delightfully cool; the quality of everything begins to show improvement and a more hopeful feeling everywhere prevails. Flower buyers are beginning to return from their summer vacations. The children are getting ready for the school openings; new theaters are ready for the fall business and many have already begun. The big ships are bringing back the multitude of European travelers, and the Newport season, and, in fact, all the great summer resorts of the east, are at the height of their festivities. Added to all this, new roses and carnations have arrived. Better and better daily are the shipments, and before another fortnight has flown the good ship of prosperity will be speeding successward on an even keel and with all sails set.

Everybody is predicting a great fall and winter trade, and, according to the law of averages, this is a most reasonable conclusion. Orchids are scarce and prices advancing; no difficulty whatever in getting 75 cents each for the best of them. There is no decrease in the flood of gladioli and asters. The new varieties of the gladioli, including, still, America, and the long-stemmed, large flowered specimens of the latter, sell at good fair prices, but the rank and file of them go at almost any price that may be offered.

The wholesale stores also are handling great quantities of Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora, cosmos, tritonias, goldenrod and rudbeckias, as well as dahlias. Valley at 2 cents and lilies at 3 cents are not calculated to warm the cockles of the growers' hearts. Still hope springs eternal in the human breast, and most of the growers and the wholesalers take the situation and their medicine philosophically and wait with patience for the good time coming.

Convention Echoes.

The one cloud that cast its shadow over all was the sudden death of John Birnie, a man universally respected and beloved. His funeral at West Hoboken, N. J., Friday, August 18, was attended by nearly all the florists of this section of Jersey, including also many of his Long Island brethren and his New York associates. He was buried with impressive Masonic ceremonies and his loss will be especially felt by the New York Florists' Club, of which he was one of the oldest and most faithful members.

Many New Yorkers spent Saturday, August 19, at the national capital and at Mount Vernon.

The enjoyment of the sports Friday, August 18, was almost terminated by the cyclonic storm that swept everybody to cover, rocked the big boat alarmingly and broke up the ball game and the shooting contests. Otherwise the outing was most enjoyable and the immense throng was fed and entertained with marvelous detail, completeness and universal satisfaction. There was enough of everything and to spare.

After Mrs. Traendly won the $75 silver cup the ex-president could be touched successfully for any reasonable loan and new dignity was added to his stride.

All the prizes were valuable and worthy of the occasion and the splendid club that provided them, as well as the generous givers from many other cities.

The exhibits of the ribbon men were among the most seductive of the many displays and for some reason the space around them was filled by a crowd at all times of the handsomest young ladies in the Armory.

Robert L. Graham earned fairly the title of "the young man eloquent."

Nobody envied President-elect Vincent the sunny smile that irradiated his face after the votes were counted. His presentation addresses to Robert L. Graham and Robert Halliday were masterpieces of eloquence.

Every officer and every member of every committee of the Baltimore Florists' Club has just cause for pride and self-congratulation.

New York thinks it deserves some of the society's appreciation in furnishing it with a secretary of twenty-five years' experience and it believes the society will add another twenty-five years to his enviable record.

The ladies' society has grown to most creditable size under the presidency of our Mrs. J. V. Phillips. There is no good reason why it should not number 500 at Chicago.

It is conceded that President Asmus is a natural orator and his impromptu address after the presentation of his $300 silver service proved it.

Messrs. Traendly, Berry, Scott and Kakuda were uneasy while New York was losing its first game and thought it was about time to use them as substitutes in the bowling contest. The result proved their uneasiness well founded.

Oscar Boehler and Emil Leuly, of New Jersey, still hold their places at the top of the list of old bachelors, their hopes glimmering more and more faintly as the years come and go.

atmosphere Monday, August 21, on West Twenty-eighth street and elsewhere, for many of the returning conventionists were in the city. Several remained for the ball game, Chicago vs. New York, and rooted hard for the western club. The president and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pollworth were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Traendly. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Asmus, the visitors included J. T. D. Fulmer, wife and daughter, of Des Moines, Iowa; Mrs. E. M. Bullock and son, of Elkhart, Ind.; H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg; John Zech, Matt Mann, H. B. Howard and Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKellar, of Chicago; A. T. Pyfer and P. Olsem, of Joliet, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Meinhardt, of St. Louis, Mo. These and all other visitors received a hearty New York welcome. S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, was also a visitor Monday, August 21.

A failure in the trade of considerable proportions is announced at Yonkers, involving several wholesale merchants for considerable amounts, one firm, it is said, being caught for nearly $2,000.

Saturday, August 26, George V. Nash, who has just returned from a western trip, will lecture at the Museum building of the New York Botanical Garden on "Evergreens and Their Uses in the Landscape."

William Kessler and wife, of Kessler Bros., leave this week for their annual vacation.

The New York Bowling Club will continue its sessions at Thumm's alleys every Friday evening. The club combination at Baltimore was changed, owing to the absence of John Donaldson and the illness of John Miesem. This handicap doubtless lost the New Yorkers the high honors to which, with its club intact, they were entitled on form and record. All florists visiting New York are requested to spend their Friday evenings at the club's alleys, Thirty-second street and Broadway, where a warm welcome always awaits them.

The first meeting of the New York Florists' Club for the season will take place Monday evening, September 11. At the October meeting J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, will give an illustrated lecture, and at the November meeting Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, will give a lecture. President Nugent has several surprises up his sleeve for the club during the remaining months of his incumbency. J. Austin Shaw.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Prices in the cut flower market are good. Some fine asters with splendid flowers and stems, like special Beauties, bring double listed quotations. The difficulty is that business is not sufficient to consume nearly all the flowers offered. There are more choice asters than a fortnight ago. They are easier to sell than the lower grade stock. The demand for gladioli is dropping off. Roses are increasing in number. Beauties are most sought. They are better value and not plentiful. Prince de Bulgarie has come to town. Short-stemmed roses of the standard forcing varieties are in supply far ahead of the demand. At times Easter lilies have been hard to obtain. Valley is on the back track. There are some gardenias, but few cattleyas; one must use the small Harrisoniæ or go without. A few more carnations are arriving. There is an abundance of Japanese hydrangeas. Galax is the only scarce green.

Five Fine Cannas.

The beds in front of the office building of the Conard & Jones Co., at West Grove, Pa., are planted with some of their best varieties of cannas, carefully chosen to show a few choice colors and types and the decorative effect that may be obtained by massing them. The beds are of moderate width, with ample lawn between, to set off the rich green of the foliage and the bright hues of the flowers to advantage.

The bed on the left of the driveway as you enter is filled with Mrs. Alfred F. Conard. The beautiful La France pink of the flowers, combined with the immense size of the trusses, commands admiration. Mrs Conard is a fine bedding variety, effective from afar as nearby. Opposite Mrs. Conard, across the driveway, is Olympic. The significance of the name is apparent—habit erect, of medium height, foliage deep green, flowers large, color orient red. The color is curious—raspberry, old rose, rose red. It seems that orient red is truly descriptive; a pleasing color to the cultivated taste. Gladioflora fills the bed next in order. The name describes the flowers—like the gladiolus, round, even petaled, florets large and full; color, scarlet and yellow; foliage, green—a type unusually, deeply interesting.

The last bed stands directly in front of the steps. Unlike the others, it contains two varieties—a circle of scarlet and gold, the effect heightened by another border of the dark leaved Achyranthes Lindeni. The scarlet is Meteor, a dazzling color. This variety promises much. The yellow is Brilliant, a revived introduction of seven or eight years ago, which has improved. Brilliant is not a pure yellow, a scarlet throat shading the intensity of its color.

Marguerite Day.

The following is the substance of an interview with Harry Bayersdorfer, August 14, 1911:

"There is a custom in Germany," he said, "which I think will interest the florists of this country. It is the setting apart of a day when one variety of flower is sold for the benefit of the poor. The German government authorizes certain persons to sell the flowers and receive the money on that day, and on that day it is unlawful for anyone else to offer that variety of flower for sale. I was in Hamburg on 'Marguerite day,' when many persons, mostly ladies, sold marguerites, both natural and artificial. They were known by a government badge worn on the arm. They carried quantities, offering them on the streets and in public places, selling them singly and in bunches to all who were charitably disposed. You gave little or much, as you chose, and re-

A SUMMER SPECIAL

¶It's a little unusual at this time of the year to specialize, but we felt we wanted to give our customers the advantage of the rose market. Our growers are cutting very freely now, so we are offering a box of 500 assorted roses for $7.50, our selection as to color, mostly pink and white. These are unusual values as to quality. A fair proportion of long-stemmed roses and some of the new rose Mrs. Taft included in every box.

Special Offer of Rose Plants

FOR LATE PLANTING

1600 Grafted White Killarney, 3-inch	10.00	90.00
1700 Own Root Pink Killarney, 3-inch	5 00	45.00
600 Own Root White Killarney, 3-inch	5.00

ceived the equivalent in marguerites, but you received no change. The amount you offered was supposed to be what you wished to give to the poor. No florists could sell on Marguerite day. Some of the ladies bought their marguerites beforehand; others obtained them from their gardens. Later, when I was in Coburg, Marguerite day was being observed there. It occurred to me that this would be a good way to raise money in some of our large cities in summer for, say, the ice fund. It would arouse interest in flowers and do a good work.''

Various Notes.

M. Rice & Co. report the following visitors: E. J. McCallum, Pittsburg, Pa.; C. C. Pollworth and wife, Milwaukee, Wis.; A. Daniel, representing Penn the Florist, Boston, Mass.; George Smith, Cleveland, O.; Charles L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.; Fred Bergmann, of E. Wienhoeber Co., Chicago, Ill.; William C. Young, St. Louis, Mo., and two distinguished visitors whose names could not be learned, as they were seeing the sights with B. Eschner.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. reports the following visitors: U. J. Virgin, New Orleans, La.; W. F. Haeger and wife, Chattanooga, Tenn.; W. B. Paterson and two sons, Montgomery, Ala.; John A. Beck and wife, Milton, Pa., and Harry Papworth, New Orleans, La.

John Burton motored a select party to Waretown, on Barnegat bay, August 20. The party is believed to include William Currie, Milwaukee, Wis.; Adam Graham, Cleveland, O.; Commodore John Westcott and Hugh Eble.

H. B. Howard, of Chicago, spent a day in this city on his way from Baltimore to his native town, Brattleboro, Vt. He spent a day also in New York.

All Philadelphia went to the Baltimore convention last week. All Philadelphia was delighted with southern hospitality. Charles E. Meehan says that the value of a convention to the exhibitor is not measured merely by orders, but by the opportunity to meet old friends, to make new friends and to let the world know that he is up and doing.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are putting a new representative on the road. Mr. Bayersdorfer thinks highly of this latest acquisition to his staff. His name has not yet been made public. He is mysteriously spoken of as ''The Silent Traveler.'' A successful traveler, it has always been supposed, must be a good talker; yet the knowing ones believe this fellow will make even the great Martin Reukauf look to his laurels.

George Auegle, of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., will leave for Washington and the south August 26.

Walter P. Stokes returned from a few days at Eagles Mere, Pa., August 22.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

Washington florists' circles are getting back into the harness this week, with some creaking of the joints and groaning of the machinery, after the general participation in the big affair at Baltimore and the incidental entertaining of visiting delegates here. Many florists "ran over" to Washington and looked about the place. Most of them were detected in the act, and made cordially welcome. Business is not what it might be; but, in view of the season, there is no complaint.

Stock continues to be scarce and rather poor. The effects of the drought are still apparent in the condition of all outdoor stuff. Asters are more plentiful, but the price stays firm at 50 cents to $2. Gladioli are in abundant supply and are fair in quality. The market, in fact, is glutted with them. As for roses, Kaiserin, Carnot, Mrs. Taft and Maryland are about the best coming in. Killarney, White Killarney and Bride are inferior and slow of sale. The first dahlias are in market. They are not plentiful and are rather poor, the opening price being $2, and weak at that.

Various Notes.

Everyone is making preparations for a lively season next winter. J. H. Small & Sons, it is reported, have secured quarters in the new Woodward building, at Fifteenth and H streets, where they intend to have one of the finest florists' establishments in the country. Plans for the interior arrangement are now being drawn, it is understood. The Pennock-Meehan Co., of Philadelphia, New York and Washington, will also have a new store at 1216 H street, especially constructed with a view to the requirements of the wholesale trade. They expect that when they get into their new home the improved facilities will greatly aid in the handling of stock. Edward L. Bowers, who handles the supply end of the business, and who was in Baltimore picking up business pointers at the convention, declares that, while business was good this year, the indications are that the Washington house will double the volume of trade during the next year. W. E. McKissick, manager of this house, has worked up a good line of supplies in this vicinity, and is giving satisfaction to a large line of customers.

Another wholesaler who sees a roseate outlook is Albert Schnell, manager of the Florists' Exchange. He reports that he has had an excellent year's business. He has recently moved into new quarters, which are now fitted up and ready for custom. "We are looking for a heavy trade during the coming season," said Mr. Schnell to the representative of The Review, "and I believe our receipts will be at least double those of this year. We get our supplies from the surrounding country. Partly through our own efforts, we have accumulated a staff of extra fine growers, so that we expect, during the coming season, to be able to meet all demands on us."

Leapley & Meyer, a firm of young florists who started out about a year ago in the local field, locating on G street near Ninth, have made extensive alterations in their store. They have succeeded notably, by the exercise of industry and enterprise.

George Cooke, of 1100 Connecticut avenue, carried off a long list of awards at the convention.

C. L. Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn., stopped in Washington en route to the convention and visited around among the local florists.

William R. Gray, the Oakton, Va., rose grower, has just imported 100,000 valley pips of the finest variety, which he will grow for the Florists' Exchange. He grew a similar number last year for the same house, all of which were disposed of in this market. Mr. Gray's stock is looking well for the time of year.

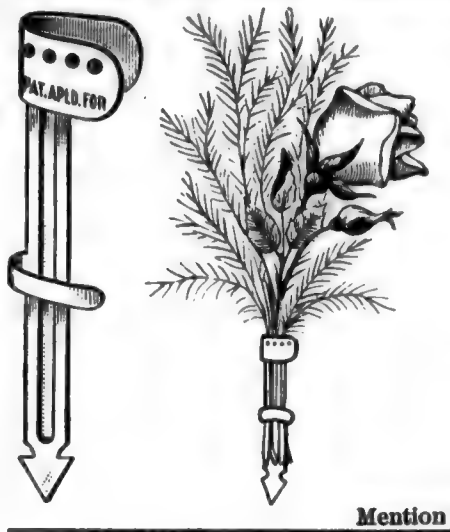
D. C., has made extensive alterations in his greenhouses. He has already boxed up 50,000 Emperor narcissi for the coming season.

Lehr Bros., of Brooklyn, Md., have erected another greenhouse, which they have already planted to Killarney, White Killarney, Maryland and Ivory roses. Their carnations for the coming year look particularly well.

J. Rider, of Brooklyn, Md., is making a good showing with his carnations. He is devoting himself to Enchantress, White Enchantress, White Perfection, Rose-pink Enchantress and Dorothy Gordon.

J. H. Small has spent a good portion of his time recently at Bar Harbor, personally superintending the arrangements for preparing an elaborate setting to a big dinner, given there by Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLain. He drew on the staffs of his Washington and New York establishments for men and materials for the work. In fact, he had to send all over the United States for materials. The general plan was aquatic, with numerous goldfish and water plants. Vast quantities of water lilies were used. The invitation list included a large number of people from Washington and vicinity. D.



BOSTON.

The Market.

Trade has been quiet for a week or more. This, however, is only what was to be expected, as the last half of August is always extremely dull. There is a fair call for flowers from the shore and mountain resorts, where the season is now at its height, but local demand is light. Outdoor flowers continue to dominate the market, asters and gladioli being the leaders. The quality of asters is much below that of former years. There are big lots of poor flowers, but only a limited number of really good ones. While the latter make $1.50 to $2 per hundred, others go as low as 25 cents to 50 cents. Some nice flowers of the ostrich plume varieties are seen, in addition to the more every-day sorts. Gladioli are still much overabundant and it seems a pity to see grand spikes of America, Mrs. F. King and others selling so low. Sweet peas continue to come in, but the quality is inferior.

Roses are mostly small, being the early cuttings from the new crop, and move with difficulty. Good flowers sell without trouble. A small lot of new crop carnations are arriving. These, however, are short-stemmed and cut little figure. Lilium longiflorum is in oversupply; so, also, is lily of the valley. Quite a few Lilium auratum and speciosum are seen; the latter sells the best. Cosmos is more abundant, but sells slowly. There is a decided scarcity of orchids, especially cattleyas, and those having orders find difficulty in securing what they want. Miscellaneous flowers include hardy sunflowers, physostegia, candytuft, gypsophila, tritomas, perennial phlox and montbretias. In the window displays gladioli, aquatics and herbaceous flowers are now prominent. The call for asparagus and ferns continues light.

Exhibition.

In spite of the hot, dry weather, there was a fine exhibition, which quite filled the main exhibition hall at Horticultural hall, August 19 and 20. Perennial phloxes were largely shown by T. C. Thurlow's Sons, F. J. Rea, John K. Alexander, William Whitman and others. Gladioli were exceptionally fine, some splendid novelties being shown. George Page, gardener for Mrs. Frederick Ayer, received a first-class certificate for Gladiolus Kunderdi Glory. A similar award went to Montague Chamberlain for Niagara. The latter exhibitor also showed a vase of Rajah, a new seedling, the finest crimson scarlet seedling I have yet seen, with flowers of immense size; awarded a silver medal. Mr. Chamberlain had many other fine varieties. John K. Alexander was also an extensive exhibitor of gladioli and his spikes were excellent.

William Thatcher, gardener for Mrs. J. L. Gardner, was the leading exhibitor of annuals and secured first prize for display of not less than 100 bottles. W. P. Lothrop had an excellent table of dahlias. He received a first-class certificate for Lothrop's seedling, an immense decorative of a reddish orange color. George Page had a grand specimen of Nepenthes Mastersii, also platyceriums and Phœnix Roebelenii. Mrs. E. M. Gill had a good general display. M. Sullivan, gardener for W. Whitman, had the finest aster display. He also had a collection of herbaceous plants.

Farquhar & Co. were, as usual, the leading exhibitors and put up a grand display. Two long tables were filled with the superb Lilium leucanthemum, one of the finest of all outdoor lilies. They showed several new Wilson lilies, which were awarded honorable mention. Viola cornuta purpurea, much darker in color than cornuta, is a grand addition and received a first-class certificate. They also had a new Delphinium Farquhari, of an intense blue color, and other novelties; also a big display of phlox, Liliums auratum, Batmanniæ, speciosum, etc.; aconitums, chelones, rudbeckias and a host of other flowers. The collection received a silver medal. An interesting feature was some well flowered pans of Calluna vulgaris, or Scotch heather.

The annual show of products of children's gardens comes September 2 and 3, and the general autumn exhibition of dahlias, fruits, etc., September 8, 9 and 10, while the big vegetable show, to be held in conjunction with the convention of the American Vegetable Growers' Association, with several thousand dollars in prizes, opens September 21. This latter show will far excel anything of the kind formerly seen in Boston.

Various Notes.

Most of the Boston visitors to the S. A. F. convention returned home August 19. All had a pleasant time, their only regret being the failure to elect their excellent candidate for president.

Littlefield & Wyman, of North Abington, have their carnations all housed. A new house, just completed, will give them more growing space. The plants are as large as usual.

Several local members of the trade who are in Europe are being held up by the extended strike prevailing in England. Thomas Pegler is one of them.

Charles Leach, of J. Leach & Sons, North Easton, is recovering from a severe attack of Bright's disease. The illness came on at an inopportune time, when carnation housing was under way. The new Pink Supreme, one of the Leach seedlings, is looking fine.

S. J. Goddard enjoyed his Baltimore trip immensely. He is sending in some fine asters to the market, and small lots of new crop carnations.

J. W. Simpson, of Woburn, is shipping quantities of fine long-stemmed asters to the Boston Coöperative Market. His carnations are all housed and they look first-class.

A special electric car will leave Scollay square, opposite the Quincy house, at 12:30 Saturday, August 26, with members and friends of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club bound for B. Hammond Tracy's gladiolus farm at Wenham, where a field day will be held. A large attendance is already assured.

W. F. Eaton, of Haverhill, is just starting on his new season's crop of Killarney and White Killarney, which he knows well how to grow. These are handled by William H. Carr at the Boston Flower Exchange.

John W. Foote, of Malden, is already cutting excellent Beacon carnations. Bouvardia Humboldtii still comes from him. He grows it better, probably, than any one else in the country.

J. Newman & Sons had a pleasing window August 19 of Rose Golden Gate, with large vases of Gladiolus America and ferns as a background.

William S. Phelps, of Marlboro, loves to produce gilt-edged stock. He grows asters of magnificent quality under glass. These he disbuds and grows like mums, selling them in bunches of one dozen. The flowers are equal in size to the average mum, with stems of remarkable length. Mr. Phelps is just starting to cut these. His carnations are all benched and looking well.

John K. Alexander, of East Bridgewater, the dahlia specialist, gave a first-class clam bake to 100 of his friends at Robbins grove August 18, which every one heartily enjoyed.

A. R. Hutson, chief salesman for W. H. Elliott, has been enjoying a well earned vacation on Cape Cod.

W. J. Collins, representing Joseph Breck & Sons, was at last report doing the German seed-growing districts and having an enjoyable time.

Over 200 members of the New England Association of Market Gardeners had their annual outing at the Lynnway Club, Point of Pines, August 19. The games included bowling and pool tournaments; also baseball, married vs. single, the latter winning by a score of 8 to 4. President H. F. Hall addressed the members during the afternoon.

John Barr's fine new carnation house is completed and planted. In spite of the dry summer, his plants are quite up to the average in size.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

There is not much to be said about trade; it is just slouching along. No one seems to be doing enough to make him enthusiastic. There is enough of everything except asters, but they do not come in any quantity. Roses, gladioli and lilies take care of the trade.

Various Notes.

Quite a number of the convention people stopped over here to visit the greenhouses of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., at Bakerstown, Pa.

Most of those who have been away on vacations are now putting in an appearance and all declare themselves ready for all kinds of hard work.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ludwig, with their sons, De Forest and Edward, are spending some time at Atlantic City.

Sunday, August 13, to Mr. and Mrs. W. Q. Potter, a son, eleven and one-half pounds. Mother and son are getting along nicely.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

Cool weather, with a good quantity of rain, has brought outdoor flowers into prolific bloom. The cool weather is most welcome after the exceptionally hot season. That the weather of the last two weeks has been most enjoyable has been demonstrated by the slump in the retail trade, for people have gone for short trips, thus making business more than poor last week. As a matter of course, a number of employees are also taking their vacations during the lull in trade. The firemen's convention didn't help boom things much, but we trust the G. A. R. convention will do more to make trade lively.

Asters and gladioli reign supreme this week—so much so that the price of both is away down and they are beginning to accumulate.

Beauties are scarce, and, fortunately, there is little call for them. Few of the retailers keep them on hand, but send out for them as they are ordered. The specials retail at $5 and $6 per dozen. Killarney is growing poorer and poorer each week, and White Killarney has been cut out of the rose list for several weeks. Radiance and My Maryland are holding up well and the specials bring fancy prices. Mrs. Aaron Ward is still a good seller. A few Richmonds are coming in, and they are somewhat improved, but short in stem. Kaiserin is really a queen in quality, and is used altogether for brides' bouquets when roses are required. Carnot is seldom seen, and only poor ones at that.

A few carnations are seen here and there in the flower stores. Sweet peas are about over, and the few that remain are almost useless. Valley is becoming poor, but the price remains high. Rose geraniums and mignonette are used considerably instead of ferns and asparagus by our local florists. Candytuft and double marguerites are coming into the market and are good in quality. There is little call for smilax at present.

Various Notes.

There are a few good sized weddings booked for early September by Keller Bros.

Geo. Pringle has returned from his vacation in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dieteman were at the convention in Baltimore.

Edward Meinhard took a trip last week on Lake Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramsford Wilson are taking an extended trip, including New York city, Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburg, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Thomas Cogger, of McCarthy & Co., Boston, Mass., was a visitor in the city recently.

Keller Bros. have given up the plans for building their new greenhouse this summer, because South avenue has been torn up since early in the season. They expect to wait until next spring.

Ed. Brockman has added another greenhouse to his establishment.

There are no plans under way for a flower show this year, and from all indications it will be omitted.

Walter Salmon, of Brighton, is cutting his summer crop of Killarney and Kaiserin roses, and they are exceptionally good, although the stems are short.

A flag and shield done in red, white and blue immortelles, with a background of palms, constituted the window display of the Rochester Floral Co. for the G. A. R. convention.

reports that there is a great scarcity of flowers in his home town.

E. C. Campbell is still cutting some good Lilium longiflorum. His window display for G. A. R. week was exceedingly attractive, American flags predominating.

H. E. Wilson's window display was a mammoth G. A. R. badge of red, white and blue immortelles.

Edmond Lyon, of Brighton, will construct a conservatory adjoining the dining room of his new home on East avenue in the fall.

A few Rochester florists are growing the double marguerite, Mrs. F. Sander, with good success.

Colin B. Ogston is growing some fine summer orchids.

Fred Thomann and Chas. Schonberg were among the delegates at the Baltimore convention.

George Boucher had a clever Japanese window last week. Mr. Werdien is the artist. E. C. A.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
Pres., Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; First Vice-Pres., M. H. Duryea, New York City; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

WM. F. DREER, the Philadelphia seedsman, is summering, as usual, in Maine.

THE seed trade was well represented at last week's S. A. F. convention at Baltimore.

HOWARD M. EARL, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., has returned to Philadelphia after a month's trip to California.

THE early varieties of sweet corn are reported quite a short crop, but the late sorts promise well if the frosts hold off long enough.

IF the samples shown at Baltimore are any guide, the French bulbs certainly made good growth. All the samples were "monsters."

ARTHUR T. BODDINGTON, New York, is spending the week ends at Nantucket, where Mrs. Boddington and the children are summering.

IT is said that this season some of the stock seed of winter-flowering sweet peas, grown in California, has returned only five pounds for one.

COMPETITION has brought the prices of French bulbs to a point where there is little incentive to go after the business; so some of the bulb houses say.

ANT. C. ZVOLANEK reports that the crop of sweet pea seed at Bound Brook, N. J., is only one-third of normal, but hopes next year's yield will be larger.

HARRISII bulbs are said to be selling quite well—better than last season. As the cultural methods of the Bermudian growers improve, the confidence of the bulb forcers will increase.

J. BOLGIANO & SON had many visitors during the S. A. F. convention at Baltimore last week and no one went away without being impressed with the size of their plant and the completeness of their facilities.

SEEDSMEN who have personally investigated the situation in Europe report that crops generally are the poorest in years and that last season's shortages will seem slight by comparison with those of the present season.

A REPORT has been received of the death, August 2, of Archibald Smith, the English seedsman, who was well known in the trade in America, having spent many years in this country before engaging in business at Oxford, England.

They are perfect mixtures and sound in grain and a pleasure to handle."

LILIUM HARRISII

(THE BERMUDA EASTER LILY)

LET US SUPPLY YOUR WANTS IN LILIES THIS SEASON

We think we can make it to your advantage to do so, as regards both quality and price.

The stock that we offer is not gathered indiscriminately from all kinds of sources, but is grown for us by a few selected growers whose stocks have been worked up from the true, original stock. In order to insure the health of the product, the bulbs are not grown on the same field oftener than one season, other crops being grown on the field the preceding year. The ground is thoroughly manured when the previous crop is grown, leaving it in a high state of cultivation, and when the lily bulbs are planted no fresh manure is used; this prevents disease and insures a crop of strong, healthy bulbs.

In addition to this, we do not dig our bulbs as early as they are usually dug, but leave them in the ground until they are thoroughly ripened and matured. When Harrisii is good it leaves little to be desired. There is very little, if any, stock obtainable as good as the stock that we are offering. We are supplying only this one grade of selected stock and when this is disposed of we shall have no more to offer.

While the quality of the stock that we offer is of the highest, our prices are as low as, or lower than, the prices of those who offer the ordinary stock gathered from indiscriminate sources. We are sure buyers will find our stock very satisfactory, and much more so than the Japan-grown Longiflorum, which has badly deteriorated in recent years.

Bear in mind that we were the original introducers of Harrisii in Bermuda, and that we have exceptional facilities for obtaining our present supplies. Also take note that the smallest bulbs that we offer are 6-7 inch bulbs, not 5-7 inch, as usually offered.

6- 7 inch bulbs, 335 to the case,	$15.00 per case;	full thousand lots, $ 40.00 per 1000
7- 9 inch bulbs, 200 to the case,	16.00 per case;	full thousand lots, 75.00 per 1000
9-11 inch bulbs, 100 to the case,	18.00 per case;	full thousand lots, 175.00 per 1000

FERNS

We have an exceptionally nice lot of ferns in the following varieties—good, bushy, well-grown plants that will please the most critical buyers. Plants have been grown in pots and are thoroughly well established and nicely finished.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and Piersoni, 6-inch pots	$0.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Piersoni, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 8-inch plants	$1.00 to 1.50 each

THE threshing process is not showing any gain in the pea product over the estimates given out some time ago, and the weather conditions at present add nothing to the growth of beans. The bean crop will also be on the short side this year.

WILL sweet peas be overdone next winter? It doesn't seem likely, although the chances are that when the Spencer varieties come in toward spring the large supply may affect prices, for there surely will be a wonderful increase in production if all goes well with the growers' plans.

S. B. Dicks, representing Cooper, Taber & Co., London, is due to reach Chicago August 29.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has just issued a bulletin on Lespedeza, or Japan clover, that will be of interest to grass seed dealers.

The largest canning company at Longmont, Colo., has stated that its 1911 pack of peas will not permit over forty-five per cent delivery on orders.

It is said in Baltimore that Maryland has a wonderful crop of tomatoes this year. The melon crop was injured by the dry weather early in the season.

The winter-flowering varieties of sweet peas are turning out an extremely poor crop with the California seed growers and some of the seed houses find they have priced them much too low in recently issued fall lists.

A. Dwight Funk, of Funk Bros. Seed Co., Bloomington, Ill., owns 700 acres of rich bottom land, which he is rapidly developing into a fine corn farm. It is said that he has already spent something like $7,000 on drainage, tiling, fencing, etc.

There is a strong demand for the winter-flowering varieties of sweet peas for immediate planting, and a little later the florist will want the Spencer varieties in quantity, for the greenhouse space devoted to sweet peas will be enormously increased this season.

The government crop report two weeks ago showed all the great grain crops to be in condition below the average for a number of recent years and probably is a fair index to the condition of seed crops August 1 over that part of the country east of the Rockies.

Some shipments are on their way east from the Pacific coast growers. In general the crop deliveries from the coast are expected to be about up to the average. Sweet peas, salsify, some of the Globe varieties of onion, and carrot are exceptions, being short in most cases.

Large shipments of French bulbs intended for fast boats via Genoa have been held up at Mediterranean ports by cholera quarantine and are long overdue. Shipments on the older and slower steamers direct from Marseilles this time proved again that the race is not always to the swift.

The people who are enquiring for lycopodium in carload lots find no disposition on the part of the big handlers to take orders except at prices that provide for all eventualities. Those who handle the Pennsylvania and the Wisconsin picks see the probabilities as from the same viewpoint.

The cucumber and other vine seed crops are in fair shape at present, but some good, warm weather is needed to make the fruits fill out and yield seed. There is time enough for this, but the weather at the present time is not of the right sort and it must change to warmer or bad results to vine crops may be looked for.

Onion sets are nearly all harvested. Previous estimates published by The Review are approximately correct. The crop is much short of last year's harvest at Chicago, less than one-half of last year's harvest at Louisville and short of

For the last 15 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed bearing Cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers, that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize-winner. Received first and second prizes at the Toledo Florists' Club meeting early in November, when blooming Cyclamens were scarce. Seed of this, my own grown strain, in five separate colors, $1.00 per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $25.00 per 5000.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Business last week was a great deal better than the week previous among the retailers. The bulk of the work was for funerals. The wholesalers, however, had so much stock on hand that it was impossible to unload it all. Prices have been low right along, but some of the figures for large lots would not look well in print. In looking over the wholesale markets last week, a big glut in asters was apparent in all varieties and grades, but grades were overlooked when large lots were bought. Roses, too, have been a glut and only the choice grades sell well, but stock is looking better right along.

Good carnations are scarce and other grades are none too plentiful. Gladioli are beginning to let up some; not nearly so many are coming in. Single tuberose stalks are down to $1 per hundred. There is also quite a lot of small outdoor stock.

Various Notes.

Fred Alves, of the George H. Angermueller force, says that bachelor life is getting monotonous and that a change will follow soon which will interest the local trade. He refused to give the name of the fortunate young lady.

Frank Fillmore had charge of the flower booth at the Royal Arcanum carnival at Preister's park all of last week. He was assisted by Mrs. Fillmore and a host of young ladies. It was a big job, but Mr. Fillmore was equal to the occasion.

Andrew Meyer, Jr., who until recently was city forester, is now engaged with his father, Andrew Meyer, Sr., who has been for many years in the florists' business on South Jefferson avenue, where they have a large following.

pany with his young daughter, called on his way to spend a few days on his farm near St. Charles, Mo. Mr. Emunds says his preparations for the fall season are nearly completed.

Frank Gorly got back from the convention safe and sound. He says that the thousand dollar bill did not last long when he saw the good things on exhibition and he had to telegraph his brother, Vincent, for more cash.

Most of the convention delegates have returned home and can not say too much for the good time shown them by the Baltimore florists and only regret the small delegation from here. All are much pleased with the selection of Chicago for the next meeting place.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith spent ten days at Blue Lodge Springs, Mo., recently and returned home declaring it a most enjoyable vacation trip.

These are busy days among the Kirkwood florists. All are engaged in housing their plants and getting things in shape for the fall season. From reports it is learned that there will be a big crop of carnations, sweet peas and mums, but that violets are going to be scarce; that is, not the great glut that usually comes from local growing centers.

Werner & Bro., of Clayton, are going to have a fine cut of roses this season. Their present cut from the young stock is of extra good quality.

All four of our wholesalers, C. A. Kuehn, W. C. Smith, H. G. Berning and George H. Angermueller, have been loaded down with asters, gladioli and roses all last week. Carnations are coming in more freely, but are not of extra good quality.

Premium American Pansy Seed New Crop

We had to reduce the size of our advertisement for a few issues, because the demand for Pansy Seed was greater than our supply. Plentiful rains and cooler weather have set the plants seeding heavily now. We are caught up with our orders and are now able to supply customers promptly, with strong, fresh seed, from the finest flowers.

Hesperian Strain A selection of the most beautiful varieties, notable for their large size and perfection of form and coloring. We offer this mixture after over thirty years' experience in pansy seed and plant growing for both the retail and wholesale trade, and recommend it for those having critical customers. Pkt., 25c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.00; ¼ oz., $1.75; oz., $6.00.

Toole's Giant Prize Strain This is a mixture made up from the best of the giant varieties, with the correct proportions of the different shades and colors for general sale. This mixture will surely please you. Pkt., 15c; 1000 seeds, 30c; ⅛ oz., 70c; ¼ oz., $1.20; oz., $4.00.

15, in the Knights of Columbus hall, with President Sanders in the chair. The mail vote on early closing was favorable, standing 36 to 6. Theo. Miller was made chairman of the legislative committee. The meeting was well attended and a great deal of business was transacted.

Morris H. Leonie, representing Lion & Co., New York city, was here last week.

Park Commissioner Dwight Davis' fine new automobile was stolen from in front of his office last week. The machine was recovered later in the day, badly damaged.

C. E. De Wever is now bringing in his consignments to this market in a new automobile. He has had a good season for his output. J. J. B.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business during the last week was on a par with that of previous years for this season, as regards general trade, but two or three large funerals gave an unusual impetus to the aggregate for the week. There are practically no carnations in the local market, asters furnishing the major supply. Roses are showing much improvement, both in texture and length of stem. A few Easter lilies are coming in, but the supply is limited, with little demand.

Various Notes.

After several years of talking, it now looks as though a wholesale flower market in this city was an assured fact. A meeting of nearly a score of growers was held last April, at which a committee was appointed to consider the advisability and means of starting a market association. This committee has failed so far to report anything definite, and on Friday night, August 18, a half dozen of the principal movers in the matter decided to take it into their own hands, with the result that on Saturday an option was secured on a desirable location in the center of the city. The market will be definitely formed this week.

N. D. Pierce, of the Norwood Greenhouses, is erecting a barn of considerable size at his place in Norwood.

James McLeish, of Newport, reports a good demand for hothouse grapes, peaches and nectarines, of which he has a large supply.

W. H. O'Connor is spending the summer months at Seaconnet Point.

Assuming for the sake of argument that Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs cost 20% more than common brands of no special source, and the bulb cost is from 10% to 20% of the selling value of the flowers, don't you think it is much safer to pay the difference for Horseshoe Brand? If you can get one more flower from five bulbs it will more than pay you the difference in bulb cost, not considering at all the chance you take in buying goods of doubtful value. So after all it is more economical by far to pay 20% more for a brand which will net you one more flower in five bulbs; and the possibilities are actually much greater, while the liability for loss is much less. Furthermore, Horseshoe Brand Bulbs do not always cost 20% more than other brands, even no more in some cases, and if anyone doubts the real value of the brand, all we ask them to do is to try them and keep a record of results. It's the record most growers fail to keep, and after the season is over they seldom know whose goods are the best—merely have a jumbled idea that they obtained so many flowers from so many bulbs—that's all. Lily bulbs in the fields are generally sold a la carte—you get just what you pay for and not more, so it's best to pay the fair price and get the cream of the crop. Write for prices.

PACIFIC COAST.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business remains quiet and seasonable conditions prevail everywhere. There is no surplus of choice stock, but asters are more plentiful in a greater variety of colors, and are the best selling article on the market. Mums are showing better quality and supply the much needed variety of stock. Cosmos, tritonia and helianthus serve the purpose for window arrangements, but bring little monetary return. Carnation planting in the houses is about completed. Most of the florists are increasing their stock, as well as adding glass. The first shipments of lily bulbs from Japan have arrived.

Various Notes.

Miss T. M. Hudson, of Pasadena, Cal., is taking advantage of the dull season to visit the northwest, combining business and pleasure.

E. R. Chappell leaves this week for several weeks' recreation of simple life.

E. R. C.

TACOMA, WASH.

The Market.

Gloomy weather in this vicinity has caused florists' crops to come on slowly and now we find that stock, especially in carnations, is exceedingly scarce, with only outdoor flowers to depend on. Asters are coming in and are of excellent grade, while roses are getting short-stemmed. Business has shown a marked change for the better during the last two weeks. Most of the people are returning from their summer homes and we can now expect an increased demand for all kinds of stock.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club held its first annual picnic at Burton, August 10. About seventy took the launch from the Old Town dock and, after the run to Burton, landed at the picnic grounds, above the city, where the day was spent in all kinds of games and sports.

The Florists' Club held its regular meeting August 3. Charles Halkier was appointed captain of the bowling team and we are now ready to meet any florists' team desiring a match.

J. L. S.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Another week of cold weather, and if things do not change soon we shall almost forget what the sun looks like. These conditions, however, are conducive to plenty of good stock and no one can remember seeing anything like what we have had to select from this year. Asters are now at their best and mums are beginning to show themselves, though those seen thus far have been greenhouse grown. The people are most delightfully fickle this year and do not seem to take as kindly as they did last season to dahlias, gladioli, Japanese lilies and the other summer flowers, but are pinning their faith to roses, valley, carnations and orchids. As a consequence, much of the cheaper blossoms only find their proper recognition from the street hucksters. Asters are moving rather easily and the prices, though they are away down, do not seem to have reached the depths that they did one year ago. Violets are in small supply and also in small demand. Other kinds of outside stock are not creating any new prices that are fit to print. Business, except the funeral portion, is at a low ebb, but with the influx of the rusticating townspeople there should be a grand change in a short time.

Various Notes.

The Sunday afternoon closing movement, organized August 13, bids fair to be a permanent feature in this town and was observed by all the stores.

The display of tuberous rooted begonias at Golden Gate park is one of the finest ever seen there. It attracts a great deal of attention from the visiting public.

Climbing White Maman Cochet

The most valuable acquisition to our Climbing White Roses in the past few years is Climbing White Maman Cochet. Identical with the older variety in size, form and color, it has further proven to be one of the most profuse and continuous bloomers, strongest growers, of clean habit, glossy foliage and the flowers are borne on long, stiff, straight stems. These excellent points together with its freedom from mildew make it one of the most noteworthy additions to that class of Roses of which there is never a surplus—Hardy, White, Everblooming Climbers.

With practically 50 years' experience and in that time having handled millions of Roses, we are always careful in recommending new varieties, but we have no hesitancy in emphasizing everything we claim for Climbing White Maman Cochet.

We offer a limited stock of hardy field grown plants that will be ready January 1, 1912, at $1.00 each; $9.00 per dozen. Orders filled strictly in rotation.

PROVIDENCE.

William H. Tarbox, of East Greenwich, known as the "Dahlia King," is to act as one of the judges at the New England dahlia show, to be given September 15 to 17 in Boston; also at the New Haven dahlia show, at New Haven, Conn., September 13.

Walter S. Sword, of Valley Falls, and a party of four, have been on an automobile trip through the eastern section of the state, visiting the several greenhouses en route.

William E. Chappell, secretary of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, has the sympathy of a large circle of acquaintances in the recent death of his mother at New Bedford, in her eighty-eighth year.

Edward Hopkins, with W. S. Pino, is spending the month of August at Sebayo Lake, Me.

J. Smith was a visitor in the city last week, representing the T. W. Emerson Co., of Boston.

The fall show of the Newport Horticultural Society will be held September 16 to 18, with the annual ball September 19.

Robert Burns, of the Burke Rose Co., has just purchased a handsome new automobile.

Miss Lotta Smith, bookkeeper for Johnston Bros., is on her vacation, which she is spending at Narragansett Pier.

Mr. Geller, of the Geller Florist Supply Co., New York city, was a recent caller upon the florists in this city.

Johnston Bros. had the decorations for the recent Rubery wedding, consisting of woodbine, asparagus and goldenrod. The firm has just added a new delivery wagon and horse to its delivery department.

John Burke, of the Burke Rose Co., had a narrow escape from serious injury August 17. He was driving a young horse along Washington street, when it became frightened and ran away. Mr. Burke was thrown from the seat, but succeeded in retaining a hold on the harness and escaped, falling to the street. He was badly bruised, strained and shaken up.

Charles H. Hunt has begun the erection of two new houses on the lots recently purchased on Miner street, near his present range. They are to be 35 x100 feet, one for carnations and the other a palm house.

H. Corey, recently of New York, but now of Woonsocket, is bringing in some fine Japanese asters; also light gladiolus spikes.

Joseph Kopelman has made a decided change in his store front, changing the situation of the door so as to give additional show window display, greatly improving the exterior.

P. M. Phillips, of S. A. Weller & Co., Boston, was a visitor in this city last week. W. H. M.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston, June, 1912.

W. C. Harrison, of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., has recently returned from a month's trip to Yellowstone park.

Some of the largest peony people are advancing their prices on Festiva Maxima, being as closely sold out as they care to be.

The long-continued drought is beginning to affect the composure of some of the nurserymen, who find stock making much slower growth than they would like.

Mixed peonies in the E. Y. Teas & Son adv., page 91, August 17 issue, should have been quoted by the hundred and the thousand instead of by the dozen and the hundred.

Wm. A. Peterson, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, Chicago, recently purchased eighty acres of ground on Lincoln avenue, in the immediate neighborhood of his other property.

It is reported that the Wolverine Nursery Co., of Paw Paw, Mich., is favorably considering the project of establishing a branch nursery at Traverse City, Mich., in the center of the fruit section.

The annual report of the Tennessee State Board of Entomology shows that 242 nursery and greenhouse establishments have been inspected and certificated for the current year.

The season having been earlier than usual with the peony growers in the middle west, the stock has made about the usual growth, in spite of a rather dry summer, and digging will begin in the last week of August or first week in September.

The Oregon Nursery Co. has filed suit in the district court at Hillsboro against George A. Bradburn, of Roseburg, asking $20,000 damages for alleged false statements regarding the nursery stock of the plaintiff. The statements in question were published in a Portland daily June 26, 1910, and the article, which forms part of the complaint filed, was in the form of an interview with Mr. Bradburn, who in the published statement is quoted as saying that the trees were affected with anthracnose. The complaint states that such charges are injurious to the company's business.

Wagner Park Conservatories

SIDNEY, OHIO.

Quite a few nurserymen are beginning to wonder how much longer their stock will have to get along without rain. Growth is not all that could be desired.

Their state board of entomology is sending Tennessee nurserymen a bulletin entitled "The San Jose and Other Injurious Scale Insects, with Methods for their Control."

The Franco-American Nursery, at Pomona, Cal., formerly owned by Charles J. Carette, has been transferred to Isaac N. Elder, in exchange for a nine-room residence in Pomona and forty acres of land in the Mohawk valley, Arizona. The total value of the trade is said to have been $24,000.

The most elaborate report of any of the state entomological departments to reach The Review has come from F. L. Washburn, of Minnesota. It is a volume of 184 pages and contains a statement of the work of the department for two years, together with papers on the entomological side of agriculture, as well as horticulture. Inspection of nurseries is not obligatory in Minnesota, but is made on request of those who want certificates to comply with the laws of other states. In 1910 fifty-six establishments were inspected.

WINTERING BAY TREES.

Will you tell me the best way of wintering bay trees and the general treatment of them? A. A.

A cellar, shed or pit which can be kept at 35 to 40 degrees during the coldest weather will suit bays. As a rule, 40 degrees at night is the temperature given them. A higher temperature is not to be recommended, while they will not be damaged if the thermometer goes to 32 degrees, or even lower at times. They should not be kept too dark, or when exposed to sunlight they will be liable to brown badly. Supply them with sufficient water to keep the roots moist. They will not require many waterings in the cold months, but must not on any account be allowed to get into anything like a dust-dry condition. C. W.

ROOTING CALIFORNIA PRIVET.

Please give directions for rooting California privet cuttings at this season of the year. Can they be rooted better under glass than outside? E. C.

California privet can still be rooted from soft or half-ripened wood. The propagation would have been easier a month ago. Glass protection is necessary, but, if you have not a greenhouse, a coldframe will answer well. Place some warm stable manure in it. Mix with leaves and moisten well. Tramp firmly. Over this place four inches of sandy loam and put the cuttings in quite closely. Keep close. Lightly spray frequently on bright days and be sure to use shades to keep out the direct rays of the sun. Ventilate rather sparingly until the cuttings have made roots, then more freely. An ordinary propagating bench in a greenhouse will root privet, but you will find the closer atmosphere of a frame and its more uniform humidity much better for rooting these and many other trees and shrubs in July or August. The general method adopted in propagating California privet is to cut off the shoots late in the fall, remove the leaves, tie in bundles, bury in the ground over winter and plant closely in nursery rows in early spring, firming them well. Four to six inches between the cuttings will suffice and the rows should just be of sufficient width to allow of proper cultivation.

FALL SOWING OF ANNUALS.

Can you tell me how to grow sweet peas, cornflowers and larkspurs, sown in fall? I wish to sow them outdoors this fall, for flowering next spring. When is the best time to sow the seeds and how should it be done? A. V. B.

Sweet peas can be sown outdoors before the ground freezes. November is a suitable month and it is well to select a time when the ground is as dry as possible. Sow on well drained land, where water cannot stand, and cover three to four inches deep. Give a mulch of littery manure, meadow hay or straw after the ground freezes. Do not give it earlier, as where mice abound they will sometimes destroy all the seed. No growth is wanted before the ground freezes; the seed should lie practically dormant. Having tried fall seeding, I have concluded that as good results, or better, can be had from plants set out from small pots in April, or from spring seeding as soon as the ground opens. The sweet pea rows should be five feet apart.

Centaurea Cyanus, cornflower, is quite a hardy annual and, even if it germinates before frost, will winter all right. Sow in rows two feet apart about the middle of October. The annual larkspurs are rather more tender than the cornflowers and a more uncertain crop from fall sowing. The seed can go in about the last of October. Each of these want covering rather lightly, but a little more heavily than when spring sown, and a light mulch should be spread over them and removed about the end of March.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Little change has taken place in market conditions since last report. Carnations are coming along nicely. Asters have improved considerably in quality.

Various Notes.

The Bemb Floral Co. is at present in temporary quarters, which have been admirably transformed from a plain, barren room into a pretty flower store. The large show window represents a lily pond and clearly shows Mr. Pochelon's artistic talent along the line of scenic effect in decorating.

Harry Breitmeyer is wearing a fine coat of tan, received while touring through Michigan last week.

The newly appointed exhibition committee of the Detroit Florists' Club met recently and decided to hold a show in a modest way this coming fall. The place will be the Twentieth Century Club rooms. No definite arrangements have been made so far, but everything is shaping itself nicely.

The interior of Breitmeyer's new store is now ready for the plaster. The ceiling will be at least fifteen feet high in the center. The floor of both store and conservatory will be of large squares of dark red tile.

Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., passed through Detroit August 21 en route for northern Michigan.

Mrs. Taepke and her daughter, Laura, are still in the east.

The annual outing of the Detroit Florists' Club will be held on Tuesday, August 29, at Bois Blanc Island.

The Market.

Trade has been rather dull for the last few weeks. If it were not for the funeral work, little would be done. This week opened well with orders for designs, on account of the death of one of the city's most prominent sportsmen.

Roses are starting to come in. Killarney, White Killarney and Kaiserin are quite plentiful. Carnations have not yet made their appearance. Some Golden Glow chrysanthemums are coming on the market and look well. Asters are plentiful, but, as a rule, the stems are short and the flowers small. Gladioli are abundant. Dahlias are late this year. Last season they were in before asters.

Various Notes.

S. A. Frost has returned from a two weeks' vacation in Muskoka.

Geo. M. Geraghty spent two weeks at his summer home on Georgian Bay.

Jack Plumbtree, assistant manager at Tidy's, is away on vacation.

Harry Dillemuth was one of the judges of the trade exhibits at the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association at Ottawa.

Thomas Manton attended the convention.

J. A. Simmers has made extensive alterations in his store on King street. Formerly the office was away at the back. It is now located at the front of the store, where there is more room and much more light.

A. Simmers has returned from spending his holidays at Sparrow Lake, Muskoka.

Herman Simmers attended the convention of the American Seedsmen's Association.

Mr. Annandale, of the Steele-Briggs Seed Co., has returned from a trip to Europe. He states that conditions over there are bad. The weather has been hot and dry and nearly all crops are a failure. An unusual event, the like of which at that date can not be brought to mind by the oldest inhabitants of the country, occurred June 12. On that day a heavy frost was felt. This also helped to ruin crops. Mr. Crossland and Walter Steele, of the Steele-Briggs Co., were at the seedsmen's convention. E. A. F.

NEW ORLEANS.

Club Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting August 17, at Kolb's German tavern. Claude Ory presided, and C. R. Panter, the secretary, was at his desk. Many members were out of town, either attending the Baltimore convention or at the various summer resorts; consequently there was only a small attendance.

Resolutions were adopted on the death of Louis Lieber.

Reports from several members showed that the local market trade is now almost at a standstill. The same reports of dullness come from the storekeepers; the northern shipments have been reduced to a minimum and consist of roses, carnations, asters, gladioli, etc.

J. A. Newsham exhibited a fine collection of samples and Crego's asters. The flowers were large, with long, strong stems, and were highly commended.

Various Notes.

Charles Eble, C. W. Eichling, Harry Papworth and U. J. Virgin attended the national convention at Baltimore, and expected, at its conclusion, to extend their journey either east or west, for business purposes.

P. A. Chopin and family will leave this week for Hendersonville, N. C., to take a month's rest. R. E.

Asheville, N. C.—E. E. Brown, proprietor of the Brownhurst Greenhouses, is erecting two more houses, each 22x 135, for carnations and sweet peas. In these houses he is building cement beds, with sides two feet high. He is also changing his heating system from hot water to steam.

Dreer's Specials in Palms For August

The high quality of our Palms is so well known to the trade that we do not feel it necessary to elaborate on same. Our stock this season is even more extensive than in previous years, a large part of our new nursery at Riverview, consisting of more than two and one-half acres of glass, now also being devoted to this class of stock. The quality is fully up to our established high standard.

ARECA LUTESCENS

A splendid lot of well-shaped plants, of good color.

NEW BEDFORD.

The Market.

The usual summer dullness prevails, outside of funeral work, which has been exceptionally good the last few weeks. Flowers just now are rather plentiful. Asters are the flowers principally depended on; these retail at 25 cents and 35 cents per dozen. Carnations are about all gone from the old plants; what few are left retail at 35 cents per dozen. Some of the growers have already planted their young carnation stock in the houses. Sweet peas retail at 40 cents and 50 cents per hundred blooms. Some nice gladiolus blooms are to be seen; these bring $2 per dozen retail; others retail at $1 and $1.50 per dozen. There are also plenty of flowers to pick from for bouquets, etc. We need rain badly. Asters of the late crop are now making their appearance.

Various Notes.

Mrs. E. H. Chamberlain is away for a two weeks' vacation in the White Mountains.

Early closing is still the rule, with a half holiday on Wednesday. W. L.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

There are plenty of cut flowers of all kinds to supply the demand. Fine lots of Harrisii lilies are coming in and are selling well. Carnations and roses are improving. Trade at the Sixth Avenue Market is at a standstill.

Various Notes.

The greatest event of the week was the fair at the Carthage grounds. August 17 was the day for the general floral display. Ben George, one of our leading florists, received most of the first prizes. He was first on general display, first on plants, first on cut flowers, asters, gladioli and roses. Mr. Brackmeyer received the second prizes.

GERANIUMS

We have no hesitation in claiming that our collection of Standard Varieties stands preëminent among such collections in the country. As far as only distinct and useful varieties are concerned, it is the result of the most careful selection from hundreds of varieties from the foremost European and American introducers, and comprises only those sorts which years of experience have taught us are the very best in their several different classes, and which can be depended on to produce the most satisfactory results, and which represent the highest Standard of development yet obtained in their special class or color.

In keeping our list up to this high standard, we are continually adding many of the newer introductions and discarding some of the old sorts, which have been favorites but are now superseded by others, which are more beautiful in form, greater in substance, more exquisite in color, more satisfactory in growth.

We have prepared to propagate these in large quantities, having added thousands of plants to our already large stock. If you can use them in large quantities, write us, and we may be able to make you a special price.

We are booking orders for DAHLIA AND CANNA Roots for Fall delivery.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Business for August has been unusually quiet, with only a limited amount of good stock on the market. Asters, of the early varieties, have been short and almost unfit for use in good bouquet work. Carnations are a thing of the past, as far as any quality goes. Roses have been fairly good, but were found only in limited quantities when it was necessary to use them. Lilies have been used extensively in funeral work.

Poinsettias appear to be the main product of the florists this season, as every one is going in strongly for them. Begonias are grown largely, but not by so many of the growers.

Gladioli are used as a main decoration for the store windows and have helped out to a large extent. Green goods have given the windows a summery look for the last month and we might add that the ideas were clever and have attracted the attention of every passer-by. Mill scenes with the natural flow of water and the little bridges are almost like the original country. Stafford, Palmer and Anderson are the leaders in this respect.

Various Notes.

Miss Sauer, one of the few single folks engaged in the florists' business here, left the ranks last week and was quietly married. The couple took a western trip.

David Scott distinguished himself last week in the ball game between the Elks and Shriners by making two three-base hits and catching an excellent game for the victorious Shriner team.

John Grabheintz, who is a graduate of the Sangster store, has started in business for himself on Broadway.

R. A. S.

Salem, Mass.—W. T. Walke sold immense quantities of his deep pink snapdragon, which was a winner at the Boston show in March. It is a grand bedder, as is demonstrated in beds leading to his trim, well kept place. There are three other colors, dwarf varieties sent out by local seedsmen, that are admirable companions to this pink one.

Waverley, Mass.—When the writer called, Edgar Bros. were finishing the harvesting of an immense crop of Comet tomatoes, to be followed by sweet peas, sown where they will bloom. Bob Edgar says he is studying out what to work in meanwhile, as there is a long period between. Mums, planted on the ground in high houses, are looking fine.

Cyclamen Giganteum

Fine, thrifty 3-inch stock, $5.00 per 100.

REMEMBER

Araucarias Are Our Specialty

We have them by the thousands—front, sides, back, everywhere.

Araucarias! Araucarias!! Araucarias!!!

Fresh and Green.

No one can beat us in this line.

WARNING.

DON'T BE DECEIVED! Now, as well as for the last 25 years, we hold the ground as leaders in the importing, growing and shipping of our specialty, the Araucaria.

The Home  of Araucarias.

ARAUCARIAS. 6000 just received from Antwerp, Belgium, more coming by next steamer. Araucaria Excelsa, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, palms, etc. Florists, you know we are leaders for the last 25 years in importing, growing and shipping this so well known evergreen decorative plant, the Araucaria, more in favor now than ever. Almost every florist knows our Araucarias, therefore no argument is needed for our goods. We know what our customers want and need, and have provided for them and set aside special specimen plants of the Spring Importation 1910. These specimen plants will stand the climate everywhere and are especially adapted for decorating lawns, porches, verandas, bungalows, private summer residences, hotels and boarding-houses at the seashore or elsewhere. Our prices are very low for fine stock.

Our so well-known Christmas Begonia Erfordii, a constant bloomer for the fall holidays, and during the whole winter is never without a flower; in light pink, pink, dark pink and turning gradually into a bright red (big trusses of flowers), 2½-in. pots, $5.00; 3-in., 8c; 4-in., 12c.

Just look! Araucaria Excelsa, raised from tag cuttings, 6 to 7-in. pots, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 6 to 7 tiers, 25, 28, 30, 35 to 40 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50 each.

Araucaria Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6 to 7-in. pots, fine bushy plants, $1.25, $1.50 to $1.75.

Araucaria Excelsa, new importation, 5, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 2 to 3-year-old, 3, 4 to 5 tiers, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 to 20 inches high, 40c, 50c, 75c to $1.00.

Araucaria, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 5½ to 6-in. pots, $1.00 to $1.25.

Kentia Belmoreana, 4-in., 25c, 30c to 35c.

Kentia Belmoreana, 4-year-old, 26 to 28 inches high, $1.00 to $1.25; 4-year-old, 30 to 35 inches high, $1.50. Kentia Belmoreana, combination or made up of 3 plants, 3-year-old, 24 to 26 inches high, 75c to $1.00; 4-year-old, 26 to 28 inches high, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50.

Kentia Forsteriana, 4-year-old, 24 to 26 inches high, 75c to $1.00; 30 to 35 inches high, $1.50.

Cocos Weddelliana, made up of 3 plants, 4 to 5-in. pots, 30c, 40c to 50c; 3-in., 15c.

Areca Lutescens, 4-in., 25c.

Cycas Revoluta, Sago palm, genuine large leaf variety imported direct from Japan, 6 to 7-in. pots, from 5 to 15 leaves to a plant, 10c per leaf.

Ficus Elastica (Rubber Plant), 5½ to 6-in. pots, 35c, 40c and 50c each.

Asparagus Plumosus Nanus, 2-in., $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000; 3-in., $5.00 per 100; 4-in., 10c each.

3 HOUSES IN FERNS

Well grown in pots, not on benches.

Nephrolepis, Scottii, Scholzeli and Whitmani, 5½-in. pots, 30c, 40c and 50c. A good assortment.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each article advertised in this department of The Review is good, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

THE CHEAPEST FUEL?

I am building a greenhouse, 32x130 feet and about eleven feet high, for growing lettuce, cucumbers and tomatoes. I intend to heat the house with hot water, but I cannot figure out which would be the cheapest fuel. Here, in southwestern Oregon, wood costs $8 per cord; coal, $8 per ton; gas, $1.50 per thousand cubic feet, or at the rate of $1.25 per thousand for 15,000 feet and $1 per thousand for 30,000 feet. I shall greatly appreciate any information you may give me on the subject. E. V. M.

So much depends upon the character of the coal and the heating qualities of the wood that no really positive answer can be given to this question. Besides, the amount of wood in a cord varies in different parts of the country; while it is a pile eight feet long and four feet high, the length of the wood may vary from sixteen inches to four feet. However, even if it is 4-foot wood, it is hardly probable that a cord would have a heating value equal to that from a ton of coal.

If the coal is a good grade of run of mine, one ton would probably equal at least 10,000 cubic feet of gas, so that at $8 per ton it would be cheaper than gas at the minimum price of $1 per thousand feet. Even though the saving of labor in the way of firing and removing the ashes when gas is used is well worth considering, it is not likely that under any circumstances the gas would be found as economical as the coal.

A KANSAS CARNATION HOUSE.

We are building a small greenhouse, 20x40, and should like to know whether the piping we have planned is enough to heat it for carnations, in this Kansas climate. We are planning to use two 2-inch flows along the roof, two 1¼-inch returns on each side of the solid bed, four 1¼-inch returns under each bench, and then a 2-inch return back to the boiler, which is in the basement of the house. The greenhouse runs north and south and is about four and one-half feet high to the eaves, with eighteen inches of glass in the east and west sides. The south end contains a good deal of glass; the north end is a solid stone wall, with two small windows. We expect to bank up the north end with manure above the windows in winter. The side walls and south end are stone also up to the glass; that is, to the height of about three feet. The height to the ridge pole is nine and one-half feet. We could put another 1¼-inch pipe all around the solid bed if necessary. We shall be grateful for suggestions concerning the matter, as it is rather new to us. C. C.

In order to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees, it would be desirable to have about seven square feet of radiating surface for each foot in length of the house. Two 2-inch flow pipes would be sufficient to supply this amount of radiation. In addition to the radiation provided by the flow pipes, 5¾ feet will be required in the returns. As 1¼-inch pipe gives four and one-third square feet of radiating surface for each linear foot, it will take fourteen runs of this size of pipe in the returns to make up the needed radiating surface. While the foregoing size of pipe will give fairly good results and might be used if one has it on hand, it would be better to run two 2½-inch pipes on the plate, with nine 2-inch returns distributed upon the walls and along the sides of the solid bed.

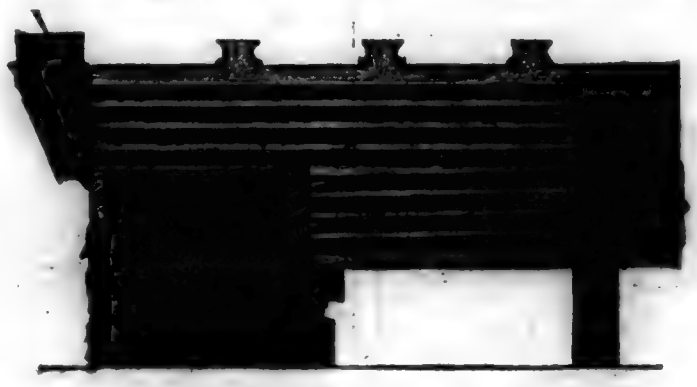
PAINT FOR STEAM PIPES.

We wish to paint the steam pipes in our greenhouses. Will you kindly inform us whether there is any paint or preparation known that will not throw off gases or vapors injurious to the stock when the pipes are heated?

W. S.

The ordinary coal tar and cheap asphalt paints are quite unfit for use in greenhouses, especially upon the heating pipes. The better grade of asphaltum paints can be used for this purpose, but, as they give a glossy surface, the efficiency of the radiating surface would be somewhat lessened. A comparatively cheap, safe and durable paint can be made by adding one part of linseed oil to two or three parts of turpentine and putting in enough lampblack to make a moderately thick paint.

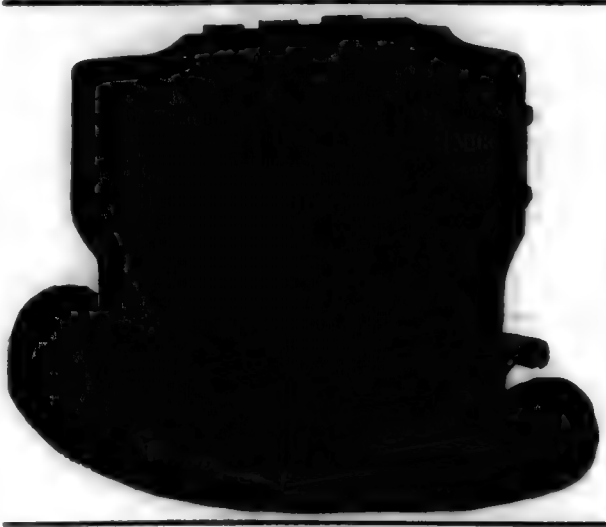
POSITION OF HEATING PIPES.



Should steam pipes, fastened to the gutter posts, be placed up near the gutter or down low, to get the best results? When two houses are connected, is it advisable to place two coils on the same row of posts, or would that cause too much heat in one place?

J. W. R. & C.

Ordinarily it is best to have the steam pipes fairly well up from the ground, under the gutters. In a greenhouse there is but little difference in the distribution of the heat, and by having the returns somewhat elevated the condensed water more readily makes its way back to the boiler.



In connected houses there is no objection to having twice as many pipes upon the middle gutter posts as in the case of a single house. On the other hand, however, if the houses have raised benches it is often desirable to place rather more of the pipes under the benches than in single houses. This would give a rather more even distribution of the heat and there would also be some benefit from placing the pipes under the benches, as they would furnish bottom heat and this tends to promote the growth of the plants upon the benches.

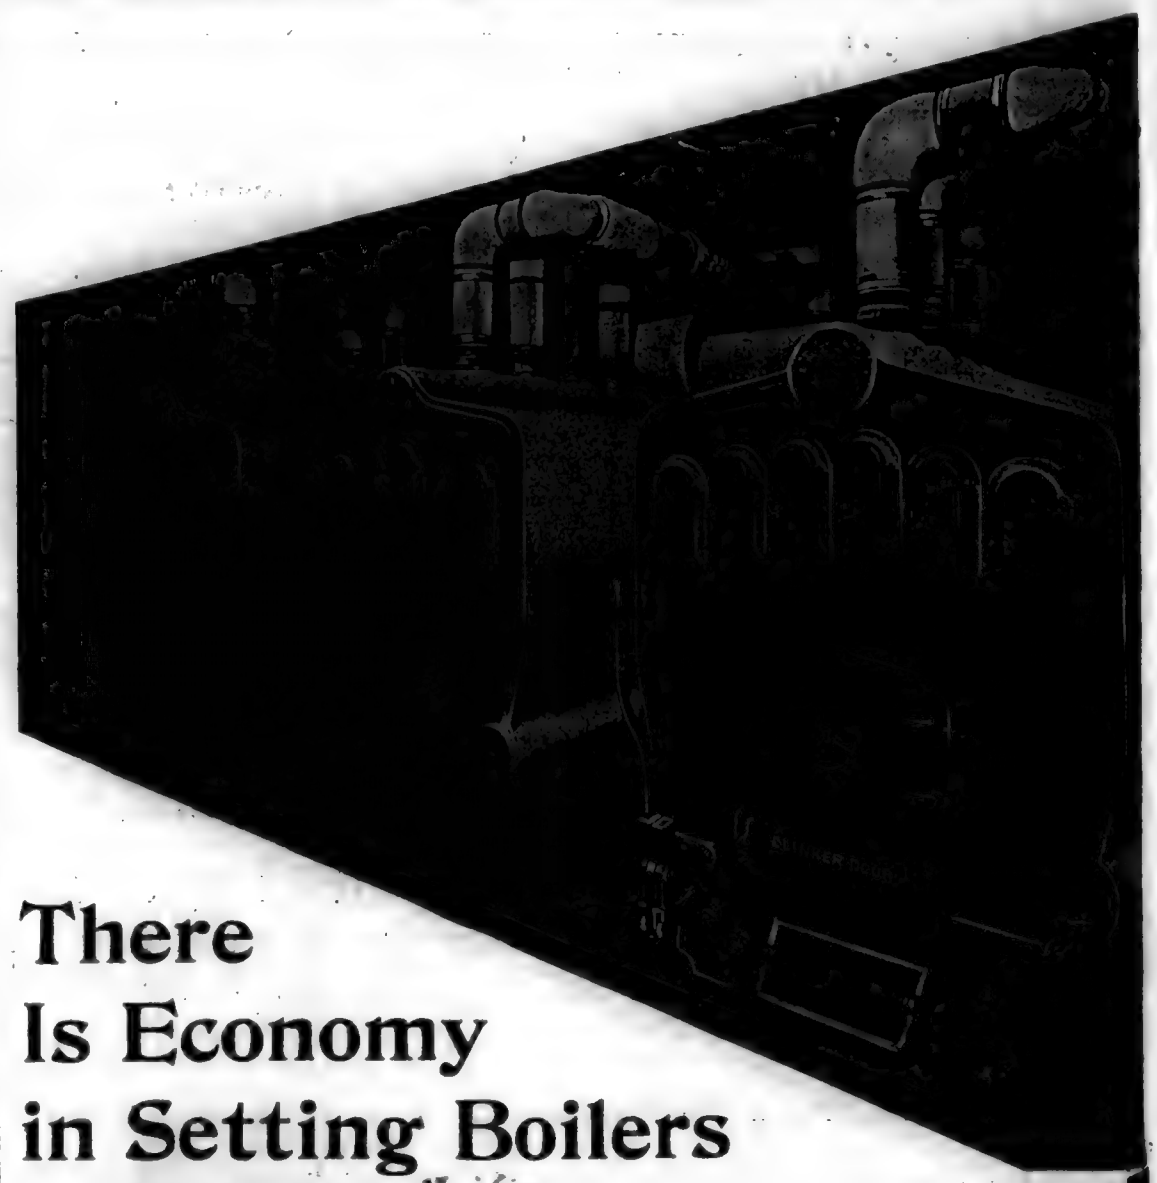
A HOUSE IN SOUTHERN TEXAS.

Kindly advise me as to the best way to pipe a greenhouse 32x100 feet, four feet to the eaves and eleven feet to the ridge. The coldest weather here is about 12 or 15 degrees below freezing point, and there are, altogether, only from three to five weeks of cold weather in the whole winter, but the cold snaps are always accompanied by high north winds. I have been planning to run two 2-inch flows from the boiler straight up to the roof of the shed, where I would attach tees, connect with the expansion tank and run two 2-inch flows near the ridge, with a fall toward the farther end. From these I would run two 2-inch returns one each side at the eaves, two under the middle bench and one on each side between the middle bench and the eaves. This would make ten runs of 2-inch pipes in all, or would it be better to use twelve runs of 2-inch pipes?

W. S. H.



The number of pipes will depend considerably on the exposure of the house as well as the temperature desired. If it will do no harm to allow the temperature to drop to 50 degrees in the colder nights, ten 2-inch runs would probably answer, but if it is necessary to maintain 60 degrees, more radiation would be desirable. At any rate, the use of two 2-inch flow pipes will not suffice in a house of this size. At least two 2½-inch pipes would be needed; or, if 2-inch pipes are preferred for the flows, put in four 2-inch flows and eight 2-inch returns.

Fall River, Mass.—Chatterton Warburton is adding a house, 12x90, for ferns. His stock is in fine shape. The new rose, Mrs. Aaron Ward, is popular here. Maryland is being grown successfully as a perpetual. A sport is being carefully guarded. It is a lovely thing.

There Is Economy in Setting Boilers in Batteries

Economy, because you have an absolute control of the coal you burn. You run only one boiler when one is needed; more, when more are needed. You are not running one immense boiler with its big grate to keep firing, no matter what the weather is.

Boilers in batteries mean not only just the amount of heat you need and no more, but a tremendous saving in coal and labor.

Then think of the ease with which the sections of even our large 36-inch boiler can be handled when setting up, in comparison with the tremendous task of installing one of those mammoth wrought-steel boilers. Think of the masonry work necessary—think of the tubes that in a short time will need to be replaced.

So much for batteries—now a word concerning the "Burnham" itself. It's made especially for greenhouse work, and it works as no other boiler works—not only a matter of coal economy but time economy. It's quickly fired, quickly cleaned, and we honestly believe it harnesses up more heat from less coal than any greenhouse boiler made.

Here is a suggestion: Order your Burnham now. Then we will set it up at the factory at once and give it a thorough pressure test. Then we will take it down, mark it, set it aside and hold it for you. When you are ready, the boiler will then be ready—no delays.

A good many of our orders for this fall's delivery were booked along in February. The boiler costs you nothing until delivered, and it protects you against delays of the rush season.

Don't simply say—"Why, that's a good idea," and then not do anything. Send your order and send it this very day.

$2.50 per gallon; $1.00 per quart.

FUNGINE

An infallible remedy for mildew, rust and other fungous diseases. A clean, safe and easily applied spraying material.

Prof. W. F Massey, associate editor of the Market Growers' Journal, replying to an inquirer for a remedy for black spot on roses, writes (July 1st, 1911): "The Fungine advertised by the Aphine Company is worth trying on this disease. It is promising here as a fungicide."

$2.00 per gallon; 75c per quart.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Business last week did not amount to much. There was a fair quantity of stock, but the demand was weak and there was not much doing. This was fortunate, as nobody had much time to attend to business. The local florists had all they could do working on the various committees and seeing that visitors were being cared for.

The Convention.

Now that the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the S. A. F. is a matter of history, there is hope in the breast of every Baltimore florist that all those throngs of visitors who were with us during last week were pleased with the reception they met with in this city, and that from this time onward they will always have a good word and a kindly feeling in their hearts for the local craft.

Weather conditions were ideal for the convention and we believe our prediction that Baltimore would prove to be an ideal convention city has been verified. The attendance, also, was all that could be desired. The trade exhibit was fully up to expectations and was a fine showing of what the flower business is today. It was a sight worth seeing and no one could view the varied and extensive exhibits without learning something that would pay him many times for the cost of his trip.

The various local committees had everything well in hand and all of the numerous entertainments moved off smoothly, as had been planned. The sporting events were well contested in every instance and the visitors surely deserved their prizes. We certainly feel proud of having elected R. Vincent, Jr., as president of the S. A. F., and also of having elected Mrs. E. V. Boone as president of the Ladies' S. A. F. Q.

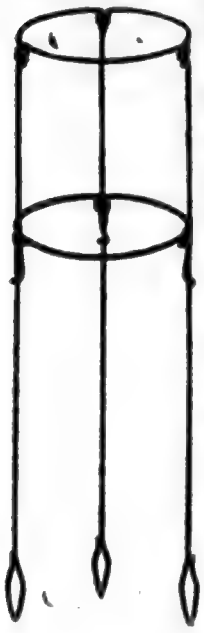
A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.



"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

The Market.

Conditions in general are just the reverse of what they were a fortnight ago. In the first place, there is stock of all kinds galore, with asters and gladioli predominating. The demand, however, is far from satisfactory; consequently stock is at the mercy of the buyers most of the time. Even funeral work is practically at a standstill.

Various Notes.

Miss Rose Semler, vice-president of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., who spent the last two weeks touring the west, including Yellowstone Park, returned August 21 and pronounced it a grand trip. She does not intend to return to work till about September 1.

George Holton, superintendent of the Humboldt avenue plant of the Holton & Hunkel Co., is back in the harness, greatly benefited by his two weeks' vacation, spent at Waupun and Fox Lake, visiting friends and dropping the fish a line.

J. M. Fox & Son report having booked several good sized wedding orders for next month.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pollworth, who attended the S. A. F. convention, are still in the east, visiting other points of interest, and are not expected home till the end of this week.

A card received from Nic Zweifel, dated August 12, at Yukon, states that he is having a great time, enjoying fine scenery and fine weather. He was headed for Dawson, Alaska, at the time of writing.

A visit to the North Milwaukee carnation growers, August 20, found all stock well established and, in spite of the dry weather which prevailed all summer, free from red spider and disease.

E. C. Cleveland, who was employed at the greenhouses of the C. C. Pollworth Co. for a year and a half, opened the Cleveland Floral Shop at 934 National avenue about July 1. He says that business so far, in spite of the dull season, has been away ahead of expectations. He is a Milwaukee boy and we trust that he will make good.

TUESDAY

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

North Abington, Mass.—Littlefield & Wyman are building a 100-foot addition to their greenhouses, on Adams street.

Cold Spring, N. Y.—J. S. Cunningham is building a workroom and cold storage cellar, a necessary adjunct to his business.

Fulton, Ill.—John Aggen has purchased the glass for a new greenhouse which he has planned to erect in the south part of town.

from carrying away the mulch. The covering should not be heavy. Without it the late frosts will heave many of the plants out of the ground and the losses are likely to be considerable.

October is an excellent month in which to plant the bulk of perennials. Some sorts, such as Anemone Japonica, Lobelia cardinalis, pompon chrysanthemums, incarvilleas and some others, should not be planted until spring. Iris, both German and Japanese, will succeed far better and show a far smaller percentage of loss if planted late in August or during the first half of September. Too deep planting will kill them. They are also liable to rot if on ground not well drained, and a heavy mulch is also injurious. Peonies will do well planted either in September or October. The earlier ones will do the best. Phloxes, delphiniums, aconitums, aquilegias, etc., do well set out in October.

Possibly the reason some of your shrubs died was that you brought the roots in direct contact with the layers of manure. No shrubs or trees want manure about their roots when planted. Keep it below, or, better still, use it above as a mulch. Thousands of shrubs are killed annually by purchasers who get the erroneous idea that they will hurry them along by using manure freely in the soil at planting time. When manure is used at all, it must be thoroughly incorporated with the soil and should always be well decayed. C. W.

ROSES

DISCOLORED ROSE FOLIAGE.

I am sending you under separate cover some samples of rose foliage, the condition of which I am at a loss to account for. The plants were set out in May. They were good, healthy plants at the time and appeared to be doing well until a couple of weeks ago, when the foliage on some of the plants commenced to turn like the samples. The leaves on our rose stock turned like this two years ago and the plants gradually died. We shall be glad if you can give any remedy for it, or suggest any cause for the disease, as the plants have received the best of attention, and until the last two seasons we have never been similarly troubled. E. E. G.

The foliage forwarded has a browned and burnt-like appearance around the edges. There are several possible reasons for this trouble. If you are in the habit of fumigating with hydrocyanic acid gas and have given an overexposure or used it on a warm night, occasional plants through the house will be similarly affected. Too much ammonia in the atmosphere is another possible cause. Sometimes growers mulch with fresh cow manure in the hot weather and, unless there is an abundance of ventilation night and day, some of the foliage will be affected in this way, plants at times losing all their leaves.

I would advise keeping some air on all night as long as you can. Do not close up the house tightly at all. It will also be the best of economy to use a little fire heat on damp and cloudy days and every evening after this time; also avoid doing any damping in the house after 2 o'clock, so that a dry, buoyant atmosphere will prevail at night. C. W.

SPOTTED ROSE LEAVES.

Can you tell me the reason for the enclosed rose leaves being spotted? H. Y.

I presume the leaves are from plants under glass. They were quite dried up when received. As near as I can diagnose, there is black spot on your rose foliage. This is liable to attack American Beauty, as well as Richmond and one or two other varieties to a less extent. The usual cause is syringing too late in the day. If the foliage is damp at nightfall, you are pretty sure to get a dose of the dreaded black spot. An atmosphere overcharged with moisture is also bad and will help produce the same disease. The remedy is to do all the watering and syringing early in the day. Never syringe on dull days. If, perchance, a clear morning gives place to dark skies and rain, take a cane and go over your plants, tapping them to throw off as much water as possible. Keep some steam or hot water in the mains. Do not close the house up tightly, but leave on a little air all night for some time yet. Later in the season this black spot is a disease to be feared, but if you use due care in syringing and are not niggardly on coal it can be kept away.

We have had a hot summer and the undue forcing has made roses softer than usual. A sharp watch is therefore necessary to keep black spot, aphis and mildew in check. It is early for black spot. The soft growth due to heat makes the plants more susceptible, however. C. W.

WINTERING HARDY ROSES.

We are growing several thousand hybrid perpetual and hybrid tea roses in the field and are anxious to learn the best method of wintering them. Can these roses be heeled in deep frames in soil or sand? Can they be safely wintered with a protection of manure around the outside and with sashes over the top? If you know of any better way, we should be pleased to have you tell us of it. We live in central Ohio. L. S. C.

The hybrid perpetual roses should winter outdoors in your latitude if the earth about them is drawn up to the stems to the height of six or eight inches before the ground freezes. If these are wanted for spring sales, your plan of heeling them in frames, with sashes over them, will be all right. Do not put the sashes on until the soil about the plants is well frozen. Air out freely during any open spells during the winter, to dry up any moldiness appearing. Soak the roots of the roses well with water if heavy rains are not forthcoming after they are heeled in. If the roots get at all dry, they may apparently winter well, but will speedily go to pieces when planted out in the spring. This is the trouble with many roses which are lifted, tied in convenient bundles and heeled in sand or loam, which is too often far drier than it ought to be.

Hybrid teas are more tender than hybrid perpetuals. The same winter treatment under sashes is excellent for them. Where frames, sheds or cellars are not at disposal, any of these roses can be wintered successfully by digging trenches on land with a good slope, where water can not stand, and burying the plants entirely, doing the work just before freezing weather. C. W.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

["Chrysanthemums and How to Grow Them, as Garden Plants for Outdoor Bloom and for Cut Flowers Under Glass," by I. L. Powell. Doubleday, Page & Co., New York. Size, 5½x8 inches; 201 pages; thirty-one full-page halftone illustrations. Price, net, $1.10; postage, 10 cents.]

"Chrysanthemums and How to Grow Them," by I. L. Powell, is one of two books that have just been published as additions to the series of volumes entitled the Garden Library.

In any attempt to form an opinion of a book of this sort—a handbook or manual, for daily guidance in some one of life's industries—the first question that arises and demands an answer is: "Does the author possess a practical knowledge of the subject, a knowledge derived largely from personal experience, or is he a mere spinner of theories?" In this case the author is so widely known among florists that, as chairmen of public meetings are wont to say, he needs no introduction. He is head gardener on the estate of Samuel Thorne, at Millbrook, N. Y. He is a member of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and also of the Society of American Florists. And he has skill in writing as well as in chrysanthemum growing; the language of his book is clear and pointed.

A few of the chapter titles might be mentioned, as giving some idea of the helpful character of the book. On picking up the volume, the reader begins, as is befitting, with "Points for the Beginner," and advances through "Preparing the Soil and Propagation," "The Science and Practice of Feeding," "Growing Exhibition Blooms," "Growing for Commercial Purposes," etc., until he ends with "Cultural Hints Month by Month" and "Types and Varieties." At the close he also finds that which, for some mysterious reason, is often entirely lacking in otherwise good books—a well arranged index.

The book is neatly bound in green cloth and the type is large and plain. The illustrations are instructive as well as attractive, as may be inferred from some of their titles. For instance, there are pictures of "Buds and Disbudding," "Root Cuttings," "Taking the Bud," "The Growth of the Buds," "The Reflexed and Incurved Types," etc.

This, or any other book in the Garden Library, may be obtained from The Review at the publishers' price.

["Vines and How to Grow Them," by William C. McCollom. Doubleday, Page & Co., New York. Size, 5½x8 inches; 315 pages; thirty-one full-page halftone illustrations. Price, net, $1.10; postage, 10 cents.]

An extended description of this book, "Vines and How to Grow Them," by William C. McCollom, is scarcely necessary, since much that has just been said about another volume in the series is equally applicable, in a general way, to this one. The style of binding, printing and illustrating is the same in both cases. This book, like the other, is written by a practical gardener, who, besides understanding his subject, also understands the use of words. Mr. McCollom has an established reputation as a writer for the horticultural press.

The first few chapter headings, suggestive of the entire contents of the book, are as follows: "Uses and Habits of Vines," "When and How to Plant," "Soil and Cultivation," "Supports and Trellises," "Pruning and Management," "Insects and Diseases," "Winter-killing and How to Prevent It." The titles of some of the illustrations are: "How Vines Climb," "Before and After Pruning," "When and When Not to Prune," "The Pergola in Winter and Summer," etc. The volume closes with a list of "Vines for Special Purposes," a "Selected List of Climbing Roses," a "Planting Table for Vines," and an index.

If these two handbooks are fair samples of the volumes in the Garden Library, the series as a whole is of much practical value. For sale by The Review at the publishers' price.

HOME-SAVED CYCLAMEN SEED.

In the fall of 1909 I bought some quite expensive cyclamen seeds from a European specialist and raised about 1,000 fine plants. This summer I saved about a couple of thousand seeds from the plants. Can I get as good cyclamens from seeds of my own saving as the ones I bought from the specialist?

H. H.

Your home-saved cyclamen will grow and flower all right, but you will probably not find the quality as satisfactory as from the choice English and German imported strains, which are all carefully hand-pollinated and kept in batches of distinct colors to keep the varieties and types true.

C. W.

Hartford, Conn.—Florist Peterson, at the Whiting Greenhouses, says they have a lovely sport from My Maryland, which is being carefully watched.

Rhapis Flabelliformis.

RHAPIS FLABELLIFORMIS.

Good for House Decoration.

Rhapis flabelliformis, of which a good picture is here presented, is by no means a new palm, though not so common as the kentias and arecas have become of late years. It was introduced to Europe from its native home in southern China more than 100 years ago, or, to be exact, in the year 1774. It is a fan-leaved palm, the segments of the leaves being blunt, and erose—that is, having the appearance of having been bitten off at the ends—and it is not a rapid-growing plant.

Owing in part to the last mentioned characteristic, and also to the fact that it is propagated chiefly by division, it is not easy to work up a stock of this palm. Consequently, in many establishments it has been set aside in favor of species that may be grown and propagated more rapidly.

The Seeds are Scarce.

Under cultivation this palm seldom seeds; hence its seeds are rarely offered in the market, one reason for this being found in the fact that some plants produce only male flowers, others only female, and occasionally plants are found bearing perfect flowers from which fertile seeds result.

A common name for this palm is the ground rattan, and it is said that the slender, cane-like stems are used commercially in China and Japan, and are sometimes exported.

The culture of Rhapis flabelliformis presents no special difficulty and it will flourish under the same treatment as is ordinarily given to kentias, though enduring a lower temperature than the kentias without injury, and as its foliage is tough and hard, it is really an excellent palm for house decoration.

Division of the plants should be performed in the spring or early summer, being careful to retain as much root as possible with the divisions, and the divided plants should be kept in a rather close atmosphere, syringed freely, and protected from the sun until they become established.

There is also a variegated form of this palm, the leaves of which are striped with yellow, but it is somewhat weaker in growth than the type, and of less value.

CARNATIONS

FERTILIZER FOR CARNATIONS.

Would you put the blood, bone and potash fertilizer in carnation soil before filling the benches? S. M.

Well rotted cow or stable manure is the safest manure for your carnations. It would be all right to add some fine bone, but the blood, bone and potash mixture I would prefer not to use now. Rather apply it in the form of surface dressings, which, however, the plants should not require until after Christmas if the soil has been well prepared.

C. W.

TOPPING CARNATIONS.

I have planted my first bench of carnations—Enchantress and White Enchantress. They are doing well and are throwing up shoots. Some of the plants have shoots from six to eight inches in length. Will you please tell me just how these should be broken back, how often the plants should be trimmed and when they will begin blooming? They were planted during the last week of July. M. P.

The time for you to stop topping your carnations should depend on when you want to begin to cut blooms. At this time of the year you can figure on about six to eight weeks from the time the bud shows until the bloom is open. If you do not care to cut many blooms until the mums are gone, then I would advise you to go over the beds and top back every shoot that is near showing a bud the last week in August. In breaking back the shoots, simply break the stem just above the highest joint you want to leave. Follow the same rule as in topping in the field, always striving to keep your plants symmetrical.

A. F. J. B.

PREPARING CARNATION SOIL.

I wish to ask your advice as to old land for greenhouse soil. I have some old but good limestone land, which I wish to use for greenhouse soil for roses and carnations next year. I plowed in cow manure—about one-sixth part manure. Now, what is best for sod? How would rye or crimson clover do, if plowed under in the fall? When is the best time to sow crimson clover? J. C.

If you wish to use this soil for your carnations next summer, I would advise you to sow it down at once with cowpeas and rye. Let it grow until late in the fall and then turn it under. Another plan would be to sow it to crimson clover at once and turn that under in the spring after it has made several inches of growth. If your soil is heavy, I would advise you to use the cowpeas and rye, but if the soil is in good condition and you merely want to add more fertility, then use the clover. Your seedsman can tell you how much to use of any one of them to a given area. If you had a couple of years to prepare this soil, you could get a good blue grass sod, but you have not enough time if you want to use the soil next year.

A. F. J. B.

SCHIZANTHUS IN POTS.

When and how should we plant the seeds of the various types of schizanthus to insure blooms on inside pot plants as early as possible? Any information as to planting or culture will be appreciated. C. B.

For an early batch of schizanthus, seed should have been sown during the first week in August, in pans or flats. Pot off the seedlings singly, or prick off in flats and pot later. Grow in frames, in preference to greenhouses, until the end of October. Then place in a cold house, where the night temperature runs from 40 to 45 degrees at night. To keep them bushy, pinch several times before allowing them to flower. Grow them as cool and airy as possible, to make them stocky. A temperature of 50 degrees or over will make them drawn and unsightly. Schizanthus are quite strong feeders and like a generous compost, with frequent waterings with liquid manure when established in their flowering pots, which should be six to eight inches in diameter.

Schizanthus Wisetonensis is the best variety for pot culture, being of a dwarf habit. Grandiflorus oculatus retusus and others grow too tall. Successional sowings can be made at intervals a month apart and plants had in flower from Christmas to Memorial day. If preferred, seed can be started in small pots, leaving three seedlings in each. The only trouble with this plan is that you are liable to get more than one color in a pot. S. Wisetonensis is not procurable in separate colors; the prevailing shades are all pleasing, being mainly pink or white. C. W.

NAME OF ELDER.

Can you give me the name of the elder, a leaf of which I send under separate cover? I have tried to buy seedlings from catalogue descriptions, but fail to get the same variety.

W. G. S.

The variety is called Sambucus nigra laciniata.

C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Cinerarias.

Growth is now quite rapid on the cinerarias. They love cool nights and their progress is now amazing when compared with that made a few weeks ago. A coldframe is the proper place for them for some weeks yet and leave the sashes off entirely on cloudy days and at night. Never let the plants get at all potbound. They root quickly if the compost is suitable. Two-thirds good pasture loam, one-third well decayed manure and some sand added make a good potting soil. Do not use leaf-mold, except in the early stages of growth, and when the final shift is given add a 4-inch pot of fine bone to each wheelbarrow load of loam. With cooler weather green aphis is likely to be troublesome. The old plan of scattering tobacco stems among the pots is now largely done away with. Dipping or spraying with nicotine, or fumigation, are safer and neater ways to keep the plants clean. Spread out the plants frequently, as they soon crowd one another.

Marguerites.

It is now possible to get some nice propagating wood on the old marguerite stock plants carried over. Get a good batch of these in the sand. They will make fine flowering plants for Easter in 6-inch or 7-inch pots, or are equally useful to provide flowers for cutting. Probably you have planted out a quantity of stock plants. If these are shapely and bushy, dig up and pot a number of the best. Shade a little until wilting ceases. Keep outdoors as long as frost holds aloof. These will get nicely rooted before being housed and will give a good crop of flowers by Christmas, a time when marguerite flowers are not abundant and are much appreciated. Do not omit the new marguerite, Mrs. F. Sander. All the plants do not come double, but even the single or semi-double forms are excellent and distinct.

Cyclamen.

Now is the time to sow a good sized batch of cyclamen seed to flower in the winter and early spring of 1912-13. A few plants will no doubt be flowering for Thanksgiving and large numbers for Christmas. Red and deep pinks are ready sellers around the holidays, and it will pay to purchase distinct shades rather than mixtures, which always contain a greater or less percentage of almost unsalable shades. For spring sales pure white, salmon and clear pink are excellent colors to grow.

Sow the seed in flats of light, sandy soil, covering them lightly with fine sand. Give them a warm, moist house and keep the flats covered with glass and paper until the seeds germinate. When this occurs, keep the seedlings well up to the light to prevent their becoming drawn, but still grow them moderately warm. It is better to sow the seeds moderately thickly and transplant into shallow flats, but there are some growers who sow rather thinly and leave the plants in the flats until they are potted off.

Plants being grown in the frames for fall and winter flowering, soon should have their final shift. They like a fairly rich soil. The manure used should be old and of the sort that crumbles readily through the fingers. Use a good deal of sand; the plants like it. As a general rule, 5-inch and 6-inch pots are the most salable sizes to grow; 4-inch have some sale, however, and are useful for making up into pans for Christmas. Extra strong plants can go in 7-inch and 8-inch pots for later flowering, but, of course, these must be sold at a proportionately higher price to make them profitable.

Use sashes over the plants only when there are heavy rains or on cold nights. Lath shades, which let the air in freely, are the best and treated thus the plants will be dwarf and stocky, while with shaded glass they must become much drawn. Look out for thrips. Spray the plants with nicotine every week to keep them clean. Any plants showing curled up and deformed leaves should be thrown away. This may be due in part to aphis attacks, but more generally is due to cyclamen mite, for which no real cure is yet known.

Bulb Compost.

The early Dutch bulbs are already at hand and soon the main shipments will arrive. Take time by the forelock and see that there is an adequate supply of flats in good repair, pans and pots for them. Now is also the time to prepare a good compost heap, if this is not already done. It is a common heresy that any old soil is good enough for bulbs. Do not believe any such nonsense. Dutch bulbs like a generous compost, as well as other plants. Plant a batch in pure loam with sand added and another lot in soil containing one-third decayed cow manure or spent hotbed manure and note the difference in the growth. Do not use any leaf-mold. It is too light for bulbs, nor should any bone or chemicals be added, but sharp sand can be mixed in freely with advantage.

Transplanting Evergreens.

We have had excellent weather during the last days of August for moving evergreens. With the possible exception of spring, from now until the end of September is the best time to do any transplanting of this class of stock. Select a cloudy day. Be sure to soak the roots well before giving the final filling in, and if the plants have had a ball of earth they will in nearly every case grow. A mulch of old manure after planting is beneficial. Not only pines, spruces, junipers, retinosporas, arbor-vitæs, etc., but also any of the broad-leaved varieties, which include rhododendrons, kalmias and andromedas, will transplant successfully now, and as at this season there is not such a rush of work as in April and May, the nurseries can fill orders better and more speedily and the trees or shrubs can be planted with greater care.

The Wittman Family, of West Hoboken, N. J.

Poinsettias.

It is now too late to do any further propagating of poinsettias, even for small pans. Make the plants up into pans before they become too much pot-bound and use some small nephrolepis, Asparagus Sprengeri, Cyperus alternifolius or other green plants among them. These make a nice garnishing at the bottoms of the flowering stems and take away any nakedness caused by loss of leaves. Plants in benches should be kept tied up to keep the stems straight. Any which are to be flowered in 5-inch or 6-inch pots should be firmly potted for their final shift, and use good loam and cow manure as a compost. The nights are not yet sufficiently cool to warrant the use of fire heat. This is most necessary after the bracts show.

COSMOS LADY LENOX.

Will you give me some information in regard to Lady Lenox cosmos? Is it practical to lift them and pot them in pails for late flowers? If so, when would be the best time to begin doing it, and would it pay? I live in the state of Rhode Island. J. C.

If the cosmos plants are not too tall and unwieldy, they can easily be lifted and potted, or placed in pails or small tubs in a cool greenhouse to flower. Much finer cosmos flowers are produced under glass than outdoors. They flower at a time when chrysanthemums are abundant, but there are many purchasers who welcome a change from mums, and good flowers sell readily in the large markets.

Lady Lenox cosmos is a late bloomer and can not be depended upon to flower in your state outdoors, unless frost holds off later than usual. The present is a suitable time to dig up and pot cosmos. Choose, if possible, a cool, cloudy day, with the soil moist, and endeavor to get a little ball with the roots. After potting, they will require spraying and shading for a few days until established. Another year, if you want some good plants of this cosmos, sow the seed in April. Keep them in pots or boxes outdoors and pinch until the end of August. House them when frost threatens. Such plants will give far superior flowers to the lifted ones. C. W.

THE WITTMAN FAMILY.

One of the popular families in the trade circles at New York is that of Rudolph Wittman, 806 Ann street, West Hoboken, N. J. You will see the reason for it in the accompanying illustration, which is reproduced from a snapshot made at the recent outing of the New York Florists' Club. Here is prosperity, peace, and good-fellowship. It is the reward of the grower who knows his business and attends to it.

DISEASED IRIS.

Last fall I bought several hundred Japanese iris from a leading grower. I planted them during October and have not a single plant to show. This spring I dug a few of them and the roots seemed in good condition, but had made absolutely no growth and did not seem to have taken any hold on the earth. What cause would you ascribe for this failure? A large assortment of perennials planted at the same time, and in the same patch, all did well, among them being phlox, peonies and German iris. Last fall I also planted a few Iris pallida Dalmatica, and a few of the same variety this spring. All did well this spring, the fall planted ones blooming. The fall planted ones all died shortly after blooming, and the spring planted ones have been gradually dying out during the summer, and are now all gone. I have never had this trouble with any other iris, though I have quite a large collection.

W. G. S.

It is just possible you may have a disease on your Iris pallida Dalmatica and Japanese varieties. The stems keep rotting off until the whole plant goes. Too much rank manure about the roots will help to start this, but it often appears on established plants. The only remedy is to dig them up and plant them on fresh ground, well drained, using some lime in the soil.

C. W.

PROPAGATING.

September is sufficiently early to do any propagating, even in the colder states, although some growers start in August and stand the flats of cuttings in the open air until rooted. The trouble with this plan is that torrential rains will so saturate the flats that many cuttings will rot, especially if loam is used in the flats. Clean sand is safest and should be quite sharp, with a good drainage of broken crocks or cinders covered with moss.

In making cuttings early, we find it an advantage to let them lie on the benches at least a few hours after making, to take some of the excessive sappiness out of them. Short-jointed, firm wood cuttings are more likely to root than long, soft ones. The firmer and harder the wood, the less likelihood is there of their damping off. Trim off the leaves closely. Cut below a leaf joint. Cuttings will root if this is not done, but chances of damping off are greater. Soak well with water. Give full sun and keep a little on the dry side until rooted. Some prefer to keep them under glass, but good results can be had from open air treatment. Do not propagate too early; October or even November are excellent months for rooting cuttings. Any time before frost comes will be found all right.

WINTER GERANIUMS.

The geranium plants for winter flowering should now go into their flowering pots. Those five and six inches in diameter are suitable. Let any manure used be thoroughly decayed and add some bone to the compost. What we want is a firm, short-jointed growth. Given this, we may be sure plants will flower freely. If, however, rank, soft wood is produced, the soil has an excess of nitrogen or the plants have been overfed. Clay's fertilizer is an excellent stimulant, either in liquid or dry form; so is Bon Arbor where the plants need quick stimulating. Fine bone is good for top-dressing. Keep the plants pinched back for some time and remove all flower trusses as they appear. For Thanksgiving flowers do no pinching of the shoots after the end of September and for Christmas discontinue by the middle of October. Allow six weeks for flower trusses to properly develop in an average night temperature of 50 degrees.

DIVIDING HYDRANGEA OTAKSA.

Will you please inform me how and when to divide large sized Hydrangea Otaksa? H. K.

While this hydrangea can be divided, this plan of propagation is seldom resorted to, as it is so easily and expeditiously raised from cuttings of soft wood, which root in three weeks in a cutting bench, and if started early will develop into strong stock in 8-inch pots in a season. The cuttings can be planted in the field in May, kept well cultivated, and potted early in October. It would be better to throw away any big, overgrown Otaksas and not waste time and energy in dividing. The results would at best be indifferent plants as compared with those started from cuttings. C. W.

WINTER STORAGE OF PLANTS.

Will the general run of perennials keep in good condition for spring planting if dug in the fall and stored in a storage cellar in boxes of earth? I followed this plan in handling Clematis paniculata last fall, and though the plants seemed in good condition this spring, most of them being in bud, I had heavy losses in planting. W. G. S.

While a large variety of trees, shrubs and climbers can be lifted and stored in cellars over winter, such plants, while convenient to get at for filling orders, never prove so satisfactory as stock dug from the open ground. The roots get too dry in many cases, and the plants, when exposed to sun and air, usually die back badly. Clematis paniculata is one climber which does poorly if fall planted. Even if dug and stored, many plants will die. Leave it outdoors and your losses will be practically nil. C. W.

SUPPORTS FOR HOUSES.

In one of my greenhouses the posts show signs of commencing to rot in spots. The roof and benches are in good condition. Would a casing of about three inches of concrete around the three open sides strengthen the posts and prevent further rotting, or would 2-inch iron pipes with plates on top, put in between the posts, be better? The plates are heavy timbers, 4x8; the sides are five and one-half feet high, with sixteen inches of side glass. The ground does not freeze around the posts, as there is a lean-to on each side. The posts are 5x6 inches thick, six feet apart, and set two feet deep in cement. M. B.

Placing a casing of cement on three sides of the posts would not materially assist in staying their decay. Even if you placed it on all four sides, you would not be getting so good a support as from the 2-inch iron pipes with plates on top, put in between the present posts. But why not try supports of concrete alternated between the present posts? It is the most durable form of supports and is as cheap as wood. C. W.

PLANTING TIME.

September is the best month in the year for transplanting peonies. Of course, they can be moved in October, or even November, but September planting permits of the stock getting nicely established before winter, and if good plants are set out quite a little bloom will be produced the following season. Large, overgrown clumps, which have become practically blind, should be lifted and divided with a sharp spade. It is practically impossible to pull these apart, and a chopping through of the roots seems to have no injurious effects, any more than on other perennials.

Peonies love a well prepared soil. It should, if possible, be two feet deep; more if possible, but few soils exceed the former depth and many fall far short of it. Use plenty of well rotted cow or horse manure; bone meal is also good. Fertilizer should not come in direct contact with the roots. Do not cover the crowns too deeply. A bed was seen some years ago doing poorly and examination showed that there was twelve to fifteen inches of soil over the tops of the clumps. This might do well for many lilies, but is ruinous for peonies.

PEONIES NOT BLOOMING.

The Review of August 10, page 22, contained an inquiry in regard to a failure in peony culture, with a reply by William A. Peterson, the well known nurseryman. The inquirer stated, in substance: "We divided some peony clumps about five or six years ago and they never amounted to anything. A number of small, sickly looking stalks came up every year, but did not grow more than a foot high; they stayed green all summer and never bloomed." Mr. Peterson replied by mentioning the following four common causes of "sulkiness" of peonies: Too deep planting, leaving too many eyes on a division, sogginess of the ground and planting at an unfavorable time, either very late in the fall or at any time in the spring.

Another suggestion on the subject is now offered by B. C. Auten, of Carthage, Mo., who says: "In addition to the reasons given by Mr. Peterson for peonies not blooming, I think that possibly another condition may upon occasion be responsible, namely, excessive winter drought. Mine bloomed well last year where they bloomed but poorly this season. I think it was the same condition, too, which caused the heavy loss of outdoor narcissi."

THE TEACHER-FLORIST.

Though W. B. DuRie, of Rahway, N. J., has won wide prominence as a florist, he has really spent most of his life as a teacher—"teaching the young idea how to shoot," instead of watching and tending the shooting of flower buds. He is still principal of a school in Jersey City and spends five busy days of each week there, with seventy teachers under his direction.

His venture into the florists' field was at first intended as a recreation. Now his two sons and his foreman and manager find enough local patronage to utilize all the stock that can be grown under his 10,000 square feet of glass and on his ten acres of scientifically cultivated land. He is still young and mentally and physically active, though over 70 years of age. He has been a resident of Rahway for nearly two score years. J. Austin Shaw.

MITE ON CYCLAMEN LEAVES.

If A. W. F. & S., who ask for information regarding mite on cyclamen leaves in the item on page 74 of The Review for August 3, will try dusting the plants and bulbs with dry tobacco powder about twice a week and persist in the treatment until the leaves appear in good form, they will be rid of the mite for the season. It will not injure the leaves or bulb in the least. Give a good, heavy dusting and let them stand twenty-four hours before using the hose on them. E. B. B.

PYLE IN EUROPE.

Commenting on the interview on pages 18 and 19 of last week's issue of The Review, Robert Pyle says:

"The illustration of Mr. Lemoine was taken, not in the Bagatelle gardens, but at his home place in Nancy, France, when and where his father, past 80, was lying ill. The Crystal Palace show was a part of the Festival of Empire held throughout most of the summer as a feature of Coronation year. The best show from a rosarian's viewpoint was not the Olympia show of the R. H. S., but the annual show of the National Rose Society, held at the Botanic Gardens in Regent's park. The crowds at both would please the heart of an American florist."

NAME OF PLANT.

Can you tell me the name of the plant, a specimen of which I am sending under separate cover? Also let me know whether there are other varieties. V. H. T. & B.

The specimens forwarded were pretty well withered when received, but one flower freshened up in water and revealed its identity. This is Achimenes longiflora major, a variety of one of the most beautiful of greenhouse summer-flowering plants. There are many other varieties of achimenes. A few good ones are: Margaretta, large, pure white; Admiration, deep rose; longiflora alba, white, markings in center; Mauve Queen, mauve, a fine sort; Scarlet Perfection, carmine scarlet, and Pink Perfection, rich rose. The variety you have, longiflora major, is one of the best in cultivation. C. W.

GROUND BEDS ON ALKALI SOIL.

We are building four greenhouses here, in the southeastern part of Washington state. The plot of ground covered by these houses contains more or less white and black alkali, and, as we will use no benches, we intend to excavate eight inches of this inferior soil and fill in with first-class soil, absolutely free from alkali. We will also use two runs of 4-inch drain tile in each house, and grow our products—that is, hothouse lettuce, cucumbers, tomatoes and other crops—on this ground bed. Is there any danger that the alkali may come up and damage our crops? If so, can you suggest anything that we might use to neutralize this alkali? The worst of the soil which is to be removed is suitable for some crops and we notice that wheat, blue grass, corn, alfalfa, clover and weeds of various kinds seem to do quite well on it, but chrysanthemums, lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers seem to burn up or make only a dwarfed growth on it. Will gypsum neutralize alkali?

W. W. F. C.

There would be danger from the alkali, especially if the beds are ever overwatered, or if they are where there is seepage water. Gypsum and similar chemicals might be helpful, but should not be trusted, as frequent renewal would be necessary. If beds are to be used, a better way would be to line the bottom of the beds with hollow, flat building tile. This would give excellent drainage and would cut off the alkali water from below.

PLANTS UNDER PINES.

I have quite a large pine grove that I have the care of every summer. Is there any kind of grass, or any kind of shrub, or any kind of plant that I could get to grow under the pines?

F. C.

If the pines are quite thick, it will not be easy to grow either grass or any variety of plants below them. The decaying needles seem poisonous to most vegetation. If the location is not too high and dry, try planting the native cinnamon fern, Osmunda cinnamomea, below them. I have had quite good success with this fern where the pines were on rather low ground, and if the soil is good, which is, however, often not the case where white pines thrive best, it might pay you to try them. Where the branches of the pines do not come too near the ground, you can get a fair growth on Vaccinium corymbosum, blueberry, also on the Partridge berry, Mitchella repens. Where the trees are isolated or not too crowded, grass will grow moderately well if the needles are kept raked up. Rhode Island bent seems to grow as well as anything below pines, but Kentucky blue grass will also succeed if it is fed a little each year. C. W.

MRS. TERRY'S PROSPERITY.

When Mrs. Carrie M. Terry started in the florists' business at Phoebus, Va., a few years ago, it was as in the cases of so many others who grew plants for their own amusement and found a commercial demand for them. Mrs. Terry began four years ago, renting half a store and buying practically all the stock she used. The business grew until now she has three greenhouses attached to her own store building and has recently put up the small display house in which the accompanying kodak portrait was made.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The long drought is broken. The first day of this week furnished a 24-hour rain that has saved the late vegetable crops of Long Island and Jersey. Monday's temperature was hugging 90 degrees and the humidity was oppressive. Its effect was manifest in the cut flower market and business was slow, though a hardening tendency is noticeable and the general verdict is that the worst is over. With the advent of September, and the arrival of a better grade of roses and carnations, the improvement is expected to be continuous.

Every one predicts a splendid fall and winter trade. Retailers are busy with decorative and improved features in their handsome stores and glad of the summer lull in business that gives them this opportunity. The summer has been a trying one, and apart from funeral work there has been little to do. The scene is changing. The summer resorts are rapidly giving back their devotees, society is returning and schools are opening. Soon there will be a hundred theaters in full blast, and every opening means a flood of flowers for the stars and lesser lights. Already this outlet for the surplus commissions of Wall street is making its influence felt.

Now come the chrysanthemums. There were a lot of Golden Glow in the market August 26. They sold quickly, and the best brought a fair price, considering the tremendous shipments of asters and gladioli. The market is overwhelmed with just one —— thing after another. Some of the stock is hard to give away. Purple asters are so numerous they create a gloomy feeling.

Every good American Beauty rose that arrives finds ready sale. There are not enough of them, nor of the best grade of Brides, Maids and Killarneys. For the best good prices are, of course, obtainable, but for the short-stemmed roses it would be a crime to quote the figures that prevail. The waste in the last few weeks has been abnormal

New carnations have arrived, small and short-stemmed as yet, and meeting little demand. Gladioli have felt the serious effects of the long dry season. Only stock of the best quality has sold at over 50 cents per hundred. There is still an abundance offered, mostly of the lower grades. These and asters have dominated things all through the month of August. There is no change in the price of lilies and valley. There are few orchids arriving and prices are firm.

There is no let-up to the stream of tritomas and hydrangeas, and goldenrod has begun to add its charm and brilliancy to the window decorative effect in many retail establishments.

Various Notes.

Everyone is home from the convention, and most of our visitors have departed. Some one greatly resembling Harry Papworth, of New Orleans, was still disporting himself at Coney as late as August 27. There is a fascination about this village that ought to bring the S. A. F. here in 1913.

Monday evening, September 11, the New York Florists' Club will open the fall season. The president has something special on tap. Those who desire will have opportunity for bowling at Thumm's alleys in the afternoon. The New York club is now open for challenges from any of the local florists' clubs and it has been suggested for the winter that matches be arranged to include Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Mrs. Carrie M. Terry.

Arthur T. Boddington reports among the distinguished visitors in town last week, the following: W. R. Thornhill, gardener to August Hemenway, Esq., Readville, Mass.; J. G. Dugaid, gardener to H. S. Hunnewell, Esq., Wellesley, Mass.

The sympathy of her many friends in the trade is tendered Mrs. R. W. MacNiff in her bereavement, her father having died August 21.

Mr. Hanfling, of Russin & Hanfling, has returned from a nine weeks' European trip, having visited six countries. He met Mr. Henshaw in London. The firm's imports will be larger than usual.

Mr. Burnham, of the Lord & Burnham Co., has lately undergone an operation for appendicitis. Montague Wright, of this house, has arranged for an addition to the greenhouse plant at Johns Hopkins University, duplicating the present range.

C. Drakos, 2631 Broadway, has taken Louis Anargeros into partnership.

George W. Crawbuck, of the Greater New York Florists' Association, Brooklyn, has been appointed treasurer of the Portland Stone Co., of that city.

H. Riedel, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, has returned from his visit to Montreal and is spending this week at Buffalo and the Falls.

Angelo Dentale, of Young & Nugent's, was seriously ill last week.

W. H. Gunther, of Gunther Bros., has been under the weather for a week.

One of the interesting aftermaths of the convention was Bobby Schultz, of Madison, carrying home a bushel basket of crabs, which he caught himself at Tolchester.

Charles Abrams, superintendent of the floral department of Abraham & Strauss, Brooklyn, announces an addition of 100 feet of space to his section and a fast growing development of the business there.

W. H. Kuebler and wife arrived at home August 28 after visiting Washington.

Mr. Bonnet, of Bonnet & Blake, Brooklyn, had not got back from the Monumental City August 26, visiting Mount Vernon and Philadelphia while away. Mr. Blake has already booked himself for Chicago in 1912.

L. P. Lord, of Minneapolis, is a visitor. He is president of Lord's Frost-Proof Plant Box Co.

The seedsmen are all busy. The bulb trade is booming.

Mr. Don, Jr., is rejoicing in the advent of a Don the third.

Walter Mott is visiting the Jersey customers of Elliott & Sons this week.

Rickards Bros. report a grand fall outlook, and many advance orders.

The autumn auction sales will commence at Elliotts' and MacNiff's about September 12.

Nine lectures on plant life are announced for Saturdays at 4 p. m., commencing September 2, at the Museum building of the New York Botanic Garden, Bronx Park. The speakers will be the leading botanists of the country.

Thomas Wade, lately with the Bonnie Brae Nurseries, New Rochelle, and formerly with Wadley & Smythe and Bloomingdale Bros., has gone into the nursery business on his own account. He will make a specialty of landscape gardening.

Philip Kessler saved the New York bowlers from complete eclipse and has had his silver cup filled more than once since his return home.

John Egenbrod is now with Badgley, Riedel & Meyer.

The importations of the supply men are arriving. Evidently a busy season is anticipated by Reed & Keller, A. Herrmann, the Greek-American Supply House, Russin & Hanfling and the Geller Co. The shipments for all these houses are larger than ever.

J. Austin Shaw.

Hartford, Conn.—The veteran John Coombs was sitting in the shade planning the entire rebuilding of the old part of the plant, when the writer called on him. When the work is completed it will be a model range. His stock looks remarkably well, especially considering the dry season.

Fern Exhibit of F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., at the Baltimore Convention.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

Trade in general is just a little better since our spell of cool weather. There were a few weddings last week, a luncheon and dinner for President Taft, the G. A. R. convention and a few funerals, and these all helped to make business boom just a trifle.

Roses are decidedly better in quality and length of stem this week. Marylands are by far the best pink roses and Tafts are next best. There was a great demand for Taft roses during President Taft's visit to our city. Killarneys are fair. Wards and Wellingtons are fine. There are but few Carnots.

Gladioli are plentiful and good. Asters are fair, but there is not a great variety just now. Pale pink asters are scarce and poor in quality, but there is a great demand for this particular variety for all occasions. Pale and deep lavender asters are plentiful, but not so much in demand, with the exception of the Rochester aster, which is a pinkish lavender and has ragged petals, making it a most marketable flower. There is scarcely any demand for purple asters. Garden flowers are as much in demand as ever.

Orchids are at a premium and it was necessary to draw on the Buffalo and Philadelphia markets for orchids for President Taft's luncheon on Wednesday, August 23. Valley is coming in much better, but there is little demand for it at present. Hardy ferns are poor in quality and rather scarce. A few yellow mums are already coming into the market, but they do not sell readily.

Various Notes.

C. R. Ordway, of Hornell, N. Y., visited Rochester florists last week.

John Volmer returned from his vacation last week. He spent part of the time at Niagara Falls and Olcott Beach.

The third annual flower carnival of the ladies of Spencerport M. E. church was held August 23 and 24 in the high school building. First and second premiums were awarded in fifty-three classes of flowers and plants.

Charles Vick acted as judge at the flower show in Perry, N. Y., August 23.

G. A. R. emblems in plants in red, white and blue had been planted in the parks for the G. A. R. convention, replacing the Shriners' emblems of last July.

Fernando J. Keller is in Detroit for a week or ten days.

Frank MacLewis, of George Hart's commission house, has gone on an eastern trip for a week.

Robert E. Lassman, the grower of Watertown, Mass., visited several florists here during the G. A. R. convention.

Miss Helen Bishop is away on vacation.

George Boucher's Japanese decoration in the window and store is quite unique and resembles a tea garden of flowery Japan.

Clark Vick is enjoying his summer holidays.

George Hart and William Keller have returned from the Baltimore convention and report having had a "hot" time.

Miss Myrtle Bradstreet has resumed her duties at the store of the Rochester Floral Co. during the absence of Miss Lillian Wheeler, who is having a vacation.

Arthur Colbert was on the sick list last week.

Brown Watson enjoyed a short vacation recently.

Mrs. Maud Hallauer has returned from Reuka Lake, where she spent her vacation.

A. N. Pierson is shipping some fine yellow mums to this market.

E. C. A.

New Haven, Conn.—Smith T. Bradley was prevented from attending the convention by a rush of funeral work, which is a leader with him.

South Hadley Falls, Mass.—Joseph Beach gave up his proposed trip to Europe to attend the convention. A grower of the old school, he is of the opinion one can not learn too much in these days of strong competition.

Holyoke, Mass.—G. H. Sinclair, as western state vice-president, has put in some good work for the S. A. F. Between giving attention to his new purchase at Smith's Ferry and the home plant, he says he never put in a more strenuous season.

OBITUARY.

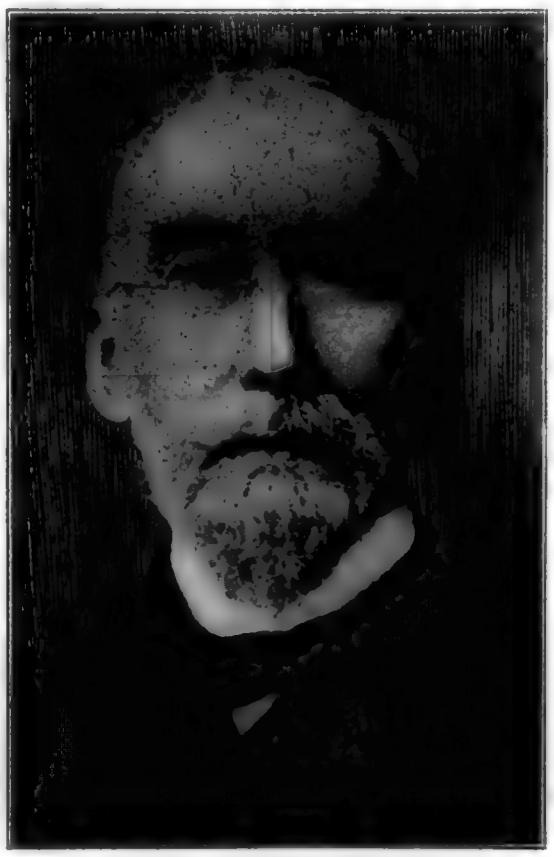
W. F. Heikes.

Major W. F. Heikes, of Huntsville, Ala., manager and founder of the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries, died suddenly at Cleveland, O., August 25, 1911. Major Heikes had been in Chautauqua N. Y., with his family on a visit for the last few weeks and from Chautauqua he went down to Cleveland, where he was taken ill.

Mr. Heikes came to Huntsville about thirty-seven years ago and was known among its most substantial citizens, being manager of the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries, which are the pioneer nurseries of that section. Mr. Heikes came from a family of nurserymen. Andrew Heikes began the nursery business at Carlisle, Pa., in 1798; his son, George Heikes, on moving to Dayton, O., established a nursery in 1822. Jacob Heikes, a son of George Heikes, established himself in the nursery business near Dayton in 1839; and W. F. Heikes, son of Jacob Heikes, succeeded him in the business at the same place in 1866, and in 1882 founded the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries. The death of Mr. Heikes in sadly felt by the trade, as it leaves vacant the office of president of the Alabama State Horticultural Society, a position to which Mr. Heikes was reëlected at the last meeting.

G. M. Haecker.

George M. Haecker, manager for Mrs. Joseph F. Lang, at 2010 Melrose street, Chicago, Ill., was overcome by heat while working in the greenhouses on Monday, August 14, and died Sunday night, August 20, at his home, 1419 Wrightwood avenue. He was 52 years of age.



John F. Flood.

When the news was given out of the death of John F. Flood, of Woburn, Mass., August 23, a host of friends who knew and valued him highly were saddened. Mr. Flood had just celebrated his forty-second birthday two days previously. He had been in rather poor health for ten weeks, due to an attack of the grip, but died quite suddenly at the last. The deceased was born in London, England, and worked for James Veitch & Sons and others before coming to America some thirteen years ago. He first found employment with Peter Henderson & Co., New York; later with R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston. He was three years with James Wheeler and later had charge of a private estate in Buffalo. Returning to Boston in the summer of 1907, he assumed the management of the business known as J. F. Flood & Co., in Dedham, making high grade carnations a specialty. In July, 1910, he purchased the David Fisher estate in Woburn, Mass., where he had worked up an excellent business.

Mr. Flood joined the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston in September, 1907, and rarely missed any of the meetings, field days, picnics or banquets. He made an efficient chairman of the exhibits committee in 1910 and was esteemed by all his associates. He was a stall holder in the Boston Coöperative Flower Market and his market confreres sent a beautiful standing wreath of Richmond and Ward roses, with a base of lilies and cycas leaves, also a large pillow of Killarney and White Killarney to the funeral, which was held August 26. The Gardeners' and Florists' Club also sent a floral tribute and there was a wealth of other floral designs. Many in the trade were among the mourners. Peter M. Miller and William Martin were among the pall bearers. Interment was in the Stoneham cemetery.

Joseph Bock.

Joseph Bock, of Burlington, Ia., died of typhoid fever August 7, at his home on Sunnyside avenue. He had not been in the best of health for some time, but his final illness had lasted only five or six days. Only a week before his death he had been seen in the business section of the city, as genial and kindly as was his wont. He was born in Silesia, Germany, April 10, 1846. He made his home in Burlington in 1867, and went to work for Neally Bros. & Bock, on Madison avenue. Later he was in partnership with his brother, and during the last twenty-two years he had been conducting the greenhouses on Major W. F. Heikes.

Sunnyside avenue, winning an excellent reputation for himself and his products. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Wiemer, a member of an old Des Moines county family, November 25, 1875. She survives the husband, with three children, Mrs. John Fritz and Harry Bock, of Burlington, and Dr. E. C. Bock, of Fairfield. He also leaves three brothers, Ernst Bock, of Burlington; William Bock, who is farming near West Burlington, and Oscar Bock, who lives in the fatherland.

Joseph R. Freeman.

Joseph R. Freeman, one of the best known and most respected florists of Washington, D. C., died August 22, at his home, 2319 Wisconsin avenue northwest, of Bright's disease and complications. He was born in England, came to America when 14 years of age and made his home in Washington, where he married Miss Mary E. Weaver. After spending two years in Baltimore he returned to Washington and established himself in the florists' business at Thirteenth and E streets, but removed fifteen years ago to 612 Thirteenth street, where he remained until his death. He furnished the decorations for the banquet to Prince Henry of Germany, made the two wreaths which the Prince placed on Washington's tomb and at various times decorated different public buildings, including the White House.

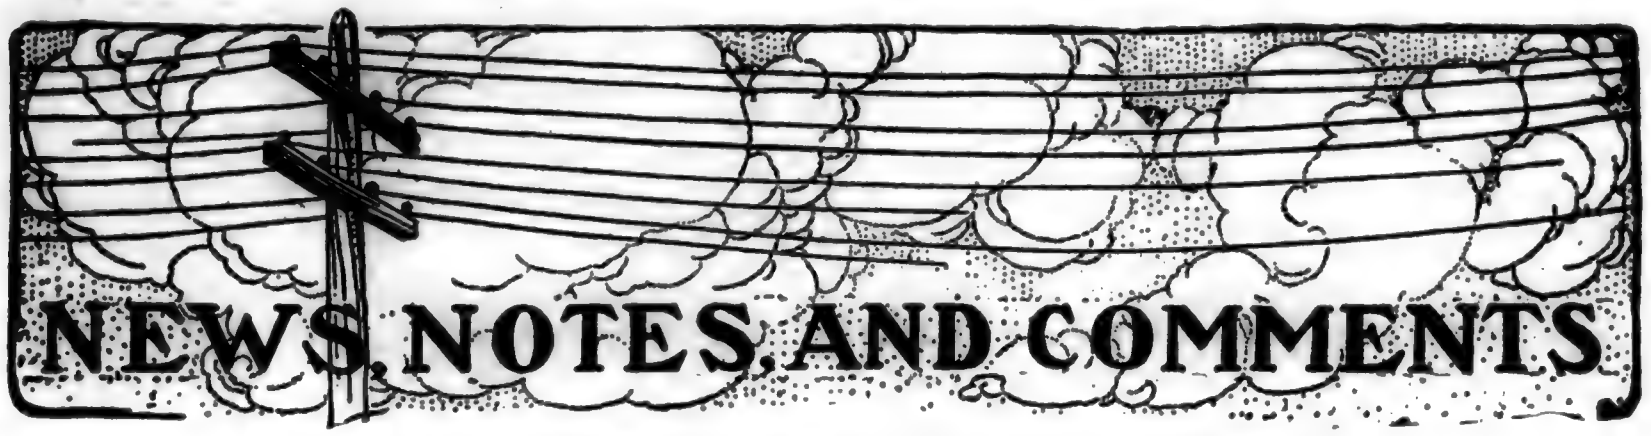
Joseph Schmidt.

After a lingering illness, due to old age, death came to Joseph Schmidt, the oldest florist of Harrisburg, Pa., on the evening of August 23.

Mr. Schmidt was born at Heideck, Bavaria, eighty-four years ago, studying gardening for several years. In 1860 he married Miss Franceska Wurm, of Hilpoltstein, Bavaria, leaving immediately with his bride for America on a sailing vessel that landed them in New York after a trip of forty-four days. Settling in Philadelphia, they remained there for five years and then removed to Harrisburg, locating on Allison's Hill, where Mr. Schmidt built the first greenhouse in that city. In 1867 he erected extensive greenhouses on Forster street, near Second street, prospering in business as the city grew. Mr. Schmidt was superintendent of the State Agricultural Society for twelve years. His flower store at 44 North Third street was well known and on his retirement ten years ago his son, Charles L. Schmidt, succeeded him in the business. Mr. Schmidt is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Paulina Schmidt Young, and two sons, Charles L. Schmidt, of Harrisburg, and James S. Schmidt, of Camp Hill.

Robert Linney.

Robert Linney, formerly in the florists' business at Akron, Ohio, died August 18 at his home, 24 North Balch street, Akron, at the age of 85 years. He had lived in that city for the last forty years and during the greater part of that time was in business as a florist on West Market street. He retired five years ago. He had been in feeble health since last March and his death had been expected. He is survived by one son, A. J. Linney, of Akron, and one daughter, Mrs. George A. Newcomb, of Monrovia, Cal.



IOWA FLORISTS MEET.

The Society of Iowa Florists held its ninth annual meeting at the State House at Des Moines, Ia., August 30, at 8 p. m. The program was as follows:

1. Call to Order.
2. Reading Minutes of Previous Meeting.
3. Treasurer's Report.
4. President's Address.
5. "Asters," by William Trillow, Des Moines.
6. "Dahlias," by William M. Bomberger, Harlan.
7. "Peonies for Florists: Best Varieties," by Henry Field, Shenandoah.
8. "Improvement of the Gladiolus," by G. D. Black, Independence.
9. "Carnations," by W. A. Harkett, Dubuque.
10. "Care of Plants in Parks and Lawns During a Drought," by J. D. T. Fulmer, Des Moines.
12. "Florists' Clubs," by Theodore Ewaldt, Davenport.
13. "Suggestions on Florists' Supplies," by Roy F. Wilcox, Council Bluffs.

The officers of the society are:

President—J. S. Wilson, Des Moines.
Vice-president—J. D. T. Fulmer, Des Moines.
Treasurer—J. T. Temple, Davenport.
Secretary—Wesley Greene, Davenport.
Directors—G. A. Heyne, Dubuque; Wm. Trillow, Des Moines; F. J. Olsan, Ames; E. E. Nordwall, Fort Dodge.

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Polk, Pa.—The Polk Floral Co. has been incorporated, with a capital of $5,000.

Calgary, Can.—Claude E. Jeffery, the St. Mary's avenue florist, recently returned from a trip to California.

Pawtucket, R. I.—William Hoffman has gradually replaced his plant with the latest style of houses, including concrete foundations and benches.

Pleasant Hill, Mo.—Two large new boilers were recently installed at the greenhouses of the Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., to replace two smaller ones.

Chatham, Ont.—W. D. A. Ross, senior member of the firm of W. McK. Ross' Sons, has gone to Seattle, Wash., where he will remain for a while in the hope of benefiting his health.

Somerville, Mass.—The Davis Square Florists, formerly at 10 Central building, have removed to 1 Medina building, where additional room will enable them to carry a larger and more varied stock.

Princeton, Ill.—The W. E. Trimble Greenhouse Co. is adding four greenhouses. One of them, 18x128, will be used for potted plants. The others, each 29x80, will be devoted to roses and carnations. A 100 horse-power Kewanee boiler is being installed.

Stouffville, Ont.—The business of Brillinger & Meader has been purchased by the Stouffville Floral Co. The new company is under the management of Robert Rae and is beginning business with over 10,000 feet of glass and five acres of nursery lands.

Hot Springs, Ark.—The C. H. Johnson Floral Co. has purchased the greenhouses and other property of J. F. Howard, on Harrel avenue, formerly operated by Mr. Johnson under a lease. The new owners will make many changes and improvements, with the intention of enlarging the business.

Austin, Minn.—Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Kinsman, of the Austin Greenhouses, have returned from a month's motor tour through the west. They traveled over 3,000 miles through Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado, and found fine roads until they were nearly home, when a storm occurred and made the roads rather muddy.

Jacksonville, Fla.—The landscape department of the business of C. D. Mills, known as Mills the Florist, has been purchased by C. L. Bragg and will hereafter be conducted by him as a separate enterprise. Mr. Bragg has been connected with Mills the Florist for the last two years, as manager of the landscape department and vice-president of the company.

Denver, Colo.—James Hamlin has leased some greenhouses at 2122 Hooker street and has started business there.

New London, Conn.—S. J. Reuter & Son were forced to vacate their store owing to rebuilding. They are settled in a desirable location nearby and have an attractive building, ably conducted by Mr. Fisher.

Owosso, Mich.—M. A. Herrick, of Durand, Mich., has purchased the Sunnyside Greenhouses from John Schleider and will continue the business. Mr. Schleider's plans are somewhat indefinite, but he will take an eastern trip soon. Poor health compelled his retirement from business.

Davenport, Ia.—John T. Temple, a director of the Florists' Hail Association and one of the most widely known of Iowa florists, recently underwent a serious surgical operation in St. Luke's hospital and for a time his condition was alarming, but he now is convalescing rapidly and hopes soon to be fully restored to health.

Lancaster, Pa.—J. P. Siebold recently received a carload of material from the Lord & Burnham Co. for the erection of two more greenhouses, each 26x108. With this addition he will have four geranium stock houses. Stock for the two new houses was potted and plunged in the field, to await the completion of the buildings.

Bowerston, O.—J. G. Gamble, who began business here in a modest way about three years ago, has found it necessary to increase his greenhouse space each year and still has been unable to supply the demand. His third house, which he is now building, is 20x90 feet. He grows cut flowers, peonies, vegetables and a general line of plants.

Maryville, Mo.—Peter Mergen sold his greenhouses last January to L. M. Strader, who is now conducting the establishment with great success, handling both flowers and vegetables. Mr. Mergen, however, retained possession of the ground and also of his office building on North Main street, and recently opened a cut flower store, to be run in connection with the greenhouses.

Fergus Falls, Minn.—S. N. Mehlin has completed the work on his new greenhouses on Lincoln avenue west, and has torn down the old greenhouses adjoining his residence. He has filled in the lots on which the old greenhouses stood, and will make a little park there, which will further beautify that neighborhood. He will erect a small greenhouse adjoining his residence, but will depend on his Lincoln avenue houses for the bulk of his stock.

New Canaan, Conn.—Stephen B. Hoyt does a snug business at this summer resort and finds the demand for choice stock steadily increasing.

Stamford, Conn.—Mrs. Harris, one of the pioneers in the trade, has been quite ill. During her illness the business was well taken care of by Miss Harris.

Ossining, N. Y.—J. Cockburn & Sons report excellent business. Their carnations did well outside, having the advantage of a low, moist location. Their stock everywhere showed the benefit from recent heavy showers.

Greenwich, Conn.—Alex. Mead & Son report a satisfactory season. Mr. Mead, Sr., has been vacationing at the Thousand Islands, and meanwhile Mr. Mead, Jr., has been getting the place into shape and will have an excellent lot of stock.

Mount Kisco, N. Y.—H. A. Spavins has completed a house of concrete and cypress, of his own construction, and is complimented on all sides by the private gardeners by whom he is surrounded. He is one of the hardest workers at the local exhibitions.

Port Chester, N. Y.—Paul Burgevin says the artificial poinsettia has made no difference to the sale of the natural flower. His sales run into several thousands and are increasing annually. Chrysanthemums are grown in large numbers here and are in fine shape.

Danville, Ill.—H. A. Dubuis, proprietor of the Danville Floral Co., has purchased the greenhouses formerly owned by John Willius. He has also bought the stock of the Wadsworth greenhouses and has removed this stock to the Willius houses at Central park. He is getting everything into good condition for a heavy fall business.

New Canaan, Conn.—Robert Bottomley, superintendent of Brush Ridge Farms, is well remembered as a successful grower and exhibitor of specimen crotons and other stove plants at the metropolitan shows. Laying out big plots of land to crops is quite a different sort of business, but one can be just as successful at it and the vocation is far healthier.

Westerly, R. I.—S. J. Reuter & Son report large sales of carnation plants, of which they have a big stock in first-class shape. The new roses, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Lady Hillingdon and Double Killarney, are attracting attention and will prove acquisitions. The latest addition to the establishment is a farm of several hundred acres and a big herd of cattle, to supply the soil and manure necessary on a place of such large proportions.

"A SIGN is for the man who wants to find you; an advertisement is for the man YOU want to find."—Tuthill.

J. A. PETERSON, of Cincinnati, sends The Review a postcard from Kristiania, Norway, under date of August 11, on which he notes that it is a grand country for scenery.

THE call is more and more for made up plants of kentias and arecas; the made up plants take precedence over single specimens in the larger sizes for decorative work.

WHILE the price of immortelles undoubtedly will advance by reason of the shortage, it may not go so high as some dealers appear to expect, for there always is a level at which demand is shut off.

A HANDSOME corsage bouquet consisted of large, perfect blooms of Gladiolus America, picked from the stalks and wired, with adiantum and a pink tie of the same shade as the flowers. It was fine enough for anyone.

N. F. FLITTON, secretary of the Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club, writes to The Review to say that members of the S. & F. who have not received a copy of the Baltimore souvenir program can have one mailed to their address by applying to Philip B. Welsh, Glenn Morris, Md.

MANUFACTURERS of man-blown window glass held a meeting last week to plan more effective competition against machine-made glass. Attending manufacturers say they seek simply to solve conditions that have resulted in a fifty per cent drop in the price of window glass and a forty per cent decrease in the wages of window glass workers in the past seven months.

GEORGE L. GRAHAM, of Bradford, Pa., claims for his son, G. Donald Graham, aged 9 years, the honor of being the youngest voter in the hotly contested S. A. F. elections at the Baltimore convention. Probably the youngest member of the society still is Charles Albert Traendly, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who became a life member in January, 1909, when 3 three years of age. He is the son of ex-President Frank H. Traendly.

CHARLES H. TOTTY advises that a swindler has been operating in his section and it would be well to warn the trade so that they may be prepared for him. "He has evidently worked at the florists' business," writes Mr. Totty, "as he can talk glibly enough regarding the different varieties of roses and carnations. He has victimized several of the tradesmen of Madison, N. J., by the use of small forged checks, claiming a long acquaintance with me and other florists. He is of medium height, with dark hair, and gains attention by claiming to be an Elk of a Virginian lodge, so florists would be well advised to see the card of any man looking for favors under the plea that he is an Elk."

THE Missouri College of Agriculture, at Columbia, has just added fifteen new men to its staff.

THE expected shortage of field-grown carnation plants has not developed. There are a great many small surpluses all over the country, as may be noted from the six columns of classified advertisements in this and recent issues of the Review.

THE Chrysanthemum Society of America has issued the annual volume containing the official report of the last meeting and exhibition, held at Morristown, N. J., November 2 to 4, 1910, also the registrations for the year, list of members, and the preliminary list of special premiums for the exhibition to be held at St. Louis, November 7 to 11, 1911. C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park, Ill., is secretary.

THE Southern Cypress Manufacturers' Association is using a full page advertisement in the September magazines to emphasize the fact that "those who make greenhouses a business build of cypress" and to exploit a booklet of "valuable guidance for amateur greenhouse folks." The advertisement reproduces a letter from the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, in which they state that they have used cypress exclusively since 1885.

E. H. WILSON, after a visit to England extending over three months, has returned to Boston by the steamship Zeeland. He returned to America for the purpose of examining, on behalf of Harvard University, the specimens collected by him during his last two explorations in China. The herbaria number roughly about 50,000 specimens, including some 3,000 species. Coniferæ, collected at high elevations on the Chinese Tibetan frontier, form a considerable part of the collection.

RETURNS STEADILY GOOD.

Advertising in The Review not only brings good returns, but they are steadily good, as witness the following letters:

July 29, 1911.—We are having great success with our Silver Pink antirrhinum, and as we are using only The Review the credit must go to you.—G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, New Hampshire.

August 21, 1911.—Please have my advertisement read September delivery, instead of August and September; you are rushing us too hard.—G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, New Hampshire.

August 26, 1911.—Shall have to ask you to discontinue both my display advertisement and the liner in the Classified department until I can catch up with the orders. One needs an unlimited supply to keep the pace with a Review Adv.—G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, New Hampshire.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The middle of last week did not make good on the promises of the first of the week; business started with some increase, but quickly fell away and the middle of the week brought probably the dullest days of the season. Friday showed some improvement and Saturday was fair. The present week started with a considerable reduction in the receipts of stock, partly due to the passing of the heaviest cuts of gladioli and asters and partly due to cooler weather conditions, which served to curtail the rose crops. There is, however, an abundance of stock for all demands and there has been little, if any, improvement in prices; in fact,

HERE YOU CAN GET THE BEST

ASTERS

The Large Late Finest Varieties In Quantity

We have handled a great many Asters this season, and some very fine Asters, but we have not heretofore had such splendid stock as that we now offer. And it is coming in at a time when it will be most appreciated, when the general supply of good Asters is on the wane. You can be sure of getting the best grade, if you order of us, for some time yet.

BEAUTIES

Plenty of the popular medium lengths.

Our present cut of Beauties is largely from young plants and runs largely to medium stems, the lengths that are in greatest demand. This is excellent stock, grown by the grower whose summer crop has given such perfect satisfaction to our customers in other years. Those who are not ordering their Beauties of us should try this stock without delay.

KILLARNEYS

PINK OR WHITE—LARGE SUPPLY.

We are furnishing buyers all the Killarneys they need, in any length up to 18 to 24 inches. The color of the pink is something wonderful—better than it is in winter. These roses are business-builders. Once tried, you will use no others.

Fancy Valley

You will need Valley every day, now that the season is opening again. We ALWAYS can supply, but why not place a standing order, for shipment (with the other stock you need) every day, every other day, or twice a week?

Lilies

We can supply all the Easter Lilies you can use. Try us any day in the year.

Gladioli

King, America, Augusta, the three leaders; can ship in thousand lots; best quality.

HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL GREENS

Here you get the best Fancy Ferns, all the Smilax and Asparagus strings you want, Sprengeri and Plumosus bunches, Mexican Ivy and Galax. No order too large for our facilities and no order too small to receive our careful attention.

considerable stock still is going to waste.

There is a diminished supply of American Beauties, the shorts being much less plentiful than in the last fortnight. There are plenty of long Beauties and the quality of most of the stock is exceptionally good for this season of the year. Killarney and White Killarney are, of course, received in greater quantity than any other roses, the quality being first-class in every respect, with heavy supplies of short stems that are selling cheaply indeed. There are increased receipts of Maryland and this rose is now showing its characteristic excellent early autumn quality; for the next few weeks Maryland is likely to hold a conspicuous place. Mrs. Ward also is in increased supply and the quality steadily is improving. The growers like this rose and so do the buyers. Prince de Bulgarie is in moderate supply. The out-of-town buyers think highly of it. There are moderate supplies of Richmond, but it is not in special request as yet.

Asters are not so overabundant as they were, but there still is a great plenty. The later varieties are now coming in and the quality of much of the stock is excellent. Gladioli, like the asters, are getting along in their season, but there are heavier receipts than the demand can consume at legitimate prices. The outdoor carnations are cutting little figure, but the new stock from under glass is increasing in quantity and steadily improving in quality. The season is starting off well.

Easter lilies, which have been one of the problems, are not now so overabundant as they have been and prices have stiffened a little. Rubrum and auratum lilies are passing. There is an abundance of valley. Cattleyas are scarce. All green goods are plentiful.

Comparing August with the same month last year, the quantity of stock sold in this market shows a considerable increase, but the money realized does not exceed the sum received for the smaller quantity last year; in fact, many houses say their sales were less than a year ago. Taking July and August together, the results are about on a par with last year. July this season was considerably ahead of July last year, but August in last year was exceptionally good and those who equaled it this season have every reason to be satisfied with what they have done.

Buyers should note that Monday, September 4, is Labor day, a legal holiday, when there will be no delivery of mail after the early morning. The wholesale houses will close at noon, so orders should be in early.

Beginning next Tuesday, September 5, all the wholesale houses will keep open till 6 p. m. week days, closing at noon on Sundays. Buyers should remember that no mail is procurable in Chicago on Sunday and that mail orders to arrive Sunday for Sunday shipment, should be posted to reach this city early in the morning and carry a special delivery stamp.

Various Notes.

The Chicago Florists' Club will have been in existence for a quarter of a century at the November meeting, and some sort of celebration of the event seems to be in order. It is interesting to note that the officers for 1894-95 were as follows: President, J. F. Kidwell; vice-presidents, G. L. Grant and Edgar Sanders; financial secretary, J. B. Deamud, E. F. Winterson; recording secretary, Nic Miller, T. F. Keenan; treasurer, W. W. Barnard; trustees, C. J. Strombach, Fred Kanst, W. N. Rudd, E. Wienhoeber.

G. M. Haecker, manager for Mrs. Joseph F. Lang, 2010 Melrose street, was overcome by heat while working in the greenhouses August 14 and died August 20, at the age of 52 years.

Miss Minnie Wattman, who has charge of the office of E. C. Amling Co., returned August 28 from a trip to Nova Scotia. She was accompanied by Miss Martha C. Gunterberg. Miss Gunterberg stopped for a visit to the Rhinebeck violet growers, who are her consignors, and did not return to Chicago until the middle of the week. While returning from Boston to New York on the Massachusetts, the steamer caught fire. There was a narrow escape from a disaster and the eastern newspapers made front page material of it, one New York daily illustrating its story with a snapshot of the Chicago ladies, made as they were leaving the boat.

W. J. Smyth and family are on the way home from California and will arrive here September 1.

Harry Van Gelder, manager of the Percy Jones business, left for Texas August 26, expecting to be absent ten days. He is much improved in health.

August 17 Bassett & Washburn gave their annual picnic for their employees and families. There was an attendance of 175 and the various sports were hotly contested.

The E. H. Hunt establishment has a new coat of white throughout. Paul M. Bryant, secretary, is at Milwaukee this week. Clifford Pruner has had a serious time from the recurrence of an old poisoning with ivy, but is back on duty this week. Charles Erne is having his annual tussle with hay fever. A. F. Longren went on the road August 29.

The A. L. Randall Co. has consolidated the sales offices of the cut flower department and the supply department at the rear of the building, gaining considerable space for cut flowers. Miss Tonner returned August 28 from her vacation and W. W. Randall returned the same day from his eastern trip. Frank Johnson is visiting northern customers this week.

Mr. Schafer, of the E. F. Winterson Co., has returned from a 400-mile trip in his Buick car.

John Kruchten says the gardenias will soon be in bloom.

Hoerber Bros. are expecting great things of a crop of late asters.

George Reinberg's store staff is again complete—all had their vacations.

C. W. McKellar visited Carrillo & Baldwin, the orchid growers at Mamaroneck, N. Y., last week and says they have a splendid place.

A. Henderson & Co. and Winterson's Seed Store received large shipments of French bulbs August 29.

Wietor Bros. report an extremely brisk demand for field-grown carnation plants. One of the recent sales was 18,000 plants to the W. E. Lynch

Floral Co., whose new greenhouses are just being completed.

C. A. Samuelson is making a trip to the Pacific coast.

Kyle & Foerster say that the Northwestern Floral Co., Gross Point, is ready with its new crop of carnations in good shape much earlier than last year.

H. E. Philpott, president of the Florists' Club, who has given his time almost exclusively to club affairs since the July meeting, is back from the convention to remain until after the club meeting September 7.

Tim Matchen says that Peter Reinberg has already cut and sold his Golden Glow chrysanthemums. The best flowers made $2 per dozen.

Ollie Zech, with Zech & Mann, is on his vacation this week. There is a rumor in the market that he has taken the opportunity to consummate a contemplated wedding and a postal card received from Milwaukee seems to confirm the report. It reads: "Suppose you have heard the news by this time. Were you surprised?"

Kennicott Bros. Co. has received the first of the new season's crop of boxwood. E. E. Pieser is at Winnipeg.

A. L. Vaughan, of Vaughan & Sperry, has returned from Corey, Mich., where he has been vacationing with his family.

Fred Liebermann, who retails flowers week days and pitches baseball for Nappertandys Sundays, has this season won ten games, lost three and August 27 pitched a tie, 2 to 2, in twelve innings.

The George M. Garland Co., of Des Plaines, Ill., is sending out a series of twelve blotters, each one carrying a calendar for the coming month, in addition to a pretty scene and the advertisement. This makes a series of reminders that are not quickly forgotten.

Dahlias are coming along nicely at the Edgebrook greenhouses of the George Wittbold Co. Otto Wittbold is suffering his annual attack of hay fever.

Otto W. Frese, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, says that although August was an extremely dull month, he thinks the new house has every reason to be satisfied with the progress made in its first month.

Phil Schupp, of J. A. Budlong's, looks forward to much better times in the near future.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. now has orchids enough to fill ten houses.

O. Johnson, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., says the new plant at Batavia is now in full running shape.

The Chicago Carnation Co. says the call for field-grown carnation plants is the strongest in years.

F. O. Frantzen now occupies two stores at 1476 and 1478 Summerdale avenue, giving him twice the space formerly occupied.

Phil Foley has been suffering with a bad cold and was in his office Monday morning for the first time in a week. He says the Foley souvenirs were in great demand at the Baltimore convention, as they gave away over 500 of their collapsible aluminum drinking cups and pocket memorandum books.

The Freres-Tonner establishment is resplendent in a new coat of white. Miss H. V. Tonner is on her vacation.

September 1 Joe Beaver expects to go back to O. J. Friedman's, when the new store on Congress street opens.

HINSDALE, ILL.

The annual picnic given by the employees and members of the firm of Bassett & Washburn was held Thursday, August 17, in the woods east of the greenhouses. A platform for dancing was erected and Bohlander's orchestra of four pieces played from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 8 o'clock in the evening. The various events were contested in good shape. The first event was the tug-of-war. This was participated in by four teams of five men each. A team of which Fred Herman was the captain was one winner, and a team of which John Linn was the captain was the other winner. Boxes of cigars were the prizes. The shoe race was hotly contested; at least a dozen men entered. It resulted in a tie, the winners being George Schumann and John Johnson. The sausage-eating contest was participated in by over thirty. This was won by Larsloo Johns. A 100-yard race was won by Alex. Linn and a 75-yard race for men of 35 years and over had to be run in heats, there were so many contestants. It resulted in a tie race, the winners being Emil O'Berg and David Craigmile. The balancing contest was won by Nick Den. A one-legged race was won by Paul Kohout, and a race for boys 10 and 12 years old was won by Walter Anderson. The contests for ladies and little girls were just as warmly contested, the girls' race being won by Lillian Kohout. The needle-threading contest was won by Miss Johnson. The bean race was one by Mrs. O'Berg. The cracker-eating contest was won by Mrs. Carlson and the ball-throwing contest by Miss Carlson, a second prize being won by Margaret Lenhough. There were handsome prizes in each event. After the contests were over the crowd enjoyed themselves dancing and playing ball.

The attendance was large. There were 120 grown-ups and fifty-five children. A delicious supper was served at 6 o'clock, while liquid refreshments were served all the time. Ice cream, lemonade and large quantities of ginger ale and pop were enjoyed by the children as well as by the grown-ups. The management of the picnic was in the hands of a committee appointed by the men themselves and was very ably handled.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The market conditions are unsatisfactory. The tide of supply is rising without any corresponding improvement in the demand. Moreover, the quality of the principal flower, the aster, is so much better that the same price usually gives the buyer much greater value than a fortnight ago. Really choice Semple's, Vick's and Ostrich Plume are offered in all the wholesale houses. Most of them come from New York state. They bring good prices when good asters are needed and keep the prices of poor asters down to a point discouraging to production. Gladioli are somewhat out of favor just now. Easter lilies continue in demand where white flowers can be used; there is nothing better for effect. Beauties are coming to the front. A nice crop of fine flowers presumably from two-year-old plants is being cut. Other roses are plentiful. There are no cattleyas yet. Harrisoniæ is not sufficiently tempting, even in face of such scarcity. New York state is also sending us good sweet peas. The dahlia is appearing. Dorothy Peacock is the best fancy so far. Outdoor flowers have benefited by the rains.

The Dahlia Season.

There are indications that the dahlia season will be on in earnest before the middle of September. Reports from Atco, Hammonton and Williamstown Junction are that the dahlia crop promises to be unusually fine, providing they are blessed by a few more fruitful showers, while there are signs beneath the surface in the wholesale market that point to free use of this beautiful autumn flower during September.

Various Notes.

The Robert Craig Co. has decided to grow plants exclusively at Norwood. This means that crotons and dracænas have done so well that they will crowd out carnations, so Norwood, the free flowering white carnation, will be placed on the market.

Rain spoiled William Henry Maule's party and baseball game at Villa Nova August 26. Maurice Fuld, manager for the Henry F. Michell team, claims the Seed League championship for 1911. The Saturday half holidays are now over, ending the season.

David Herbert & Son, Atco, N. J., have their dahlias in exceptionally fine shape for the coming season.

Bassett & Weller, of Hammonton, N. J., have succeeded J. Murray Bassett, dahlia grower and collector of wild flowers. The new firm will erect some greenhouses.

Pennock Bros. are making changes in their handsome store, increasing office and counter space.

Harry L. Pyle, of Atco, N. J., was in town this week, looking over the dahlia situation.

William F. Gude, Washington, D. C., was in town this week. Mr. Gude says that when Washington really wants something she generally gets it. This is understood to refer to the Whilldin and Bayersdorfer cups.

It is unfortunate that Edward Reid was unable to take part in the shooting match at Baltimore. Mr. Reid motored to Baltimore with David Anderson, of Garrettford, expecting to enter the contest on the day set, August 17. When the day was changed to August 18, Mr. Reid left to keep an appointment in Reading on that day. This was a pity. Mr. Reid was twice a prize winner last year. His presence would have added ginger to the match.

J. Stephenson's Sons, Oak Lane, Pa., have their new, immense Killarney house in fine shape. The old place will be devoted to Mrs. Jardine.

Henry M. Weiss & Sons, Hatboro, Pa., have commenced cutting carna-

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business continues dull. On some days not over half a dozen buyers are seen at the wholesale markets. Many growers ship direct to the stores and, with the light demand which exists during the last half of August, there is a large oversupply of flowers. Asters continue to be the leading flowers. While a good many long-stemmed flowers are seen, the major portion are of indifferent quality. While some extras may make $1.50 per hundred, others sell as low as 20 cents and 25 cents. Gladioli of fine quality and even America, Mrs. Francis King and Augusta are hard to move at low prices. Sweet peas are still seen, but the quality as a rule is inferior.

Carnations are few in numbers as yet, but more growers each week are commencing to ship. Stems as yet are short in all cases. Roses are of good quality for the last of August. Beauties are fine, while the stems on the better grades of Killarney, Maryland and Carnot are extra good. Mrs. Aaron Ward is again seen of excellent quality and sells well. Lilies are overabundant; so is lily of the valley. Cattleyas are practically out of the market just now, and so are gardenias. Sales of sweet sultan and blue cornflowers are fairly good, but there is an oversupply of gypsophila, candytuft, snapdragon and other outdoor flowers. Dahlias are being featured at the stores, but these do not appear much in the markets. The call for asparagus and adiantum continues light.

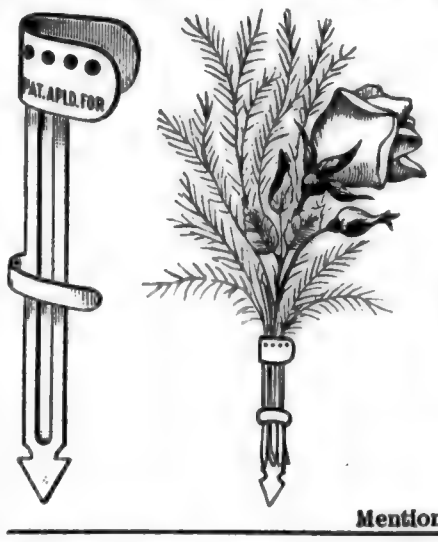
and dull skies prevented many from joining the party of fifty who left Scollay square at 12:30 for a field day at B. Hammond Tracy's gladiolus farm at Wenham. The ride of thirty miles per trolley through Lynn, Salem and Beverly was greatly enjoyed and when the party reached Cedar Acres the sun broke out. A number of prominent north shore growers swelled the party to seventy. Mr. Tracy had an ample supply of autos and carriages to convey visitors to and from the electric cars.

The Cedar Acres gladiolus industry is of recent growth. Ill health caused Mr. Tracy to buy an abandoned farm, with only half an acre of tillable ground on it, more as a retirement than with any idea of growing anything. He, however, started in gladiolus growing, which had interested him much while an amateur, and has in the last four or five years converted at heavy expense what were deemed worthless gravel hillsides into luxuriant fields of gladioli. There are nineteen acres planted this season, some 200,000 bulbs to the acre, and no cleaner, choicer and better grown collection is probably to be found in the country. From a small storage shed with 800, there is now one with a capacity of over 5,000 bushels of bulbs, and as each year more ground is planted, which is necessary owing to the ever increasing demand, even this will soon need enlarging. It surprised the visitors to note how well gladioli grew on what was recently almost pure gravel. Thousands of fine seedlings were seen, some of which will soon make Cedar Acres even more famed.

A generous collation was served in a tent near Mr. Tracy's picturesque residence by a noted caterer, which everyone enjoyed. Then a little speechmaking was indulged in, short eulogistic addresses being made by P. M. Miller, W. N. Craig, Eric Wetterlow, of the North Shore Horticultural Society, and James Wheeler. A hearty vote of thanks and rousing cheers were given Mr. and Mrs. Tracy. After the party had been photographed, the return journey to Boston was made, all in the party, which contained a good sprinkling of ladies, having spent an enjoyable afternoon.

Various Notes.

The Mishawum Floral Co., of Woburn, has just completed a new 300-foot King Construction house. Part of it is being devoted to mums, but it will be filled with sweet peas shortly.



The W. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, never had a grander lot of winter-flowering and foliage plants than this season. Their Lorraines are superb, as are cyclamen and other plants. They report an excellent fall demand as starting in.

Robert McGorum, of Natick, was the first local grower to send in well grown Golden Glow mums. These are handled by W. A. Hastings at the Boston Flower Exchange.

Everett E. Cummings, of Woburn, has fine large houses of Perfect cucumbers, a cross between the White Spine and English varieties, which have been cropping grandly. He finds that sixty-four of these fill a bushel box. He has 36,000 plants of Princess of Wales violets to plant later. He has this season added three new houses, average size 40x150.

Following the S. A. F. convention, Eber Holmes and John Pritchard, manager at Budlong's, Auburn, R. I., visited all the leading rose growing establishments near Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York and later the leading ones in Massachusetts. Mr. Holmes reports stock as looking fine and he saw some fine seedlings.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. are greatly enlarging their ice-box capacity. They are also having a large caravan built, for hauling supplies. They report July business as splendid, and while August was rather quiet, returns were better than a year ago. Charles E. Robinson is at present in charge, but H. M. Robinson and Joseph Margolis will be back on duty after Labor day.

Henry R. Comley has this week nice plants of Campanula isophylla alba in his window on Park street, also tritomas, passifloras, nymphæas in variety and some choice gladioli.

J. M. Cohen, at the Boston Coöperative Market, will the coming season handle the cut of ten growers, two more than in 1910-11. His business shows a constant increase.

The stalls at the two wholesale flower markets look spick and span with a new coat of paint, ready for the annual auction of stalls, which takes place September 2.

The death of John F. Flood, reported elsewhere in this issue, came as a shock to his many friends. He had only been in business a year on his own account, but had worked up an excellent trade. We believe Mrs. Flood will continue the business.

Peirce Bros. are at present heavy shippers of asters and lilies. They will commence picking carnations this week.

S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, was among our visitors last week.

Among English representatives soon due are F. G. Waterer, of John Waterer & Sons, Bagshot, England; H. A. Barnard, of Stuart Low & Co., Enfield, England, and David Smith, of Thomas Smith & Sons, Stranraer, Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sandiford, of Buffalo, were in Boston last week and were present at the funeral of their late friend and one-time neighbor, John F. Flood.

The business of Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. is now concentrated at 12 Faneuil Hall Square. They have a grand display of dahlias and gladioli at their Marblehead trial grounds now, including many fine novelties. They will show these largely at the dahlia show in Horticultural Hall September 8 to 10, and also September 15 to 17, when the New England Dahlia Society will hold its annual show.

We got over two inches of additional rain August 26 to 28, which is splendid for late crops, although growers of asters had many flowers spoiled by the long spell of dampness.

W. N. Craig.

Pontiac, Ill.—W. J. Miller & Son have had a heavy summer trade, much better than expected, and have had difficulty in supplying the demand. They are now building a lean-to house, 11x 100, for which the J. C. Moninger Co. furnished the material. Some violets will be grown in the new house.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

There was a good supply in the cut flower market all of last week and the demand showed some improvement. Funeral work still monopolizes the work of the retailers and some of them were busy all of the week. The wholesalers say that the demand for light colored stock was quite large, but the other stock went begging. There is a let-up in the great bulk of gladioli and tuberose stalks, and the few thousand that come in seem to have a pretty good demand. There are large consignments of roses coming in of extra good quality, especially in Beauties and white and pink Cochets, while Richmond, Killarney and Maryland have good color and fairly long stems. Carnations are looking much better. The cool nights have improved all the stock wonderfully in foliage, color and stem.

There was quite a lot of nice cosmos sent in last week, which is expected to be plentiful. Long sprays of Clematis paniculata are being used extensively in funeral decorations, with good effect. Extra good lily of the valley is in the market at $4 per hundred and it is worth it. Longiflorum lilies are coming in fine and sell well at $10 per hundred blooms. Asters are still coming in heavily and are being unloaded at cheap prices. Smilax, asparagus and ferns are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Kirkwood's gala day, known as "Prosperity day," was celebrated August 24, and all the Kirkwood florists with their families took part.

A. C. Canfield, of Springfield, Ill., spent a day with the trade last week. He also visited C. E. De Wever's place at Olivette, Mo.

Ferns that are Ferns Fancy and Dagger

Packed and shipped by myself. Old customers know what that means, when they see whose adv. this is, and new customers will know if they try a case from me. I have not bothered you with writing this summer, telling you that I had the only Ferns there were in the market, but starting Sept. 1st, I am right on the job with an unlimited supply; you should place your order with a man that can and will supply you until new crop next spring at a reasonable price. There will be no harm done if you ask me for my price for the balance of the season, and it may do you a lot of good.

J. W., Box 397, Bar Harbor, Maine.

Sunday opening of the year. According to the will of Henry Shaw, the garden should only be open to the public the first Sunday in June and September. Superintendent Irish has everything in readiness for the opening.

Friday, September 1, will end the early closing of the four wholesale houses, which has been in operation since June 15.

The Apple Growers' Congress was held here, at the Planters' hotel, last week, lasting two days. All the meetings were well attended. J. W. Stanton, of Richview, Ill., was elected president; Louis Erde, of Cedar Gap, Mo., vice-president; J. C. Wilson, of Columbia, Mo., secretary; Wesley Greene, of Des Moines, Ia., treasurer, and L. A. Goodman, of Kansas City, Mo., statistician. Richard Dalton, president of the State Board of Horticulture, made the opening address.

The working force of the Smith Wholesale Floral Co. was busy all the week rearranging the place for the opening of the fall season.

The Angermueller force is busy repainting and making other interior improvements.

With a few exceptions, all of our vacationists of the retail and wholesale stores have returned home and are eager for the opening of the fall season. Prospects seem good for a busy season.

Our nurserymen, Messrs. Sanders, Weber, Rothenheber and Schuette, say they expect a busy fall trade in fruit and shade trees and shrubs of all kinds. They have plenty of orders booked ahead.

Robert Scott, the Schreve avenue florist, has just completed a new house, the second one this year, both over 100 feet long. Mr. Scott's stock is handled by C. A. Kuehn.

Robert J. Windler, the well known local retailer and president-elect of the Florists' Club, will leave at the end of the week for Chicago. Mr. Windler and Miss Amy Zender, daughter of Adam Zender, will be married there Wednesday, September 6. Frank Windler will act as best man and the bride and groom will take an eastern honeymoon trip before returning home.

Many improvements are being made at C. A. Kuehn's and H. G. Berning's and all will be in fine shape by September 1. J. J. B.

WINTER IN THE SOUTH

I wish to arrange with a good business man (or woman), who thoroughly understands the retail florist business, to act as assistant manager of long established winter flower and fruit business in one of the largest southern winter resorts, open January to April. A year after year proposition for competent person, who has his own business in north. Address with references and full particulars, No. 52, care Florists' Review, Chicago.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

The worst drought this section has experienced in a decade was broken this week by a splendid rainfall. No rain had fallen here, with the exception of three light showers, since the last week in April, and as a consequence the majority of crops are a failure. The shade trees here have dropped most of their foliage and have the appearance of late October instead of August.

With the exception of funeral work, business has been at a standstill and a lot of stock finds its way to the waste barrel. Asters, gladioli and all outdoor stock have been a failure. Roses and carnations are coming in more plentifully, but are mostly short-stemmed as yet.

Various Notes.

Miss Fannie White, who purchased W. S. Bell's greenhouses, has four of the houses in good shape and planted to carnations. Mr. Graser, of the firm of Graser & Humphreys, Mount Sterling, Ky., has taken charge of the growing end of the business.

The Michler Bros. Co. reports a good summer business. Their ornamental stock and perennials have suffered considerably from the severe drought. Charles Michler, of the firm, is spending a three months' vacation in British Columbia, on some government land taken up two years ago.

Honaker the Florist is cutting an immense lot of roses of splendid quality. He reports all greenhouse stock coming on nicely. Mr. Brothers, the firm's store man, surprised his friends by "taking unto himself a wife." We extend to him our congratulations and best wishes.

In the annual contest given by one of our local newspapers for the most popular young lady in this city, Miss M. McCarney, of the firm of Honaker the Florist, was the winner. She is now enjoying her trip to Atlantic City and other eastern points.

Richard H. Tacke, our genial park superintendent, has just returned from Kansas City, where he attended the annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents. He reports a pleasant trip.

Ernest, Walter and Louis Hillenmeyer, the three sons of our well known nurseryman, have been confined to bed with typhoid fever for the last six weeks. Recent reports indicate an early recovery for them all.

Stock at the John A Keller estate is looking well. The firm is cutting an extra fine lot of carnations for so early in the season, from a large house of pot-grown stock. An order has been placed with the J. C. Moninger Co. for a palm house, 18x63 feet, with 10-foot walls. A new workshed, 18x75, is also to be added this fall.

Miss Bessie Lisle, of the George Wittbold Co., Chicago, is visiting her mother and other relatives here. She will return next week to resume her duties.

Mrs. John A. Keller and her daughter, Josephine, are visiting her sister in Chicago.

Theodore Keller, rose grower for the last eighteen months with E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., is visiting his home here. He intends to spend the winter in Chicago. J. P. K.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

Funeral work has been almost the only feature of a listless week, and it did a good deal toward cleaning up stock and making market conditions more wholesome. The supply houses are finding it difficult to move anything at all for any kind of a price, and almost any sort of a consignment causes a glut of the market. Naturally under such circumstances retailers nibble a little, but are wary about purchasing.

With asters in good supply and of fair quality offered at $2, perhaps 50 cents is bid. The first result is that little stock is being proffered. There is only the most limited demand for it, at such unremunerative prices that a man might as well not cut it. Perhaps lily of the valley holds up better than anything else on the list, while Easter lilies are still in fair demand.

Various Notes.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. is cultivating the trade, preparing for fall business, and taking the warm weather stagnation with a great deal of philosophical resignation, as far as surface indications go. The management is looking forward with a great deal of satisfaction to the prospect of getting into its new quarters.

There are rumors of a number of changes in the florists' fraternity, but seemingly the time is not considered ripe to make more particular announcement of them.

Albert Esch is growing some fine specimens of Boston and Scottii ferns, also 75,000 hardy ferns in 3-inch pots. The Washington Florists' Exchange will handle the entire lot. It found the demand for these ferns good last season for table decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Philipps have gone to the country for two weeks. Business was so good this summer that Mr. Philipps found it advisable to postpone his vacation, and, contrary to his usual custom, he kept his place open all summer.

The favorite window decoration this year is the rock pile and lily pond. Some of the landscape effects are quite creditable.

George C. Schaffer has been showing some tiny aquariums in his window, with goldfish in them about an inch long. They ought to lead to a pleasing and harmless fad.

The Washington Florists' Co. was busy with funeral work last week, so much so that the force had to work at night to fill orders.

Henry Small has carried off a nice plum from right under the eyes of the Baltimore florists. He got the contract to supply the plants for the decoration of a new hotel there. Palms and ferns are being used exclusively. He has been picking up a large part of his material here, placing orders with one firm for $800 worth of plants.

Better weather and generous showers have helped the conditions locally. The high price of garden truck has weakened under improved growing conditions and nursery stock of all kinds has been greatly benefited. D.

Illustration No. 1.—Warehouse for Storage of Seeds as They Come from the Field.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; First Vice-Pres., M. H. Duryea, New York City; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE sweet pea crop in England is falling short; too hot in July.

HARRY E. BENNETT, formerly a traveler for D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, was found drowned in the Chicago river August 24.

THE new warehouse of A. C. Croft Seed Co., Moulton, Ia., was destroyed by fire August 18, the loss being nearly $15,000, only partly covered by insurance.

REPORTS from the river farms of the Sacramento valley indicate about half a crop from the seed fields there. These include about one thousand acres, nearly all onion. The loss was due to hot winds at the time the onion was in flower, at which time the crop is peculiarly liable to injury.

THE steamer Koenig Albert arrived at New York August 17 with 434 cases of French bulbs shipped via Genoa and five cases for Peter Henderson & Co., that came on board at Gibraltar. The consignments via Genoa were eighty-three cases for Maltus & Ware and 351 cases for the International Forwarding Co.

THERE has been more or less trouble with the shipments of French bulbs this season, but probably the trade should consider itself, on the whole, fortunate, for by August 11 thirty-four cases of cholera had developed at Marseilles, where the bulbs go aboard boat, and shipping was much worse demoralized than at any earlier date.

THE customs authorities have followed Breck vs. United States in deciding a number of protests over the duty assessed on hyacinth bulbs before the test case was decided. Among the old protests recently concluded to the advantage of the importers were those of Schlegel & Fottler Co., Boston; F. B. Vandegrift & Co., New York; Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.; W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; John Dunn & Co., Philadelphia; Wm. K. Harris, Philadelphia; H. H. Berger & Co., New York.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; First Vice-Pres., M. H. Duryea, New York City; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE sweet pea crop in England is falling short; too hot in July.

HARRY E. BENNETT, formerly a traveler for D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, was found drowned in the Chicago river August 24.

THE new warehouse of A. C. Croft Seed Co., Moulton, Ia., was destroyed by fire August 18, the loss being nearly $15,000, only partly covered by insurance.

REPORTS from the river farms of the Sacramento valley indicate about half a crop from the seed fields there. These include about one thousand acres, nearly all onion. The loss was due to hot winds at the time the onion was in flower, at which time the crop is peculiarly liable to injury.

THE steamer Koenig Albert arrived at New York August 17 with 434 cases of French bulbs shipped via Genoa and five cases for Peter Henderson & Co., that came on board at Gibraltar. The consignments via Genoa were eighty-three cases for Maltus & Ware and 351 cases for the International Forwarding Co.

THERE has been more or less trouble with the shipments of French bulbs this season, but probably the trade should consider itself, on the whole, fortunate, for by August 11 thirty-four cases of cholera had developed at Marseilles, where the bulbs go aboard boat, and shipping was much worse demoralized than at any earlier date.

THE customs authorities have followed Breck vs. United States in deciding a number of protests over the duty assessed on hyacinth bulbs before the test case was decided. Among the old protests recently concluded to the advantage of the importers were those of Schlegel & Fottler Co., Boston; F. B. Vandegrift & Co., New York; Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.; W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; John Dunn & Co., Philadelphia; Wm. K. Harris, Philadelphia; H. H. Berger & Co., New York.

give some idea of the facilities required for the preparation of the seed crops for market after they have been delivered from the field.

Illustration No. 1 shows the warehouse in which the bags of seed are given temporary storage while awaiting their turn for the cleaning process. In one corner are seen the first fruits of this year's crop.

No. 2 shows the trackage leading from the warehouse to the seed-cleaning house and an end view of the cleaning house.

No. 3 gives a partial view of the interior of the cleaning house. At each side of the end of the track is a hopper in the floor, in which the contents of the sacks are placed and from which they are carried to the upper floor by conveyors.

No. 4 shows the machine on the upper floor to which the conveyors deliver the seed and which separates the chaff from the seed.

The seed then passes by conduits to the floors below, where the process of cleaning is completed in the machines shown in No. 5. Electric power is used and the motor may be seen in the lower right-hand corner of the last-named picture.

The buildings are placed at a distance of 100 feet from each other, so that in case of fire in one the rest could be saved. A hydrant and fire hose are handy to each building and a fire drill has been established for the employees, so each man will know what to do in case of an alarm of fire.

Probably few people outside of those in the seed business realize the amount of work required to prepare seed for market after the crop has been harvested, and the care necessary to keep the various sorts free from mixture. This phase of the seed growing industry was exceedingly interesting to the writer and will no doubt be equally so to the readers of The Review, whether seedsmen or users of seed.

A curious thing has been noted in regard to sweet pea chaff. When fed to animals it fattens them, but soon afterward, it is said, they are unable to walk. Just why this result follows no one has yet been able to say.

No. 2.—Exterior of Seed Cleaning House and Trackage from Temporary Warehouse.

IMPORTS.

The imports of seed through the port of New York for the week ending August 19 were as follows:

Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.	Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.
Anise...	275	$ 2,033	Grass	2	$ 92
Caraway	300	1,395	Millet	200	490

Clover..	3,945	49,848	Other	..	6,733
Cummin..	160	1,374

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $74,324.

HOLLAND SEED CROPS.

Last winter was extremely mild in the Holland seed growing districts, so that all perennials came through in good shape. A long drought, however, weakened the growth of many of the plants. In spring there was a heavy frost, which, though not so disastrous as in other parts of Europe, did much harm to the crops in Holland. Sluis & Groot, Enkhuizen, in a recent report say that radish, cress, mustard, turnip and cauliflower at first seemed to be a total loss, but gradually the plants recovered, and the later weather was fa-

LILIUM HARRISII

(THE BERMUDA EASTER LILY)

LET US SUPPLY YOUR WANTS IN LILIES THIS SEASON

We think we can make it to your advantage to do so, as regards both quality and price.

The stock that we offer is not gathered indiscriminately from all kinds of sources, but is grown for us by a few selected growers whose stocks have been worked up from the true, original stock. In order to insure the health of the product, the bulbs are not grown on the same field oftener than one season, other crops being grown on the field the preceding year. The ground is thoroughly manured when the previous crop is grown, leaving it in a high state of cultivation, and when the lily bulbs are planted no fresh manure is used; this prevents disease and insures a crop of strong, healthy bulbs.

In addition to this, we do not dig our bulbs as early as they are usually dug, but leave them in the ground until they are thoroughly ripened and matured. When Harrisii is good it leaves little to be desired. There is very little, if any, stock obtainable as good as the stock that we are offering. We are supplying only this one grade of selected stock and when this is disposed of we shall have no more to offer.

While the quality of the stock that we offer is of the highest, our prices are as low as, or lower than, the prices of those who offer the ordinary stock gathered from indiscriminate sources. We are sure buyers will find our stock very satisfactory, and much more so than the Japan-grown Longiflorum, which has badly deteriorated in recent years.

Bear in mind that we were the original introducers of Harrisii in Bermuda, and that we have exceptional facilities for obtaining our present supplies. Also take note that the smallest bulbs that we offer are 6-7 inch bulbs, not 5-7 inch, as usually offered.

6- 7 inch bulbs, 335 to the case,	$15.00 per case;	full thousand lots, $ 40.00 per 1000
7- 9 inch bulbs, 200 to the case,	16.00 per case;	full thousand lots, 75.00 per 1000
9-11 inch bulbs, 100 to the case,	18.00 per case;	full thousand lots, 175.00 per 1000

FERNS

We have an exceptionally nice lot of ferns in the following varieties – good, bushy, well-grown plants that will please the most critical buyers. Plants have been grown in pots and are thoroughly well established and nicely finished.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and Piersoni, 6-inch pots	$0.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Piersoni, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 8-inch plants	$1.00 to 1.50 each
Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 10-inch plants	2.50 each vorable, with nice rains which did much good to these crops and restored many of them to a condition not thought possible earlier in the season. Generally speaking, the stand of the crops, though not brilliant, may be called satisfactory. Cauliflower will give an average crop. Some turnips have been badly damaged by worms in the pods and many of the plantations will yield not more than one-fourth of an average crop. The present prospect for flower seeds is in every respect satisfactory.

some places they are so large as we have seldom seen them. Formerly the largest offsets were cultivated from these bulbs, from which the bottom was cut into three parts, but now, as the growers develop the growth by artificial heat, the offsets from the excavated bulbs are as large as the others.

The bulbs which are one, two and three years old also developed well, but the first-sized bulbs are generally not so big as last year. The forcing quality will be of very high grade, and if you now cut a bulb in halves you may see the flower buds much larger than in other years at the same time. Also the year 1910 was very favorable for the forcing purposes and in consequence of that a good demand and high prices may be expected, especially as the stock of named kinds is also rather small. Some growers have already sold all their first-sized bulbs at better prices than they have got for a long time.

In the first place, the high prices are the result of the rather small stock of first-sized bulbs, but on the other hand, the new Society of Hyacinth Growers has much to do with it. The members of this society have established minimum prices for which mixed hyacinths may be sold. They think, if the mixed hyacinths are sold at satisfactory prices, the named kinds must rise in proportion, and this year they have seen gratifying results from their work.—Horticultural Advertiser.

TORONTO.

The Market.

Trade is looking up a bit and stock is coming in more plentifully and in better condition. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are now quite abundant and are excellent in quality. Roses are putting in more of an appearance. Killarneys are quite good and some Beauties are coming on the market. Richmonds, as yet, are poor. Valley is excellent and sweet peas are good. Already a number of large weddings are being booked for next month, and, from present indications, the season will be a good one.

Various Notes.

S. A. McFadden, manager for Tidy & Sons, King street, left Saturday with a party of friends for a three weeks' canoe trip up the Magnetawan river. Members of the trade will hear some good fish yarns.

Jack Plumbtree, of Tidy's, returned Monday from his holidays and brought back with him twelve bass and one catfish.

S. A. Frost, College street, has torn down part of his counter and moved his window back several feet. He now has room for a large display.

J. H. Dunlop reports business as good as usual at this time of year. Orders for September weddings are coming in nicely.

The autumnal exhibition of the Toronto Horticultural Society was held in Allan Gardens August 25. The attendance was much larger this year than usual. A big tent was pitched, tastefully decorated with plants from the conservatory in the gardens, with festoons of electric lights. An excellent orchestra discoursed music. Over 400 exhibits were registered and the list of prize winners contained the names of many who had never won a prize before. T. D. Dockray, the society's representative on the Ontario Horticultural Association board, won the special silver medal for August perennials.

A WORD ABOUT ASTER SEED

The proper time to talk aster seed is when the stock can be seen in bloom. About February first the buyer has to take the word of the catalogues in regard to the stock he is looking for.

Weather conditions here in Painesville have been just as unfavorable as elsewhere. Our asters are all strictly field-grown and without water. Steady use of the cultivator, our shading system and top feeding has given us a splendid crop. Below will be found a list of our favorites, with stem and flower measurements. We are prepared to convince the gentleman from Missouri if he will call, or we will be glad to send out a limited number of sample boxes of flowers. Enclose 50c to pay for packing and trouble. This will be deducted from the first seed order.

Lady Roosevelt, stem 30 in., flower 4 in.
Huntington's Giant Pink; shell pink sport from Lady Roosevelt; same tall, sturdy growth, flower more loosely built, and much larger, stem 24-30 in., flower 4½-5½ in.
Non-Lateral White (branching), stem 24-30 in., flower 4 in.
Late Br. Mary Semple, purple, rose, lav., stem 16-22 in., flower 3½-4 in.
Crego, rose, purple, stem 18-20 in., flower 4½-6 in.
Crego, shell pink, lavender, stem 14-20 in., flower 4½-5½ in.
Vick's Rochester (Mikado Pink), stem 24 in., flower 4½-5½ in.
Huntington's Improved Mikado Rose, identical in all ways with Rochester. More rank in growth, bright rose, stem 24-30 in., flower 4½-6 in.
Lavender Gem and Snowdrift. Our strain of these cannot be beaten. Only three rogues taken from over 1500 plants. They showed as high as 16 salable flowers to the plant. Stem 12-22 in., flower 2½-4 in.
We ship no flowers, only a few rogues going onto the Cleveland market, taken by Jones & Russell. They bring $2.50 per 100 on a 75c.-$1.00 market.

Very good seed blocks of most of the special asters advertised last spring can be seen here, but those mentioned above are showing much the best results.

Write for my seed list, out about Feb. 1.

FLORISTS' REVIEW
When Writing Advertisers

In olden times every man carried a sword, which was necessary for purposes of honor and self-preservation. When a man wanted to show another his intentions were peaceable, he extended his right hand, signifying he was at the mercy of the other by giving up his fighting arm. If the other reciprocated, he, too, extended his fighting arm, and they grasped hands as a token of mutual trust and friendship. Now, there are various kinds of handshakes—some vigorous, denoting strength, much of the mediocre kind, as though it was more a duty than a voluntary salute; but the limit is the fish hand—have you ever held one? Well, it feels like you were handling the entrails of a chicken—sort of a slimy-where-are-you feeling, that leaves with you the impression that the poor fellow was weaned too soon—a sort of human pancake batter. Now, good, sound, solid lily bulbs are like a good, sound, solid handshake—not made in a biscuit mold, but by nature good stuff; but the other kind are just like the fish hand. Shake hands with Horseshoe Brand Bulbs—it's worth your while to try them. Write for prices.

Giant-Flowering Cyclamen

For the last 15 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed bearing Cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers, that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize-winner. Received first and second prizes at the Toledo Florists' Club meeting early in November, when blooming Cyclamens were scarce. Seed of this, my own grown strain, in five separate colors, $1.00 per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $25.00 per 5000.

is now on. The exhibits of cut flowers and funeral designs will be large this year. This is also making work for the trade, the various manufacturers decorating their booths with wheat and other grains. Harry Dillemuth had charge of the decorations in the railway building. FLOWER BOXES

Successful Florists use Sefton Boxes. To have success in shipping flowers, YOU should use them.

We offer a complete and superior line of cut flower, folding boxes in numerous grades and sizes, as well as Corrugated Fibre Board Boxes for Live Plants and Floral Designs.

Sefton Florists' Boxes combine high quality with low price. We manufacture them in large quantities and thus are able and pleased to give you the benefit in reasonably low prices.

A box of high quality attracts the eye and makes it a pleasure to open a neat, tasty package. Sefton Florists' Boxes are trade builders, inasmuch as they are high class and make a good impression. Purchasers of our boxes were once users of the inferior grades.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston June 1912.

THE Central Nursery & Floral Co., of Kalamazoo, Mich., has retired from business.

A CARLOAD of fruit trees was recently given to the school children of Louisiana, Mo., and other nearby towns, by Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., of that city.

THE imports of plants, trees, etc., for the month of June, 1911, were $26,042, as compared with $21,569 in the same month of 1910, according to government statisticians.

R. M. TEAGUE has moved his nurseries from San Dimas, Cal., to the bottom land near the mouth of San Dimas canyon and a large quantity of lathhouse material has also been moved to that point.

W. F. HEIKES, well known as the manager of the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries, Huntsville, Ala., died suddenly at Cleveland, O., August 25. Particulars will be found in the obituary column on another page of this issue.

THE McGlennon & Kirby Co. has been incorporated at Rochester, N. Y., to do a general nursery business. The capital stock is $50,000 and the incorporators are J. S. McGlennon, Rochester; T. Kirby, Brighton; O. J. Whitney, Oswego.

ACCORDING to the Department of Agriculture in Holland, at the end of 1909 there were in Boskoop 583 nurseries, with a total area of 1,328 acres; whereof 358 nurserymen were independent, while the others were sometimes employed in the larger nurseries. The number of persons engaged in these nurseries was about 1,570, among which are about 1,000 laborers. The total value of nursery stock exported amounted to over £112,631.

FIRE on the evening of August 26 destroyed the storehouse and packing department of the New England Nurseries at Bedford, Mass. In addition to the buildings, a large quantity of choice trees and shrubs near the buildings were also ruined. Little water was available and the flames had practically their own way. Damages were estimated at $10,000. The burned structures will be rebuilt as soon as possible and the fire will not seriously interfere with fall trade, which was just starting in.

DEPARTMENT MAKES STATEMENT.

Possibly as a result of the report of the legislative committee presented at the St. Louis convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, the United States Department of Agriculture has now issued a circular giving its side of the imbroglio resulting from the efforts of the department officials to secure the enactment of the so-called Simmons bill over the objections of the nursery trade interests. The pamphlet of a dozen pages contains a copy of the bill and an explanation of its provisions, also an explanation of the relation of the department to the enforcement of such a law, in which it is said:

"The fear that is expressed that some one person will have arbitrary powers over the entire importing nursery business is quite unfounded. The features of the bill which come under the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture will be carried out under the supervision of the Secretary by designated officials representing the Bureaus of Entomology and Plant Industry and the Forest Service. The department, by the permit system and notifications received, will become a sort of clearing house for information for the benefit of the state inspectors. In view of the success of the department in building up every form of agricultural industry in this country, and its constant and earnest efforts in this direction, there is no ground whatever for the fear that in this particular instance the department will become an enemy of the important nursery business and take any unreasonable action to its detriment. The subject of regulation and control will be fairly and freely discussed with the nurserymen and the law will be carried out with the sole idea of protecting the fruit, forest and nursery interests."

the trade were not present to share in the benefits. The papers read were able and instructive and were productive of much interesting discussion. The hospitalities extended by John A. Young and the J. Van Lindley Nursery Co. were enjoyable and were highly appreciated.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, E. W. Chatlin, Winchester, Tenn.; vice-president, O. J. Howard, Pomona, N. C.; secretary-treasurer, A. I. Smith, Knoxville, Tenn.

The success of the meeting was due in no slight degree to the efforts of the efficient secretary-treasurer, A. I. Smith, who was reëlected for the fifth time.

The next annual meeting will be held at Augusta, Ga.

The program, as rendered, was as follows:

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUG. 23, 9:30.

Invocation—Rev. E. K. McLarty, Greensboro, N. C.

Address of Welcome—Thomas J. Murphy, Mayor of Greensboro.

Response—Charles T. Smith, Concord, Ga.

NEWARK, N. Y.

John Watson, of Jackson & Perkins Co., sailed from Liverpool August 24, on his return from a two months' European trip in the interests of his house. He visited the leading horticultural centers of Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany. He reports extremely dry weather prevailing throughout Europe, and many kinds of stock suffering severely therefrom.

Jackson & Perkins Co. is just completing an immense new frost-proof building for the storage of nursery stock. It is 60x160 feet. The walls are built of cement blocks laid in three separate courses, thus giving two air spaces in the walls and thoroughly insulating the building against both heat and cold. The structure is a model of its kind, and the additional room which it provides has been made necessary by the company's increasing business.

ERIE.

The Market.

Society folks have not yet returned from their summer homes along the lake front. There is a party at the club houses now and then which calls for the efforts of the favorite florists, and then all is quiet again. There have been several funerals this week, with the usual amount of work.

Various Notes.

Henry Baur, attorney at law, of Philadelphia, who has been the guest of his brother, A. J. Baur, returned to Philadelphia August 21.

Charles Offerle and family were called to Warren, Pa., this week by the illness and death of Mrs. Offerle's mother.

W. O. Baur is camping in Kenneth Cottage, Waldameer, Pa.

Mr. Williams, representing H. D. Mann & Co., Syracuse, N. Y., was in the city on business recently.

Miss Margaret Crotty, saleslady for William McCarthy, will spend her vacation next week at Lake View Farm, Harbour Creek, Pa.

Robert Birnie, rose grower for the Baur Floral Co., has the sympathy of his friends in the death of his father, John Birnie, of West Hoboken, N. J.

The Baur Floral Co. had the decorations for the Heiman-Solomon wedding at the Reed House, August 22. The parlors were decorated with palms, ferns and vines, and the dining room tables were resplendent with centerpieces of white roses and jasmine. B. P.

Norwich, Conn.—Otto Ernst, proprietor of the Geduldig Greenhouses, is one of the best known men in the trade here. With the aid of Mrs. Ernst he has built up a first-class business. Just now he is undecided whether to add to his cares by opening a store in the center of town, where an excellent proposition has been offered him.

With the approach of school openings and the return of the townspeople from the country, business has begun to be livelier and the prospects for its continuing so for some time are good. premium. There are no really good roses, either, and it will be several weeks before they are up to form or color. The aster is the queen at this time, and, with the favorable weather, this flower is in splendid shape. The prices range low, however, and it does not seem as if the growers will make much money from them this year. A few mums are seen, but they are only in small lots. Sweet peas are much scarcer and, though a few extra good ones are coming into town, most of them are short-stemmed.

A few violets have made their appearance and amaryllises are in evidence by thousands. They do not sell as well as in former years. Japanese lilies move well and Lilium longiflorum is also a good seller. Other kinds of stock have not changed during the last few weeks.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business remains quiet and seasonable, and there is no surplus of choice stock. Roses are improving somewhat, as are Beauties. Some good asters are to be had. Gladioli are plentiful, but dahlias are a little slow in coming in.

This has been an exceedingly bad year for geraniums and the outlook for next year's stock is anything but bright. Alphonse Ricard suffered the most, while S. A. Nutt looks much better. It seems that the dry, hot weather in May and June stunted them and they never recovered.

Various Notes.

John Bargman, formerly in the employ of several Indianapolis florists, but now of Chicago, spent several days here last week.

Bertermann Bros. Co. initiated a new delivery auto last week. This one is a Premier, with the body enameled white, and is a most attractive car.

William Hack, of Bridgeport, is completing a new greenhouse.

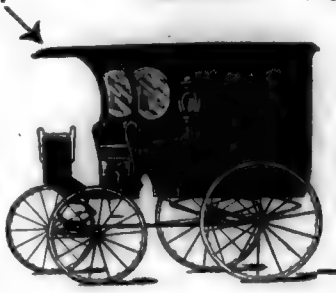
Hans Kipke, with A. Wiegand & Sons, leaves this week for a three months' visit in Germany.

Henry Backmeyer is back at work after a two weeks' vacation at Bass lake and Chicago.

A. Wiegand & Sons have their delivery auto back into service after a month in the paint shop. Homer Wiegand is back on the job after a month in northern Michigan.

Sidney Smith, of the Columbia Conservatories, has had an exceedingly busy summer. He has overhauled his entire plant, painted the greenhouses inside and out, enlarged the boiler pit and installed a new heating system. He says that he is about through now and ready for business.

Thursday, August 31, there was to be another florists' picnic, this one to be given at the Roepke-Rieman plant, east of the city. There was to be a ball game and various other sports and amusements, and it has been tipped off that this picnic is in charge of the "anti-drys."



The indications are that the entries will be well filled at the state fair next week. The premium list has been increased and additional space has been provided. Fred Dorner is to act as judge, and Herman Junge is to be superintendent of exhibits.

Ed Larsen, with Baur & Steinkamp, is back on the job again. Mr. Larsen has been ill with malarial fever for the last month. H. L. W.

The Market.

There has been little change in market conditions since last report. Roses are more plentiful, with not much demand. Carnations are scarce and the few that are seen are short-stemmed. Asters will soon be gone.

Building operations here show a large percentage of gain as compared with other cities in the United States and the activity promises well for the florists. We all expect that the season which is about to open will be a good one.

Various Notes.

At the greenhouses of the William Blackman Floral Co. the summer work is about done. The carnations are all planted and are getting a good start. Some flowers are being cut. The roses are all making a fine growth and are in a good, healthy condition. A house of My Maryland looks extra well. Mr. Wallis, the grower, says that the new rose, Hilda, is a good one and doing well for him. The mums are growing well and give promise of some fine flowers. The firm is still cutting outdoor asters, but these will soon be a thing of the past.

Ed Blackman's young daughter is ill of typhoid fever.

Mrs. Wallis, wife of the rose grower, visited in Chicago last week.

Miss Nellie Goodge's health is not good and she has been advised by her physician not to do much work until she regains her strength, but she is too ambitious to be entirely idle.

Louis Fritsch says business is somewhat better.

Royston & Fenton's roses are doing well. The Brides and Bridesmaids are looking extra good, with a fine crop coming on.

Ben Kramer says money is hard to get, collections being poor. That seems to be the case with most of us.

E. L. F.

Derby, Conn.—H. M. Bradley has an attractive place. A rustic waiting room on the car line marks the entrance to the grounds, which have a park-like effect, including a lily pond located in a shady spot and thoroughly appreciated by the numerous visitors.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business continues dull, funeral work furnishing about the only redeeming feature. The supply is unusually limited, even for this time of the year. Asters and roses are almost the only flowers now in the market and the asters are not of the first quality. The offerings in the latter part of the week, however, showed a marked improvement.

Various Notes.

Thomas Tullie, of Bay View avenue, has all his carnations, mums and ferns benched and they are promising well.

William Appleton is exceedingly busy with outside work, keeping several gangs employed all the time.

John Burke, of the Burke Rose Co., was a visitor in Worcester last week.

William B. Hazard has given up his store at 111 Mathewson street.

P. J. Hopp & Son, of North Scituate, are bringing in some of the finest asters seen in the market this season.

Upward of a hundred handsome, large designs were seen at the funeral of Mrs. Charles Beach, president of the Rhode Island Federation of Women's Clubs, August 26. The orders were well divided.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held August 21, with about a dozen members in attendance. Routine business, however, was all that was transacted.

Joshua Vose, of Pontiac, will have charge of the department of vegetables, fruit and flowers at the Rhode Island state fair, at Hillsgrove, September 4 to 8.

S. R. Astle is showing a large display of growing dahlias at the Lakewood Dahlia Gardens, at Lakewood.

H. W. Vose, formerly junior member and manager of the firm of Vose & Son, at Woonsocket, will open a store at 28 South Main street, Attleboro, Mass., in about ten days.

The premium list for the Newport Horticultural Society's September exhibition was approved at the meeting of the society held last week. There are about sixty classes, not counting the specials, for which prizes are offered by members of the summer colony and by the wholesale seedsmen.

The first definite step toward the organization of a wholesale market was taken August 25, when a number of those interested met and elected the following officers of the temporary association: President, John A. Macrae; vice-president, Walter Macrae; secretary, Elmer E. King; treasurer, Olney H. Williams. The board of directors will be elected at a meeting to be held in a few days. W. H. M.

SUFFOLK, VA.

The Suffolk Floral Gardens Co., Inc., was formally organized August 16, in the rooms of the Board of Trade. The authorized capital is $25,000. The following officers were elected: H. M. Butler, president; John F. Pinner, vice-president; J. M. White, secretary; W. B. Laurence, treasurer and general manager. Directors: R. U. Baker, J. M. Butler, R. L. Brewer, R. S. Yates and W. G. Elam. A large piece of property has been secured on Broad street, north of the Virginian road, and work will be begun at once in the construction of greenhouses and the laying out of the grounds. Seeds will be handled as well as flowers and plants.

BIG ARAUCARIAS FOR DECORATION

instead of palms, are nothing new. The most successful business houses are using them. Why? They are cheaper than palms and, secondly, if used in connection with other plants, make the most complete show you ever saw.

We have Araucaria Excelsa and Glauca plants in 7-in. pots, 30, 35, 40 and 50 inches high, at only $1.50, $1.75, $2.00, $2.50 to $3.00. Surely you cannot buy palms that cheap.

GERANIUMS

ARE OUR SPECIALTY

WE ARE preparing to grow Geraniums on quite an extensive scale for next season, and claim to have the largest stock and most complete collection in the country, and are making very interesting special prices for November and December delivery. Write us about your probable requirements and we will convince you that it is more to your advantage to buy just the kinds you want in the Fall than to bother with saving a few stock plants and working up stock yourself.

We have ready for shipment about 250,000 plants in 3-inch pots at $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000, which would make fine stock for fall and winter sales.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade has been quiet for the last few days, with stock rather scarce. Roses are improving, both in quality of bloom and length of stem. Some good Brides and Maids are coming in now, but the bulk of the stock is Killarney and White Killarney; stock is excellent of these two varieties. A few fair Richmonds are to be seen now. The call for Beauties is rather light. Carnations are coming in slowly. There are only a few from new stock and they are rather short-stemmed, but the quality is good. Lilies are more plentiful and are good stock. Quite a few gladioli are coming in and are good sellers.

Asters are scarce in this market. Only a few first-class blooms are coming in, while there are quite a number of inferior blooms and short-stemmed flowers. It seems as though the only people here who have any good blooms are those having a few in their back yards; hardly any of the florists have any to speak of.

This is the week of the state fair, which no doubt will bring a large number of visitors to the city.

Various Notes.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is shipping out a big lot of carnations from the field.

REMEMBER

Araucarias Are Our Specialty

We have them by the thousands—front, sides, back, everywhere.

Araucarias! Araucarias!! Araucarias!!!

Fresh and Green.

No one can beat us in this line.

WARNING.

DON'T BE DECEIVED! Now, as well as for the last 25 years, we hold the ground as leaders in the importing, growing and shipping of our specialty, the Araucaria.

The Home of Araucarias.

Our 25th Anniversary

Every successful business house has an anniversary, so see—This is our 25th anniversary of importing, growing and shipping our specialty, the Araucaria. Starting 25 years ago with only 100 plants, see now—Spring, 1911—we imported from Belgium 10,000; more are coming with the azaleas this fall! What caused such an immense growth? Advertising alone has not done it. First, we are honest and square in our dealings; second, cash sales to everyone, therefore our customers don't have to pay for deadheads; third, we pay cash—get good value for money and sell cheap; fourth, prompt delivery.

Our so well-known Christmas Begonia Erfordii, a constant bloomer for the fall holidays, and during the whole winter is never without a flower; in light pink, pink, dark pink and turning gradually into a bright red (big trusses of flowers), 2½-in. pots, $5.00; 3-in., 8c; 4-in., 12c.

Azalea Indica for Christmas—Deutsche Perle, Simon Mardner, Vervaeneana; large plants, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50. For Easter—Niobe, Vander Cruyssen, Empress of India, Prof. Wolters and other sorts; large plants, full of buds, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

Just look! Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings, 6 to 7-in. pots, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 6 to 7 tiers, 25, 28, 30, 35 to 40 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50 each.

Araucaria Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6 to 7-in. pots, fine bushy plants, $1.25, $1.50 to $1.75.

Araucaria Excelsa, new importation, 5, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 2 to 3-year-old, 3, 4 to 5 tiers, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 to 20 inches high, 40c, 50c, 75c to $1.00.

Araucaria Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 5½ to 6-in. pots, $1.00 to $1.25.

Kentia Belmoreana, 4-in., 25c, 30c to 35c.

Kentia Belmoreana, 4-year-old, 26 to 28 inches high, $1.00 to $1.25; 4-year-old, 30 to 35 inches high, $1.50. Kentia Belmoreana, combination or made up of 3 plants, 3-year-old, 24 to 26 inches high, 75c to $1.00; 4-year-old, 26 to 28 inches high, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50.

Kentia Forsteriana, 4-year-old, 24 to 26 inches high, 75c to $1.00; 30 to 35 inches high, $1.50.

Cocos Weddelliana, made up of 3 plants, 4 to 5-in. pots, 30c, 40c to 50c; 3-in., 15c.

Areca Lutescens, 4-in., 25c.

Cycas Revoluta, Sago palm, genuine large leaf variety imported direct from Japan, 6 to 7-in. pots, from 5 to 15 leaves to a plant, 10c per leaf.

Ficus Elastica (Rubber Plant), 5½ to 6-in. pots, 35c, 40c and 50c each.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

Heacock's Palms and Ferns

Home-grown, strong, clean and well established, describes our Palms—no more words are necessary.

"Our satisfied customers are our best advertisement." One customer who has been dealing with us for years sent in an order for $1500.00 worth of Palms without seeing them. Another, whose order last year amounted to $700.00, gave us an order for $1600.00 this year. Send for our new booklet and give us a trial order.

Lay in your Palms in September, while you can have them shipped by freight. Our facilities for shipping are of the best. We ship by freight to every state in the Union. We have 40% more glass this year. Most of it is devoted to Palms. We are particularly strong in the larger sizes (7, 9 and 12-inch).

We grow all our Kentias above 6-inch size in cedar tubs made especially for us, avoiding breakage of pots in shipment and giving better results to our customers; and, while they cost us several times what pots would cost, we sell them for the same money. They are the neatest, lightest and best tub ever introduced. Painted green, with three electric-welded wire hoops. We order these tubs by the carload.

SOLANUMS IN FIELD.

Kindly let me know whether it is advisable to grow Jerusalem cherries and Bird's Eye pepper in the field during the summer. If so, when is the proper time to lift it for potting?

E. O.

I do not know the Bird's Eye pepper, but Christmas peppers and Jerusalem cherries, Solanum Capsicastrum, are much more easily cared for and make a more satisfactory growth in the field than when confined in pots. They can be dug up and potted any time from August 20 until the middle of September. Firm them well in the pots. Shade for a few days from bright sunshine, and spray frequently when hot. They will soon become established and can be left out until frost threatens. The Christmas peppers are much more tender than the Jerusalem cherries and should have a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees when housed. The latter variety can be held in a coldframe, if desired, until the end of November.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each article advertised in this department of The Review is good, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

FOUR CALIFORNIA HOUSES.

I have four greenhouses, each 27x200, with walls five feet high and the ridge thirteen feet from the floor. What amount of piping will be necessary for these houses? S. M.

The question does not give the use to which the houses are to be put; hence no really definite advice as to the amount of radiation can be given. In the climate of central California, a greenhouse 27x200 feet, with a wooden wall five feet high, will require about 800 square feet of steam radiation, provided a temperature of 60 degrees will suffice. This amount of radiation can be provided by means of one 2½-inch main overhead, in the center of the house, and eight 1¼-inch returns. The returns can be partly on the walls and partly under the benches. For four houses of this size, a 4-inch main would answer.

STEAM FOR LETTUCE HOUSES.

I am building two iron-frame, trussed houses, each 28x141, here in western Iowa, and will heat them with gravity steam. Please inform me as to the right size and location of the heating pipes. The height from floor to eaves will be seven feet. The houses will be connected, without partition, and will thus be equivalent to one house 56x141. There will be four feet of glass in the sides. The south end will be glass; the north end will be boarded and papered. The foundations will be concrete. The houses will be used for growing lettuce all winter. There will be no benches; the lettuce will be planted on the floor. There will be a walk all around, close to the wall, and a walk through the center. I think a temperature of 40 degrees in zero weather will be warm enough. M. K. B.

Each of the houses, 28x141 feet, with four feet of glass in one wall, can be heated with steam for growing lettuce by using two 1½-inch mains and eight 1¼-inch returns. The flows can be on the purlin braces and five of the returns should be on the exposed wall of each house. The others should be on the inner walls. It would be well to have the wall coils start under the ends of the flow pipes.

TWO NARROW HOUSES.

We are building a small greenhouse, 22x50, with a partition through the center, making two houses, each 11x50. The houses stand north and south, with the boiler room at the north end. They are five feet high at the eaves and about eight feet high in the center. Each side will contain two feet of glass and the south end will be glass. We have an eight horse-power steam boiler, which can be used for a hot water heater. The boiler stands about five feet below the floor of the house. We should like to ask your advice as to the size, amount and position of the piping. The maximum temperature required will probably be about 65 degrees. We are located in northeastern Ohio. C. F. C.

For heating the two houses, each 11x50 feet, either one 3-inch or two 2½-inch mains, as will be most convenient, can be used for connecting with the boiler. In each of the houses run one 2½-inch flow pipe about one foot below the ridge, at a slight fall, and at the farther end of the houses use a 2-inch pipe to connect with the coils. These should contain either eight 2-inch or ten 1½-inch pipes. If there are two benches and a middle walk in each house, place five of the 2-inch

NO FLUES TO RUST OUT

Why buy a boiler that every few years you must spend your good money for in replacing flues? Don't you know that it's seldom wrought iron flues last longer than five years, and if your cellar's damp, shorter yet is their life? Buy a Burnham! It is a cast iron boiler with cast iron flues that do not rust out. No base to build—no bricking-in to be done. Two men can set it up. Do not have to tear out your workroom to install it.

Your order will be shipped promptly. If in hurry wire at our expense.

▼ Has a 3 times back and forth fire travel, 3 on both sides of the boiler—nearly 6 times in all.

Made in 21 sizes and will heat from 2800 up to 27,600 square feet of glass.

or six of the 1½-inch pipes either under the outside benches or on the outer walls, and the remaining returns in the same way on the inner side of the houses. If the expansion tank is connected with the highest part of the flow pipe, near the heater, there will be no occasion for using air valves. The main return pipes should be of the same size as the main flows.

STEAM FOR ILLINOIS RANGE.

I have a range of eight houses, all of which run east and west except house No. 1, which runs north and south across the west end of houses No. 2, 3 and 4. No 1, the north and south house, is 20x82½. Houses No. 2, 3 and 4, beginning at the south side of the range, are each 26x200. No 5 is 36x90 and No. 6 is 16x90. The boiler is at the northeast corner of the range. House No. 8, the north house, is therefore cut short by the boiler shed, which also cuts into the corner of house No. 7, leaving it irregular in shape. The main or west part of house No. 7 is 14x48; No. 8 is 22x48.

In houses No. 1 and 5 we want a temperature of from 70 to 80 degrees and in the remainder of the plant about 50 degrees. Will you kindly explain how the piping should be done, and what size and number of pipes should be used? What size of return-flue boiler will be needed? M. F. & V. C.

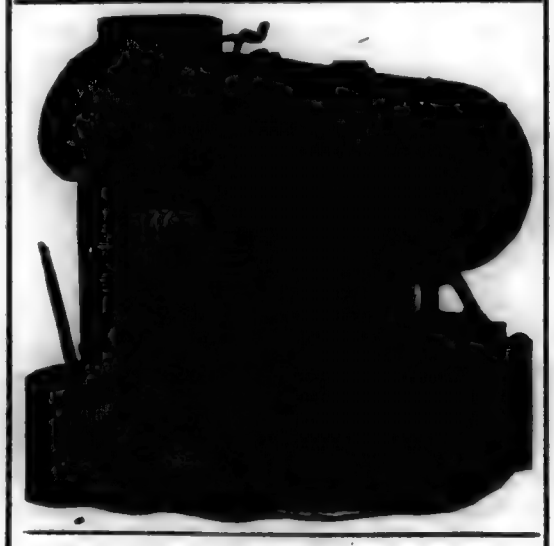
WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS



Cast-Iron Boilers break down twice in four years; Moral: Use Kroeschell Boilers—they are safe.

I bought a No. 2 boiler in 1902. Takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; would take care of 2000 more. I have had a cast-iron boiler, but it broke down twice in four years—always in the coldest weather. It broke down Dec. 29, 1904, and I lost all my stock in consequence. I have now two No. 2 Kroeschell Boilers and do not worry about their breaking down. GRANT NEWPORT, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

the description indicates, house No. 7 is of full width at one end only, the number of returns should be reduced proportionately at the narrow end. In house No. 8, 22x48 feet, one 2-inch and six 1¼-inch pipes will be required.

To heat the range described, a sixty horse-power boiler will be desirable. Just how the main flow pipe should be run will depend upon the construction of the houses. If feasible, run a main along the ends of the houses, starting with a 5-inch and reducing to 4-inch, 3-inch and 2½-inch after taking off houses 5, 4 and 3, respectively. In each house carry the main overhead and distribute the returns under the benches and on the walls.

EFFECT OF CINDERS ON PIPE.

Will you kindly explain what effect coal cinders will have on iron pipe, galvanized or otherwise, when used in greenhouses for posts, purlins, steam pipes and other purposes? We are informed that cinders have been known to "pit" railroad rails when these have been allowed to remain in cinder piles for a year or two. We ask this information through your columns, knowing that information that is valuable to us will be valuable to others. M. F. & V. C.

When iron pipe is set in cinders it seems to undergo a chemical action, even when galvanized, and this action appears to be more rapid than when the pipe is standing in common earth or gravel. It is always desirable to set greenhouse posts in grout, but cinders and gravel can be mixed in equal parts and used with cement without fear of serious injury to the posts.

IN WASHINGTON STATE.

We are building four greenhouses, each 15x200 feet. They are connected houses, of wood and metal construction. We have a steam plant and will carry about fifty pounds of steam, and we wish to know how many 1¼-inch returns will be required for each house in order to be able to maintain a temperature of 55 degrees in the coldest weather. Our winters are not severe, but we occasionally have zero weather for a few days during the season. We will use a 2½-inch flow or supply pipe in the center of each house and the returns will be strung along the pipe supports of each house. The houses will be well constructed and strictly modern. Please give us the benefit of your experience and information on this point.

W. W. F. C.

A 2-inch flow would be amply large for each house, and with four 1¼-inch returns would maintain the temperature mentioned in all except the outside houses, which would require an additional return, especially if they have any glass in the outer walls.

The Market.

Business for the last month has been all that could be expected. Funeral work has been the main factor, and has created a good, steady demand. Stock has been in fairly good supply. The quality has been good, considering the warm weather.

Some good asters have been coming in and have had the call over roses and other stock. Roses are in good supply and the best stock sells fairly well. Some few dahlias are coming in. Their stems are a little short, which kills them as cut flowers, but they fill in well for funeral work. Carnations are short-stemmed, owing to the fact that they are being cut from young stock, which is in good shape and gives promise of a big yield for the winter months. Gladioli have been about cut out, but a few are still coming in and sell fairly well. Hardy hydrangeas are about cut out. A few other summer flowers are to be had and fill in nicely.

Various Notes.

Most of the local florists who attended the convention at Baltimore are back in town. Although a little "peeved" at not landing the 1912 convention, they are aware of the fact that they gave the "Windy City" a run for the money, and will be on the job for that 1913 fracas.

Anders Rasmussen, the New Albany grower, is rebuilding the greenhouse that was destroyed by a wind storm August 12. The work is well under way and will be completed in a few weeks. K. R.

Waterbury, Conn.—Alexander Dallas has given an interest in the business to his younger son, who has had an excellent training for the post, and the name of the firm is now Alexander Dallas & Son. The greenhouse plant is being entirely reconstructed. The contract for removing the houses from the two former places is being carried out by the Lord & Burnham Co. There is room for expansion; the location is of the best. In addition to several acres of excellent soil, there is a pond which will furnish all the ice needed for the capacious storage cellar.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

Pittsburg people are the greatest in the world for taking vacations. The fact that there are few cities in which the people live more strenuous lives may have something to do with this. At any rate, about everyone who has any money is out of the city, no one is left to buy flowers and the only sales that are being made are funeral orders. However, there is a better day coming and the growers are getting their stock ready for it. Most of the growers are getting things into shape for fall and their stock is looking good—some of it excellent. Some fine asters and gladioli are coming into the market—about all that is necessary—and roses are improving right along, so there is no trouble from this source.

Various Notes.

"HAMILTON-MADE" GREENHOUSE HOSE

What our mark on hose means

"Hamilton-Made" means superior quality in general and one thing in particular. The "one thing in particular" is this:

On every length of "Hamilton-Made" hose you will notice a mark not found on any other hose—"Guaranteed 750 pounds pressure," or 700 or 500, etc., according to the grade. On our "Hamilton" brand every length has been tested under pressure of 750 pounds to the square inch. Any piece showing defect is rejected. 750 pounds is five times the usual pressure in steam boilers. Think of it! Do you wonder that this hose is strong; that it is stiff and will not kink?

"Hamilton" brand, our highest grade hose, selling at 25 cents a foot, will last three to five years under ordinary greenhouse use; it will stand three or four times as much wear as common hose. As often happens, the high grade is the cheapest.

Under the same brands and of the same excellent qualities, we make Hose for Suction, for Steam Service and for Spraying.

All made especially for the service to be done and satisfaction guaranteed.

Here are some of the leading grades of "Hamilton-Made" Greenhouse Hose. Note that every label bears the words "HAMILTON-MADE"

How to get the best hose that is made

SOME jobbers in Florists' Supplies do not sell the highest-grade Greenhouse hose. They argue that everybody wants low-priced hose. We know better, for we know that our stiff, strong, tough "Hamilton" brand hose is really the cheapest of all, and that many wise buyers will be glad to get it. We therefore make this offer to all who cannot buy it of a dealer:

If your dealer does not keep it, we will deliver to you anywhere in the United States, PREPAID, 50-foot lengths of ¾-inch "HAMILTON" brand, our highest grade Greenhouse hose, complete with standard brass couplings, for the regular price, $13.50 EACH LENGTH.

This splendid hose stands a pressure of 750 pounds to the square inch, and while it is our highest-priced Greenhouse hose, it lasts so long that it is really the cheapest hose made.

If hose of such extremely high resistance is not required, we will send ¾-inch KENMORE (guaranteed 650 pounds) at $10.50, or ¾-inch CYGNET (500 pounds) at $8.00 for 50-foot lengths. Shipped same day order is received.

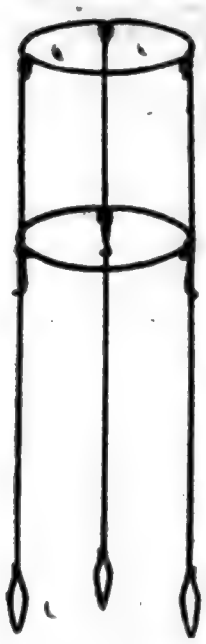
A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.



"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

BLACK HALL, CONN.

The new, and first, passenger and vehicle bridge spanning the Connecticut river between the towns of Old Lyme and Old Saybrook was opened to public use Thursday, August 24. Twelve thousand people watched the parade during the celebration and 550 automobiles, decorated with flowers, made a grand spectacle.

Harry Griswold, who has spent some years in New York city, is to go into lettuce growing at Old Lyme.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Trade was rather dull last week. Asters are coming in freely now; these are the late varieties and they retail at 35 cents per dozen. Roses are good; they sell at $1 and $1.50 per dozen, retail. Carnations are not yet plentiful; they retail at 35 cents per dozen. Some nice gladioli retail at $1.50 and $2 per dozen. Sweet peas sell at 50 cents per hundred blooms. Candytuft and alyssum help out in funeral work. Funeral work is good.

At last we have had some good rains, and as a result everything seems freshened up. About all the growers have housed their carnation plants.

Greenhouse Glazing Putty

"SEMI-LIQUID"

Absolutely the best glazing product ever produced. Guaranteed to be made of purest, double boiled Linseed Oil and Pure White Lead. Weighs 16½ pounds to the gallon; each gallon will cover 300 running feet. Can be used in machine or putty bulb and we guarantee that ten years after using all that is necessary is to break the outer film and the body will be soft and pliable. Impervious to water and will not heave in cold, nor run in warm weather; in fact it is "MANUFACTURED TO MEET THE EVER INCREASING DEMANDS OF THE MAN WHO WANTS THE BEST." 1 gal., $1.40; 5 gals., $6.75; 10 gals., $13.25; 20 gals., $24.45; 1 bbl. (50 gals.), $62.50.

HUNT'S "Simon Pure" Dough Putty

This is a strictly pure putty compound of whiting and double boiled Linseed Oil and so compounded as to make it impervious to moisture; frost will not crack it, no crumbling by change in temperature, and is smooth and easy to apply.

100 lb. cases, $3.05.

The putty in these cases is put up in 25 pound skin bladders. This is an advantage, as one bladder at a time can be used without exposing the balance to the air.

100 lb. steel jackets (bulk putty), $2.90.

Barrels of about 800 lbs. bulk, per 100 lbs., $2.55.

For those who use dough putty there is nothing on the market that is better or of higher quality.

Glazing Tools

We handle all kinds of Glass Cutters and Glazing Points, but list here only those that we consider the best.

Each, 10c; per dozen, 90c.

Scollay Putty Bulb

Too well known to require description. Used almost universally for applying liquid putty.

Each, 85c; per dozen, $9.00.

HUNT'S Greenhouse Pure White Paint

The best and purest paint for use on the inside and outside of greenhouses.

1, 2 and 3 gal. cans, per gal.	$ 1.75
5 gallon kits	8.50
10 gallon kits	16.70
25 gallon bbls	41.00
50 gallon bbls	81.00

Reasons why you should use Hunt's Greenhouse Pure White Paint:

1st. It is made to withstand the excessive moisture and variation of temperature which is so prevalent in greenhouses.

2d. It will cover more surface than any other paint now on the market, making it cheaper in price than paint of inferior quality.

3d. It will not peel, blister or crack, hence will outlast by years other products and add to the life of the house without any additional expense.

COLUMBUS, O.

Florists' Outing.

As previously announced in The Review, the Columbus Florists' Association gave its first outing August 12, and the event will no doubt be remembered for a long time by the ones who participated in it.

The automobile parade through the city, previous to going to the picnic grounds, was the talk of the town. The mayor of the city honored the association by leading the parade and, in appreciation of this, the association presented to him a beautiful basket of flowers. All the cars in the parade were decorated with flowers and plants. En route to the picnic grounds, the parade went through Schiller park. Mr. Sherman, the superintendent, as well as F. Heil, his able assistant, received many favorable comments on the fine work done there. This park would be a credit to any city. It was at Schiller park that photographs of the entire parade and individual machines were taken. About noon the party reached Heimandale grove, a fine spot for picnics, and it was not long before everybody was having a good time.

Frank Heil gave ample proof that he is an excellent cook and provider. There were eighty hungry people to be fed, but he had plenty for all. A brass band, consisting of twelve instruments, furnished the music. Notable speakers gave toasts and recitations and a jolly good time prevailed until dark.

As there were many florists present from the various parts of the state, the Columbus Floral Co., whose place adjoins the picnic grounds, extended an invitation to the entire party to inspect their houses, which cover about 70,000 square feet of ground and are devoted entirely to carnations and mums. Only words of praise could be heard of what the party saw there. Frank Miller, the president of the company, and Paul Halbrooks, the superintendent, should feel convinced that they are leaders in their respective lines.

The association is especially indebted to the chairman of the outing committee, Joe Hellenthal, who displayed wonderful ability and everlasting patience; we all take our hats off to good old Joe.

The association, being still young, is satisfied with the attendance, though we should have liked to see the few remaining members of the Florists' Club attend. They were all invited. F. C. V.

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

New Orleans, La.—Owing to increased business, the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. has leased larger quarters at 135 Carondelet street.

Fall River, Mass.—Frank Buffington is an ardent collector of native plants and finds recreation and profit from their study. A pioneer in the business, he is looked upon as an authority on anything pertaining to floriculture.
